MINERS CALL OFF STRIKE

Today

The NRA Test.
Wanting and Buying.
All In 24 Years.
Nature's Fertility.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

THE FIRST important test of the NRA movement will come in the effort to settle strikes, replacing violence with arbitration.

Twenty thousand coal miners in Pennsylvania disregard the instructions of their union labor chiefs and reject the plan of the President.

In New York State, trucks carrying milk to market, guarded by state troopers, were fired on yesterday with a machine gun.

The government presumably will find a way to convince all citizens that when Uncle Sam takes charge all other management ceases to operate. Until it does this, the NRA will not go far.

AUTOMOBILE buying, most important as an indication of national prosperity, is increasing rapidly.

In July this year sales of new passenger cars were 63 per cent above the sales of July last year.

W. S. Knudsen, president of the Chevrolet Company, in New York yesterday on the way to Washington and NRA discussions, announced that in the first seven months of this year the Chevrolet output was 44,000 above the total production for 1932.

The Ford Company announces sales constantly increasing and Walter Chrysler reports "the greatest July business in the history of Chrysler motors."

All that is good news for everybody. It is only when the people want things, and buy them, that the nation prospers.

IN THE last twelve months the world has used 24,725,000 bales of all kinds of cotton, against 23,007,000 in the preceding twelve months. American cotton used in the last twelve months amounted to 14,132,000 bales, a gain of 1,620,000 bales over the preceding year.

This is good news for American cotton growers.

ALSO IN July the sales of the Woolworth company increased 7.92 per cent over July last year. Increasing five and ten cent sales are encouraging, because they prove that little people are more at their ease financially.

When the little people are at their ease, the big people need not worry.

YESTERDAY the French fliers landed in Rayak, Syria, having broken the "straight line nonstop distance record." Between Saturday and Monday they flew from New York, over the Atlantic, France, Germany, Austria, Hungary, Yugoslavia, and on across the Aegean Sea, passing between Greece and Macedonia.

To realize aviation's progress it is only necessary to remember that Bleriot, who built this Rossi-Codos long distance plane, earned a prize of ten thousand pounds from Northcliffe for the first airplane flight across the English Channel, a distance of about thirty miles, and that was only twenty-four years ago.

Now Bleriot manufactures a plane that flies in a straight line over the ocean and across all Europe, nearly 6,000 miles. So much has been accomplished in the last twenty-four years. What do you think will be done in the next twenty-four years?

Do you doubt that around-the-world flights for passengers will soon be commonplace, or that long distance travel by railroad will be as much a thing of the past as long distance travel by stage coach is now?

THE EARTH'S greatest wealth is in nature's fertility. Everybody knows that half a dozen shad, if all their young ones grew up and raised families, would fill the ocean solidly full of shad in a few years, and that the female oyster lays millions of eggs

When destructive sharks and other fish are killed off, as wolves have been killed in sheep-raising countries, there will be more fish of the finest kind than ten times the present population of the earth could use.

A DISPATCH from Baton Rouge, La., tells of a "crawfish run" in millions, blackening the highway for a distance of five miles, with natives shovelling the crawfish into bags and passing automobiles crushing thousands of them.

Many of the finest animals, like the passenger pigeons that once flew over this country in hundreds of millions, have been destroyed. But there are many food varieties left, on land and in the sea.

ACCORDING to statistics gathered under the direction of Harold F. Clark, professor of economics at Columbia University, there is no excuse for 12,000,000 idle in the United States. In fact, with proper organization, United States industry and its various lines of effort could provide jobs for 50,000,000 persons more than the present population of this country.

This should interest those who imagine that what the country needs is to keep out immigration. What it really needs is to encourage immigration of the right kind, the new, adventurous, ambitious blood that has built the country thus far.

PROF. CLARK says there would be just as many idle if the population of the United States were half what it is.

It is also well to remember that when the population of this country was below four millions there was only one mechanic able to make a dollar a day all the year round, and you could

Two Hurt as Limited Engine Leaves Rails At Shadyside

Several score passengers escaped injury when the Duquesne Limited, fast express train of the Pennsylvania Railroad, cracked up near East Liberty this afternoon.

Early reports had the engineer and the firemen hurt when the lyocomotive and mail coach left the rails.

The locomotive ripped over the tracks and came to rest against the hillside, the cowcatcher buried in the earth.

The accident occured under the Millvale Avenue Bridge, a few hundred yards distant from the Shadyside station.

Eight coaches, five of them containing passengers, remained upright on the tracks. Many of the passengers did not even leave their seats after the accident.

TWO INJURED

The two injured, Engineer Andrew C. Wilt, of Altoona, and Fireman C. D. Gross, of Lewistown, were rushed to nearby hospitals. It is understood they were not seriously hurt.

Near the scene of the wreck were several switches, which may have figured in the cause.

Conductor H. C. Delo described the accident:

"Something started to drag about 250 feet back before it went."

The express was eastbound and carried a dining car and a chair car.

DESCRIBES ACCIDENT

One witness to the accident described:

"A pony wheel was off, bouncing down the ties before the engine plunged over. The engineer and fireman were thrown clear of the locomotive. I went to help them get up. Their faces were white as sheets."

The sprawled locomtive blocked traffic on three tracks. One track was left open.

NICOLA TERM SUSPENDED

F. F. Nicola, 72, real estate operator, was sentenced to a year and a day in a federal penitentiary today, then sentence was suspended on condition that Nicola pay a $2,500 fine and the tax levy agreed upon by government officials.

The suspension means that, meeting the conditions, Nicola will not be imprisoned. His counsel, Attorney Joseph A. Richardson, filed notice of appeal from the conviction and sentence after Judge F. P. Schoonmaker had pronounced sentence.

Nicola was convicted by a federal jury in March of evading a $26,394 income tax for 1928. The suit involved a voucher for $101,250 received by Nicola from the Miller Printing Machinery Company as a commission on a sale of patents. The government contended that he turned it over to the Point Improvement Company to evade the tax. Nicola held controlling interest in both companies.

Before he was sentenced Nicola told the court he had had no desire or intent to defraud the government and that it was a great shock to be charged with criminal intent.

Miracle Play Opens Welsh Eisteddfod

The large audience included many Welshmen from Canada, the United States and Latin America. Hundreds of miners came from the coal fields.

Death Quiz Turns to Nudists

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—The private life of quiet-living, affable Henry Sanborn, of one of St. Paul's best families, today engaged the attention of police in their effort to break the mystery of his murder and burial in a makeshift grave in Long Island.

A checkup of nudist colonies was underway to discover whether he had visited any such camps recently. Sanborn was known as a nudist enthusiast. Pictures of himself unclothed were found in his room in a New York Y. M. C. A. branch. Photographs of a woman in the nude were also found in the room.

The number of women in the life of the Western Railway executive apparently keenly interested authorities as they wavered between possible murder motives—economic or jealousy.

BLACK BOOK SOUGHT

HARPIST'S WIFE SUES RIVAL

Mrs. Anna B. Schuecker today filed suit for $50,000 against Ethel C. Whittlesey, 35, of Girty's Run road, Ross Township, charging that she had alienated the affections of the former's husband, harpist and former music instructor at Carnegie Institute of Technology.

A romance developed between the husband, J. E. Schuecker, and Miss Whittlesey while the latter was at pupil at Tech, according to the wife's allegations.

The wife's suit recites that the Schueckers were married April 20, 1911, and lived together until March 15, 1927.

Prior to their separation, the wife avers, Miss Whittlesey "by various wiles, artifices and enticements" carried on a courtship with her husband, causing him to lose his affection for her, and finally persuaded him to live with the defendant in a house owned by her.

Gandhi's Wife Gets 6 Months' Jail Term

AHMEDABAD, India, Aug. 8.—(AP.)—The wife of the Mahatma Gandhi was sentenced today to six months' simple imprisonment for her activities in connection with her husband's renewed civil disobedience movement against the British authorities.

Mrs. Gandhi was released from prison yesterday and was immediately re-arrested.

40 Dead, 200 Wounded As Machado Battles To Keep Presidency

By CLIFFORD GALLOWAY
International News Service.

HAVANA, Aug. 8.—Three hundred additional soldiers from Camp Colombia were rushed to the center of Havana today as the Cuban capital, scene of a bloody massacre which claimed 40 dead and at least 200 wounded, lay dormant in an agony of suspense and fear.

Rejection by the Cuban Congress of demands for the resignation of President Gerardo Machado as the only means of restoring peace prompted the government to new and drastic measures to ensure continuance of his dictatorship.

Faced with a warning from Ambassador Sumner Welles that the United States would regard the situation here as grave in the extreme unless the crisis is solved by Congressional action, the Machado regime made a desperate attempt to restore order by bayonet rule.

The new troops from Camp Colombia were sent through the city in the early morning hours, under instructions to force striking shopkeepers to reopen.

OPPOSE 'IRON HAND'

Police failed in a similar attempt yesterday, but the government was hopeful that Cuba's well-trained and heavily armed troops would be more successful in "persuading" shopkeepers.

Neutral observers, however, predicted the soldiers would be little more successful than the police. The "strike rebellion," punctuated by an abortive military uprising, riots and shootings in cold

Brookhart Working On Russ Trade Pact

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—(AP.)—Former Senator Smith W. Brookhart, of Iowa, now trade adviser to farm law administrators, said today that he looks for "an important early development" in a program he is working out for extending United States credit to Russia to rebuild trade between the two nations.

Wanamakers Hurt In Monte Carlo Crash

'DEADLINE' ON CODES NEARS

Labor Will Watch for Violations, Green Announces

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—(AP.)—Signs multiplied today that the National Recovery Administration will brook no holding back or double-dealing in the determined prosecution of its plans to bulwark popular buying power and employment.

While setting no specific deadline, Hugh S. Johnson spoke again of allowing "two weeks" for those businesses still outside the blanket code to come in—before asking the public to apply the boycott screws to force the lingerers in.

And on top of that, William Green—president of the American Federation of Labor, prominent in NRA activity—told reporters he would ask all state and city branches of his organization to watch for and report violations of the Recovery Act.

WATCH FOR VIOLATIONS

Labor organizations over the entire country thus would watch for infractions of codes as they affect both the manufacturers or sellers and laborers.

Reports of violations would be cleared through city and state headquarters to the Federation's national headquarters here, to be turned over to the Recovery Administration for disciplinary action after investigation.

As a part of this renewed pressure which Johnson said was necessary to put millions back on jobs before Labor Day, the labor and industrial advisory boards were called into full session to help draft plans.

He said the next few weeks will largely determine the success or failure of the huge emergency re-employment program, based upon the necessity of restoring purchasing power before fall.

NATIONAL ORGANIZATION

Miss Mary Hughes, director of the women's section of the emergency re-employment campaign, announced completion of an organization in 48 states to map house-to-house and store-to-store canvasses in each community. They will check up the compliance with agreements and present to consumers the demand of the National Recovery Administration that they trade at Blue Eagle establishments.

Green said instructions would go out to the organization's entire membership not to accept the Blue Eagle alone as evidence of co-operation on the part of the business house, but to make inquiries whether acceptance of the agreement with President Roosevelt actually had been followed by higher wages and increased employment through shortened hours.

Green told newsmen that the NRA Labor Advisory Board, a meeting of which he had just attended, had considered some of the organization problems of the new agency designated by the President to end industrial strife while the recovery program is going forward.

The new board, to be known as the National Labor Board, is to hold a meeting tonight.

JOHN LEARY EDWARD F. M'GRADY

Gen. Hugh S. Johnson's assistant being greeted by Labor Leader O'Leary, of Pittsburgh, at Burgess Field, Uniontown, after his flight from Washington today to settle the coal field dispute. Addressing 128 cheering representatives of 64 locals of District No. 4 a short time later, Mr. McGrady, as "the official representative of the President," secured from them a rousing pledge to return to work tomorrow. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

ROOSEVELT APPEAL HEEDED

Johnson's Aide Flies To Coke Region; Wildly Cheered

By AL GOUGH
Staff Correspondent.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Aug. 8.—The mine strike in the Connellsville region was officially declared at an end today as the result of a unanimous vote of 128 union representatives from 64 locals of District No. 4, nUited Mine Workers of America, to stand behind President Franklin D. Roosevelt and his New Deal National Recovery Act.

The delegates voted for immediate return to work and 100 per cent co-operation with the President, following a stirring address by Edward F. McGrady, assistant to Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, national administrator of industrial recovery. McGrady flew to Uniontown today. They cheered McGrady for 10 minutes after he had demanded:

"I want to see every delegate here who subscribes to this agreement to stand up before me so I can go back to President Roosevelt and tell him you're 100 per cent behind him."

McGRADY ACCLAIMED

In the midst of wild acclaim, William Feeney, president of District No. 4, arose to propose a motion for immediate acceptance of the Washington truce terms announced last Saturday and return to work tomorrow morning.

McGrady shouted:

"Can I tell the President this action was unanimous!"

More wild cheering answered his question and the delegates filed out of the meeting hall into Uniontown's Main street, where McCrady addressed a more or less disgruntled collection of members of the rank and file who all morning had complained that their leaders and delegates were "selling them out."

INSURGENT CONVINCED

Martin Ryan, so-called leader of the insurgent group which opposed return to work under the Roosevelt truce, announced he was heartily in accord with the acceptance of the peace pact. He declared:

"Of course I voted to accept the truce. When a man comes to us with all the assurances that McGrady brought and convinces us that we are going to get a fair deal, we are for him."

Ryan also revealed his intention of calling a meeting of his followers for 3 o'clock this afternoon when he would urge them to fall into line behind the "back to the mines" agreement.

Maj. Kenneth Momeyer, commander of the National Guard in Fayette County, expressing confidence that all danger of trouble arising from the resumption of

SEIZE SUSPECT IN MASSACRE

CHICAGO, Aug. 8.—(AP.)—Federal authorities announced today they were holding Louis (Doc) Stacy as the man who plotted the attempted delivery of Frank Nash, a convict, at Kansas City, and that they had learned the identity of the gunmen who killed five persons in the attempt.

Melvin H. Purvis, chief of the United States Bureau of Investigation here, disclosed that Stacy was arrested on a federal warrant issued at Kansas City charging conspiracy to deliver Nash.

Purvis named Verne Miller, notorious South Dakota outlaw, as one of the gunmen who killed Nash and four police officers in a wild shooting fray at the Union Railway Depot in Kansas City. He said the other gunmen were known to federal authorities. Purvis said:

"The attempted delivery was planned at Stacy's home in Maywood (a Chicago suburb), but Stacy himself took no part in the shooting in Kansas City."

15 Trapped Under Overturned Bus

HAMMOND, Ind., Aug. 8.—(AP.)—Fifteen passengers were pinned beneath a Greyhound bus en route from Chicago to Indianapolis when it overturned in a ditch near here today after a motorist had driven his car head-on into the bus. None of the bus passengers was seriously hurt.

Ernest A. Miller, of East Chicago, who drove his automobile into the path of the speeding bus, was badly injured. A state policeman took a quantity of liquor from Miller's car.

RULING BLOCKS PRIVATE BUSES

The hopes of the Community Service Association, which planned to give cheaper bus transportation than the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company, were dashed today by the Public Service Commission.

C. V. Shoup, one of the association leaders, said the commission had notified him that a certificate as a common carrier must be obtained.

The association had hoped to operate buses without the certificate by giving transportation to members.

Shoup announced no further action was contemplated in organizing the association. He said:

"While some of the leaders want to carry the fight to court, it would be a financial impossibility since the case would undoubtedly reach the Supreme Court. We feel, however, that the court would hold the public service law unconstitutional."

Woodin to Stay, Speeds Bank Reopenings

EASTHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 8.—(INS.)—Reopening of banks through the country which have been closed since the "holiday" in March will be accelerated in the next few weeks with hundreds of banks making funds available to depositors during the remainder of August and in September, Secretary of the Treasury William H. Woodin said today in an interview with International News Service.

Secretary Woodin emphasized:

That he is still running the Treasury Department in spite of his protracted absence from Washington because of a throat infection.

That his health is now all right.

And that he has not the slightest idea of resigning.

As for the banks, he said much work has been done which is now bearing fruit. In the past few weeks the Cleveland and Detroit situations have been pretty well straightened out.

Woodin is going to Hyde Park tomorrow to confer with the President and spend the night as his guest.

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Aug. 8.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt went into conference late today with a special staff of monetary experts in a session expected to review completely the problem of inflation and the management of currency, Secretary Woodin is scheduled to be here tomorrow.

James Warburg, special financial advisor to the London Economic Conference delegation, and two professors, George Warren, of Cornell, and James H. Rogers, of Yale, who have been making a secret study of government finance, motored here from their various homes.

Too Much Censorship, Naked Sally Collapses

CHICAGO, Aug. 8.—(AP.)—When Dr. V. H. Eman, of Grand Rapids, Mich., dropped in at the World Fair he didn't realize that he was going to be called upon in an official capacity and that his patient would be Sally Rand, the now well-advertised fan dancer.

The strain of having her every performance at the fair and a Loop theater watched by police who have insisted that she wear something besides the two ostrich fans she waves, proved too much for Miss Rand last night and she collapsed in her dressing room.

Dr. Eman responded to an emergency call and revived the dancer, after which she was sent to a hospital. She was due to appear today in Woman's Court on charges growing out of her four arrests last Friday when she danced in nothing but the feathers at the theater.

coal operations was past, said he had received no orders to demobilize as yet, but intimated these would be forthcoming by tomorrow.

Frick officials said they were waiting for definite instructions from the offices of Thomas Moses, president of the company, in Pittsburgh. It was indicated that all mines, in the district would resume tomorrow.

McGrady rushed into the meeting of official delegates this morning from an army transport plane in which he made the trip from Washington. He opened his remarks to the conference with a brief outline of the purposes of the National Recovery Act and President Roosevelt's hopes for its success.

NATIONAL LABOR POLICY

He declared:

"I come to you as the official representative of the President and the United States government.

"We are going to adopt for the first time in the history of our country a national labor policy."

He explained the purpose of the temporary truce agreement between Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, industrial administrator, and the various coal companies affected, and read both agreements. He laid before the union representatives original copies of the agreement, signed by all the parties concerned. He read to them the separate agreement with the H. C. Frick Coke Company, which, with the National Mining Company, an affiliated concern, made themselves party to the agreement only with Administrator Johnson.

VISIT TO ROOSEVELT

He related how he and Johnson had flown to Hyde Park last Friday night after the truce had been signed to lay before President Roosevelt the original papers. He said:

"Fellows, your President was overjoyed. I have never seen a man in public life more pleased than was Franklin D. Roosevelt.

"He called John L. Lewis, president of your United Mine Workers, on the telephone at 12:45 o'clock at night to tell him how grateful he was. He also called your Governor, Gifford Pinchot, and extended his heartfelt congratulations.

"I am here this morning to ask you in the name of your President to carry out your agreement and return to work tomorrow morning."

He explained the significance of the peace pact and assured miners' delegates that they could expect nothing else but a fair and square deal from the President's advisory board, which he said, was made up of "three of the country's most outstanding and fair-dealing men."

NOTHING TO LOSE

"Men, you stand to lose nothing by sticking to your agreement, while on the other hand you risk losing everything by rejecting it. If you stand by your agreement, you will receive the approval and acclaim of the public because you are men enough to carry out an agreement with the President of the United States."

Rousing cheers greeted McGrady's appearance on the street where several thousand persons had gathered in less than five minutes.

A face appeared in one of the courthouse windows. Long mustaches draped gracefully over a broad smile. The men in the street thought it was Gov. Pinchot. Someone yelled:

"Three cheers for Pinchot."

As they rang out across the courthouse lawn the smiling mustached countenance showed itself more plainly and the crowd goodnaturedly turned back to the business in hand as McGrady mounted the steps.

M'GRADY IN HURRY

John O'Leary, international organizer for the U. M. W. at Pittsburgh, introduced the speaker. McGrady explained he had only a few minutes to talk. He said he was due in Springfield, Mass., at 3 p. m., and had to return to Washington by 1 p. m. to attend a staff conference.

He said:

"I want to thank all of you for the splendid spirit of co-operation that you are giving the President. I know some of your troubles. I have been a labor organizer for 30 years and I have fought side by side with miners and men in many other industries. Please consider me as one of you."

He lamented the depression and economic distress into which this country has been plunged and declared:

"Out of this dispair of the past four years, a new man rose up to lead the people, Franklin D. Roosevelt, and by that the workers of America are going to have a new deal. The President has said: 'The time has come for a truce to be declared. Go back to work until I accept this code.'

"In the name of Franklin D. Roosevelt, I call upon all of you miners to return to work tomorrow morning."

SITUATION 'SPLENDID'

McGrady rushed to his waiting plane at the airport, where he gave out the following statement to waiting newspapermen:

"The situation looks splendid. I found the workers very reasonable. The men readily responded to requests of President Roosevelt and Gen. Johnson. The trouble here has been a misunderstanding. It was the most enthusiastic meeting I've been to in months."

William Feeney, president of District No. 4, expressed himself as "so tickled, I hardly know what to say." He declared:

"The rank and file membership on our organization, I am sure, will be convinced that we are working only for their own welfare in this controversy. Our meeting today will assure them that President Roosevelt, too, is 100 per cent in their corner and the New Deal is now more than just a promise."

Before taking off for Springfield, Mass., scene of a strike of shoe workers, McGrady called Gen. Johnson on the telephone. Turning from the instrument, he said:

"Gen. Johnson is highly pleased with the action of the miners in accepting the terms of the truce."

McGrady made no promises on the outcome of the coal industry's code hearings to begin tomorrow. Among issues are recognition of the United Mine Workers and abolition of company unions. The President's spokesman touched only generally on these subjects.

Pittsburgh Miners May End Walkout

Following decision of striking miners in the Connellsville coke region to return to work tomorrow, officials of the United Mine Workers of America today expressed the opinion that all the men in the Pittsburgh district also would return to the mines.

Thomas Moses, president of the H. C. Frick Coke Company, against whose mines the strike was first directed, said the company had not decided whether it would reopen its plants tomorrow.

Like the insurgent element in Fayette County, groups in Allegheny and Washington counties refused to go back to work until the United Mine Workers were recognized and the miners' checkweighmen accepted by the operators. The strike here was regarded as a "sympathy" walkout after the Fayette County unrest began.

P. T. Fagan, president of District No. 5, left this afternoon for Washington. The purpose of his trip was not disclosed at union headquarters. William Hargest, district secretary, said most of the union employes were back to work today and the others would return soon.

Several large mines in the Pittsburgh district were closed. At a meeting of insurgents at Hill Station, near Bridgeville, last night, the miners attending voted not to return to work because their checkweighmen were not accepted and theunion not recognized.

Fagen scoffed at the strength the insurgents said was represented at the meeting.

Despite these conflicting claims, the Montour No. 9 at McDonald and No. 10 at Library of the Pittsburgh Coal Company, Mollenauer Nos. 2 and 3 and Coverdale No. 3 of the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corporation, and the National mines Nos. 1 and 2, near Bridgeville, United States Steel Corporation plans, were idle.

The Moon Run operations of the Pittsburgh Coal Company likewise were closed. The Ocean mine at Smithdale and the Dixon mine at Imperial, Pittsburgh Coal plants, were reported working in the face of protests from men who attended the Hill Station meeting.

Mines in the Allegheny Valley region, which was affected little by the walkout, were operating, except for the Union Collieries Company mine at Renton.

ALL DRY AGENTS FIRED BY U. S.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—(AP.)—All prohibition enforcement employes of the government today received official notification of dismissal effective at midnight tomorrow, under President Roosevelt's federal reorganization program abolishing the bureau.

John S. Hurley, expected to head the prohibition unit of the new division of investigation being established in the Justice Department, said the order applied to all of the 1,800 employes.

Some 1,200 will be re-employed immediately to work in the division of investigation, Hurley saying there would be "no material change" in enforcement activities.

Asked if the majority of administrators would be left off the rolls, Hurley replied "many" might be, and that "material changes will be made all along the line in the interests of efficiency."

State Beer Tax Aids Jobless Relief

HARRISBURG, Pa., Aug. 8.—(AP.)—State beer tax receipts, rolling in at the rate of $6,000,000 a year, so far have provided $1,505,674 for unemployment relief.

The State Revenue Department says the tax on 3.2 brew, which is $1.24 a barrel or one-half cent a bottle, brought in $520,976 during July. This represents a slight decrease from June's $540,465, but a distinct gain over May's $444,232.

CAPITAL READY FOR COAL CODE HEARING

Operators Flock to Washington for Session

By PAUL C. YATES
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—Bituminous coal operators from every section of the United States converged upon the national capital today for hearings on a code of fair competition to govern their badly demoralized industry.

The hearings will begin before the National Recovery Administration tomorrow.

Although 25 different codes have been submitted, all of them probably will be merged into a single basic set of rules. This point will not be decided until the hearings are completed.

Two main issues of a highly controversial nature, along with numerous smaller issues, will be debated.

UNION ISSUE

The first deals with unionization of the northern and Appalachian fields, embracing rich producing areas in Pennsylvania, Ohio, Northern West Virginia, Eastern Kentucky and Tennessee.

The second deals with price-fixing.

Two major groups of operators, the Northern Coal Control Association and the Smokeless and Appalachian Coal Association, have submitted a joint code which, in effect, would outlaw regularly-constituted mine unions in favor of company unions.

"The language of the National Recovery Act absolutely guarantees the right of labor to organize and join labor organizations of their own choosing."

Pittsburghers to Attend Hearing on Coal Code

Five members of a general committee representing more than a score of local civic, social and religious organizations left here this morning for Washington where they will appear tomorrow at hearings before Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator, on the code for miners.

In Washington they will confer late today with legal representatives of Gen. Johnson's committee to discuss preliminary plans for their arguments tomorrow.

Among those who left here this morning were Charles T. Douds, Mrs. Bessie Kann Sack, Attorney Frank R. Sack, Mrs. Harvey S. Fouse and Mrs. George G. Bray. Last night the group met with County Court Judge M. A. Musmanno, another member of the committee who will join them in Washington tomorrow morning.

RAUSHENBAUSH GOES

Another member of the Pittsburgh committee who will attend the hearings tomorrow morning will be Stephen Raushenbaush, associated with the state Department of Labor. He will attend the conference this afternoon and be present at the hearing tomorrow morning.

The committee was selected last week at a meeting held here under the auspices of the Securities League of Pennsylvania. More than a score of local civic, religious and social groups were represented at the meeting.

Judge Musmanno did not leave here with the group this morning. He plans to stay in Pittsburgh today and to fly to Washington tomorrow morning, arriving in time for the hearings, which get under way at 10 a. m.

The main object of the committee's appearance in Washington will be to urge abolition of the company town. The committee will present to Johnson plans for making the mining towns municipally independent through the formation of corporate towns and the election of officials.

HERRON URGES CO-OPERATION WITH NRA

Mayor Greets Retail Merchants Here for Convention

Co-operation with Washington's move to resuscitate the nation's business life was the keynote voiced by Mayor John S. Herron in welcoming the state convention of the Retail Merchants' Association of Pennsylvania in William Penn Hotel today.

Declaring the "National Recovery Act already has done a great deal for everybody," Mayor Herron referred to his recent mediation of trouble among Pittsburgh dyers and cleaners as an example of what can be accomplished by co-operation.

SELF HELP

He said:

"They have given the finest example of how to help yourself. They were menaced by cut-throat competition. Now the NRA has given them a chance to live and they are starting on an even keel.

"They have reduced the work week from 72 to 35 hours and raised the minimum pay from $7.50 to $15. That's what recovery means."

Judge Solomin Lencher interpreted President Roosevelt's radio address launching the NRA program as the "funeral oration for racket individuals." He declared:

"We can't afford to let a few men get so rich that women and children go hungry. We now must concentrate on getting purchasing power into the hands of the worker so he can buy back what he produces."

OTHER SPEAKERS

Other speakers at today's session included W. M. D. Miller, of Allentown, president of the association; Harry W. Shaffer, a past president, and Charles Wolff, of Pittsburgh, general chairman of the convention, which will continue through Thursday.

Sessions tomorrow will be held in the auditorium of the H. J. Heinz Company, with William C. Arthur, of the University of Pittsburgh, as the principal speaker.

The Blue Eagle of NRA is flying high over the Pittsburgh district, with 9,206 business places already enrolled as signers of certificates of compliance, according to Postmaster James B. Anderson.

McKEESPORT AIDS

Adding the weight of a municipal ordinance to the pressure of public opinion behind the NRA move, McKeesport officials will prosecute stores selling groceries on Sunday, according to a statement by Watson McKee, secretary of the McKeesport Chamber of Commerce and chairman of the NRA campaign committee.

Service and garage men will meet tomorrow night in Webster Hall to discuss a code to affect the 300 local dealers. S. J. Grenet, president, announced that the Western Pennsylvania Brewers' Association had adopted the blanket code.

CAFE OWNERS TO HEAR CODE

Thomas J. Carroll, secretary of the industrial division of the Chamber of Commerce, will address a meeting of the Western Pennsylvania Restaurant Association in the Chamber of Commerce tomorrow evening. He will outline the NRA provisions to the restaurant men.

R. L. Gammon will preside and it is expected the restaurant code sanctioned by the government will be read and explained. All restaursant owners and managers are asked to attend.

Told to Pay

MARY ASTOR

Screen actress ordered in Los Angeles Superior Court yesterday to pay $2,433.33 to a theatrical agency for commissions representing 10 per cent of her earnings on work it obtained for her.

NEWSPAPERS SUBMIT CODE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—(INS.)—The American Newspaper Publishers Association, through its president, Howard Davis, today submitted to the NRA a code covering the publishing of daily newspapers.

The code proposed a 40-hour week for accounting, clerical, sales and mechanical forces, but inferentially classed editorial employes as "professional men," which exempts them from the maximum hours provision.

The publishers agreed to employ no persons under 16 years of age "except for the sale and delivery of newspapers where such work does not interfere with hours of day school."

The code provides for the preservation of all existing contracts, establishing minimum wages of $15 a week in larger cities to $12 a week in towns of 2,500.; provides for collective bargaining, and specifies that nothing in the agreement shall be construed as "limiting the freedom of the press."

CUBAN BULLETS PERIL U. S. WIFE

HAVANA, Aug. 8.—(INS.)—An American woman living in Havana, Mrs. Clayton Harvard, narrowly escaped serious injury in the massacre of 40 Cubans by police and troops in front of the presidential palace last night.

The fact that she fainted soon after the first fusillade and fell behind a protective railing on the balcony of her home was believed alone to have saved her. The balcony was scarred with bullets.

Mrs. Harvard was standing on the balcony of her home when the firing began. She saw two boys, 5 and 7 years of age, who were playing on the sidewalk across the street, fall wounded as soldiers sprayed the thoroughfare with bullets.

One lad was shot through the eye and another received a bullet wound in his arm.

PRESIDENT EYES CUBA HOPING FOR BEST

Intervention Remote Though U. S. Frowns On Disorders

International News Service.

HYDE PARK, N. J., Aug. 8.—President Roosevelt looked toward Cuba with anxious eyes today, but does not, at present, contemplate armed intervention.

On the other hand, it was made plain, he does not mean this nation will tolerate violence in the island beyond certain limits.

Mr. Roosevelt is disposed to let Cuba work out its own salvation if it is possible, but he did not go far from a telephone today. He was in constant touch with Washington, and has directed Under Secretary of State Phillips to advise him of every change in the situation.

Sumner Welles, American ambassador at Havana, has been directed to proffer the good offices of this country in bringing about a settlement of the serious trouble, but was told that further than that he must not now go.

His job, it was made clear, was to serve as a sort of informal mediator, and do what he could, acting in this status, to bring peace.

There were a number of telephone calls between here and the State Department late last night, it was learned, concerning the Cuban situation.

It was pointed out that the President was reluctant to interfere in any way in political quarrels in Cuba in view of the fact that the United States has just started a campaign of trade expansion in South and Latin American countries, but should the Cuban situation become more critical it was believed the American attitude might be changed.

U. S. to Ask Machado To 'Surrender' Presidency

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—(INS.)—Pressure will be brought to bear upon President Gerardo Machado, of Cuba, today to accept a peace formula worked out by the American ambassador, Sumner Welles, to take a "leave of absence" for six months, which will pave the way for designation of a successor and the end of Cuba's strife.

The plan has the support of all Cuban political parties, including Machado's own Liberal party, but the 61-year-old dictator has stubbornly refused thus far to accept it.

Welles hopes at a conference he will have with Machado today to persuade him to see the light, especially after last night's serious rioting.

Uphold Pen Terms Of Mayor, Police Head

CHICAGO, Aug. 8.—(AP.)—The conviction of George R. Dale, former mayor of Muncie, Ind., and Frank Massey, former police chief there, for conspiracy to violate the national prohibition act were upheld by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals today.

Dale and Massey were sentenced to 18 months in Leavenworth Prison and fined $1,000 each.

Valley Steel Workers Seek to Organize

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Aug. 8.—(AP.)—Efforts to unionize steel workers of the Mahoning Valley continued today with a mass meeting for all open hearth blooming mill and Bessemer employes called for tonight by Henry Bernon, local organizer for the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers.

GERMANY WISHES to coax or force Austria to join Germans in their new Hitler ideas and their interesting plans for "all-Aryan German rule."

Austria says, "no, thank you," and Europe's big governing powers, England, France and Italy, particularly object to the idea of a German-Austrian union.

Therefore the three big powers may allow Austria to increase the size of her army and the number of her officers, in spite of the treaty limiting Austria's army to 30,000 men. This would annoy Chancellor Hitler, still bound by the limitations of the Versailles Treaty.

MACHADO BAYONETS SPREAD TERROR

blood, obviously has as its aim the retirement of President Machado from office.

Oppositionists of all classes and shades of opinion indicated they would be satisfied with nothing less than effacement of the President, who has ruled Cuba with an iron hand during the last five years.

Prior to last evening, Havana and other cities of the island republic were engulfed by a wave of "passive resistance" which at length resulted in complete paralysis of the nation's industry.

ALL HAVANA IN FEAR

Today, as the direct result of the massacre of enthusiastic citizens celebrating an erroneous report that Machado had finally capitulated to the tidalwave of popular opinion and resigned, a pall of abject fear descended over Havana.

With it, however, come an apparent determination on the part of the strikers to continue their passive demonstration against the Machado regime until the President bows to their demands and quits his office.

Last night's massacre will go down in Cuban annals as one of the bloodiest chapters in all its history.

It was shortly after 5:30 p. m. that a report spread throughout the island that Machado, presumably acting on suggestions made by Ambassador Welles, had decided to "abdicate" in favor of a successor enjoying popular respect and esteem.

The rumor circulated from house to house and from lip to lip like wildfire. Little knots of excited persons gathered at street corners and in front of closed cafes and restaurants.

'MACHADO HAS RESIGNED!'

The whispers soon gave way to frenzied shouts. Someone broke the calm of the semi-tropic evening with the cry:

"Machado has resigned."

Others echoed it. Residents streamed out onto balconies and heads popped through previously shuttered windows as the shout was heard.

In a sudden surge of joyous emotion, the scattered cries and shouts gave way to mass hysteria. A few enthusiasts started to run toward the presidential palace. Like a snowball rolling down a hill, the manifestation gained velocity and scope as the moments passed.

Persons self-imprisoned in their homes during the trying hours of the last few days threw caution far afield and ran into the streets. The tramp of running feet and hoarse shouts became magnified into a roar and a rush as the crowd streamed to the broad plaza in front of the Capitol building.

OPEN FIRE IN CROWD

There they stood for a little while until again the cry that Machado had resigned was raised. Then the movement broke loose and the crowd stampeded for the presidential palace.

Just as the mob filed with shouts of glee into Zulueta street, leading to the palace, the massacre occurred.

Policemen stationed nearby opened fire into the densely packed group. Soldiers at the presidential palace went into action. Members of the Porra, Machado's secret strong-arm squad, lent the persuasive force of their revolvers and black-jacks to the carnage.

Almost simultaneously, similar action was taken by police and troops in other sections of the republic. The report of Machado's resignation, spread to bring joy to hard-pressed oppositionists throughout the island, carried with it only death and suffering.

WOUNDED JAM HOSPITALS

An authoritative check-up of the actual loss of life was impossible. Reliable estimates placed the known dead at 40, and hospitals in the vicinity of the presidential palace were jammed with wounded, some of whom may die.

Thus Havana awoke today with this scene of horror indelibly stamped upon its memory. As a result, virtually no one ventured upon the streets.

At 8 a. m., when the city is normally a thriving center of industry and cosmopolitan life, the pavements and sidewalks were deserted. A few automobiles moved slowly through the streets, their drivers ready to present credentials the moment police or secret service men stopped them.

The police and troops moved swiftly in their attempts to restore activity, but symbols of success were few and far between. Garbage went uncollected and milk undelivered. The water and electricity supplies were normal, but telephone service was severely handicapped.

Arizona Votes on Repeal With Drys Hopeless

PHOENIX, Ariz., Aug. 8.—(AP.)—Arizona votes on the wet and dry question today and dry leaders agreed they have only an outside chance of keeping this state from becoming the twenty-first to ratify the proposed repeal amendment to the Federal Constitution.

Because the drys were unable to obtain enough signatures on initiative petitions, only repeal candidates for delegates to a state convention to pass on the amendment appear on the ballot. Anti-repeal votes, however, may be written in.

Voters also will nominate a successor to Lewis W. Douglas, resigned as Congressman to become federal budget director.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—(Universal.)—Postmaster General Farley, Democratic national chairman, sent telegrams to political leaders in Arizona last night urging active support today in rolling up a big vote for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. Farley said:

"We are looking forward with a great deal of pleasure to the result of the election in Arizona. We know your state will take its place in line with the other 20 states already on record for the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment."

Marines Leave Haiti Next Year Under Pact

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—(AP.)—A new agreement may remove Marines from Haiti for the first time since an angry mob on July 26, 1915, dragged President Guillaine Sam from refuge in the French legation and killed him.

This new agreement was signed in Port Au Prince, Haitian capital, by Norman Armour, American minister. It provides withdrawal of American Marines from the Haitian constabulary so that only natives will officer the "garde" by October 1, 1934. Thirty days later, the Marine brigade of about 800 men would leave the island.

In the 1915 revolution, the party led by President Sam was credited with having massacred 167 political prisoners in jail. Sam fled to the French legation, and on the day of the funerals for the 167 dead was torn from his protectors and slain.

Two hours later, United States Marines landed. Quiet was restored, and a treaty drawn, Haitians charging Smedley D. Butler, commander of the Marines, locked their Senate in its chamber until it ratified the pact.

BALBO LEADS AIR ARMADA OVER SEA, REACHES AZORES

POLES HOP OFF FROM N. Y. FOR HOMELAND

French Airmen Rest After Setting New Non-Stop Record

BULLETIN.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—(INS.)—Gen. Italo Balbo's seaplane, flagship of the Italian armada en route back to Italy, passed Cape Flores, Azores Islands, at 1:05 p. m. (Pittsburgh time) today, according to the Mackay Radio Company.

Cape Flores is 100 miles northwest of Horta, where a stop is planned before the armada resumes the flight to its home base.

International News Service.

SHOAL HARBOR, Newfoundland, Aug. 8.—Sweeping into the red haze of dawn, the 24 seaplanes of Italo Balbo's Italian air armada resumed their triumphal homeward flight today.

Bound for the Azores, about 1,500 miles away, the air squadron took off at 3:45 a. m., Pittsburgh time, Gen. Balbo in the lead.

The remaining planes of the squadron followed in quick succession and the entire armada, in groups of threes, was in the air within 25 minutes.

Half an hour after Gen. Balbo's plane rose, it was sighted over Heart's Delight, speeding toward the sea.

With weather reports along the entire line of flight favorable, Gen. Balbo expected to reach the Azores in about nine hours' flying time. Some of the planes will land at San Miguel, others at Horta.

14 ADDED TO CREWS

The armada planned to fly over the Harbor Grace Airport, and over Conception Bay to Cape St. Francis, where the course for the Azores was to be set.

Fourteen mechanics were added to the crews of the planes, so that the personnel upon leaving here amounted to 111 men. The extra mechanics had remained here since the arrival of the supply ship Alice.

The take-off was finally accomplished after a wait here for favorable weather of 13 days, during which time plans to make a non-stop flight across the Atlantic to Valentia, Irish Free State, were abandoned.

The flight from Orbetello, Italy, to Chicago to visit the World Fair was the first formation flight across the North Atlantic.

Polish Brothers Hop; May Cross Ocean

PORT AUX BASQUES, N. F., Aug. 8.—(AP.)—The Polish-American brothers, Benjamin and Joseph Adamowicz, flying from New York to Poland, passed over this port at 1:30 p. m. (Pittsburgh time) today.

BROOKLYN, Aug. 8.—(AP.)—Two Polish-American brothers, Benjamin and Joseph Adamowicz, who hope to fly from New York to their ancestral country, Poland, took off from Floyd Bennett Airport early today on what they said was merely a "test flight" to Harbor Grace, N. F.

Airport attendants believed, however, there was a strong possibility they might continue on across the ocean with or without a stop at Harbor Grace.

Taking off unexpectedly at 6:06 a. m., Pittsburgh time, with no previous announcement of their intention, they took more than 500 gallons of gasoline with them, attendants said.

Previously they had announced they would not make the trans-Atlantic hop until the third week in August.

Emil Birgen, another pilot, accompanied the two brothers, it was learned. They did not announce whether he would acompany them on the eventual hop across the ocean.

French Miss Goal But Smash Record

RAYAK, Syria, Aug. 8.—(INS.)—Claiming a new world distance flight record of 5,590 miles, Lieut. Maurice Rossi and Paul Codos, French airmen, rested today after their arduous nonstop flight from New York.

They landed at this Syrian center, near Beirut, yesterday, 60 hours and 29 minutes after their takeoff from New York.

Flying a single-motored Bleriot monoplane, the pair left Floyd Bennett Field in Brooklyn at 5:41 a. m. Saturday, soared across the Atlantic to Paris on the trail blazed six years ago by Charles A. Lindbergh, continued on over Europe and kept going until they were in Asia Minor.

They claimed a new long-distance flight record, although they failed to reach either of their announced destinations, Bagdad, Persia, or Karachi, India.

Blonde Fiancee Quizzed in Slaying

MAGNHILD AIMSKAAR . . . THE MURDER OF RAIL EXECUTIVE BALKED HER MARRIAGE

The 27-year-old blonde stenographer being assisted by officers from New York police headquarters after she had been questioned in connection with the death of Henry F. Sanborn, socialite, whose body was found in a shallow grave. Timid and horrified, she was exonerated of any connection with the slaying, as developments today linked it with nudist colony activities. This is an International News Photograph Service picture.

LOVE TRIANGLE CLUE IN SLAYING

CINCINNATI, Aug. 8.—(AP.)—Suspecting a love triangle, police today sought a man and woman for questioning in the slaying of Oliver S. Baily, 27, society leader, whose battered body was found in a "lovers' lane" on the outskirts of the city.

They also hunted the automobile in which the son-in-law of the president of the Cincinnati Union Stock Yards was last seen Saturday night. His body, the skull crushed with a brick, was found Sunday morning but lay unidentified for 24 hours.

A crude map was found near the body. On it a dot indicated the spot where the body lay. Police speculated whether the map was used to guide the slayer to the scene. They said they had evidence a woman was there, and possibly a man.

Baily's wife and son are on their way here from Lake Placid, N. Y., where they were vacationing.

Damage Delays Scot On U. S. Air Jaunt

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, Aug. 8.—(INS.)—John Grierson, Scottish airman attempting to fly by easy stages from England to New York, today faced the possibility of a week's delay here because of damage to his plane.

The former Royal Air Force pilot arrived here yesterday. Although he may have to wait a week for new parts, he revealed he is determined to push on for America.

Lindberghs Hop On Greenland Flight

ANGMAGSALIK, Greenland, Aug. 8.—(INS.)—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh took off from here at 8:30 a. m. (Pittsburgh time) today for Julianehaab, Greenland.

The Lindberghs headed out over Greenland's barren icecap for the east coast port, but planned to land at Godthaab en route if the weather became unfavorable.

Armada Takes Mail At $4.50 an Ounce

SHOAL HARBOR Newfoundland, Aug. 8.—(INS.)—When the Italian air armada hopped off for the Azores today, it carried several thousand pieces of mail at the most expensive rate in the world.

The charge was $4.50 per ounce, to which was added a surcharge of 75 cents. Each letter carried a special "Balbo Airmail Stamp."

SCOTTSBORO GIRL HERE

Ruby Bates, one of the two white girls who figured in the famous Scottsboro case in Alabama, in which eight of nine Negro boys were condemned to die for an alleged attack on her and Victoria Price, is in town today.

The boys will be re-tried in October, and Ruby will be the chief witness in their defense. She is touring the country, speaking to labor groups in their defense. She says she wants to tell the truth now, because the Rev. Harry Emerson Fosdick, of New York City, advised her not to be afraid.

She will address a mass meeting in the Bethel African Methodist Episcopal Church, Wylie avenue and Elm street, tomorrow night. She is accompanied on her nation-wide speaking tour by Mrs. Ada Wright, mother of two of the Scottsboro boys; Lily Bass, a technical adviser and Frank Borich, secretary of the National Miners Union.

Estranged Pair's Son Snatched from Home

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Aug. 8.—(AP.)—The kidnaping of three-year-old Richard Allen Dutton, son of Ralph Dutton, who won custody of the lad several months ago in a court battle with his wife at Buffalo, today was reported to police.

REICH REBUFFS FRANCE AND BRITAIN

Nazi Charge Meddling As Nations Protest Peace Treaty Risk

BERLIN, Aug. 8.—(AP.)—Germany has told France and Britain that their interest in the German-Austrian impasse is not welcome.

French and British ambassadors handed the German Foreign Office identical notes saying German propoganda activities in Austrian politics violated the spirit of the four-power peace treaty, and were advised that meddling in the situation was "inadmissable."

The Berlin government, the envoys were told, fails to see any reason for applying provisions of the pact the three nations and Italy recently signed in Rome and why they should interfere in the present situation.

An official communique did not mention the Italian stand, but merely said the Italian ambassador was not on the Wilhelm-Strasse yesterday, and pointed out that Germany had not violated provisions of the accord. The statement said:

"Germany considers the incident closed."

The representations arose from the circulation of pamphlets by Nazi aviators attacking the Austrian government under Chancellor Englebert Dollfuss and broadcast speeches in Germany of a like character.

These moves, the British and French governments hold, are not compatible with Germany's obligations under the Versailles treaty, in which Germany agreed to respect Austria's independence, nor with the four-power agreement for European peace.

Slaying of Austrian Laid to Germany

VIENNA, Aug. 8.—(AP.)—The Austrian government was awaiting further details today of the killing of an auxiliary policeman near the German border. When those details have been received the government will decide whether to take diplomatic steps.

It was uncertain whether the attackers were Austrians or Germans. The semi-official Reichspost, however, flatly described the killing as a German attack on Austria.

Nazis Intern Son of Ex-President Ebert

ORANIENBURG, Germany, Aug. 8.—(INS.)—Fritz Ebert, son of the first president of the German republic, was interned in a Nazi concentration camp today.

Ebert long has been at odds with the Hitler government.

Senator Glass, 75, Going to Europe

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—(AP.)—Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, is going to Europe for his health.

NURSE SEIZED IN EXTORTION THREAT

Letters Told N. J. Man Daughter Would Be Beheaded

NEWARK, N. J., Aug. 8.—(AP.)—Flora Carol Ravens, a 42-year-old nurse of Bloomfield, was held in Hudson County Jail today charged with sending a letter to Alfred B. Squire, of West Orange, demanding $50,000 on threat of killing Squire's daughter.

The letter, received by Squire August 1, read:

"Leave $50,000 in silver at main gate, midnight, August 2, or your daughter's head will be cut off."

The woman was taken into custody a week ago when she took to Squire, by whom she was at one time employed, another letter similar in character to the first. She said, police stated, that she had found the letter, addressed to Squire, on a street car, and merely delivered it. The handwriting on both letters, police said, was similar and the stationery the same.

She was arraigned yesterday before United States Commissioner Joseph F. Holland and remanded to jail when she was unable to supply $3,000 bail.

She is said by Federal authorities to be the first person to be held in this state under the Federal criminal statute enacted after the kidnaping and slaying of the Lindbergh baby.

KIDNAPER FAILS TO KEEP 'DATE'

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 8.—(AP.)—The writer of the letter threatening to kidnap or kill Betty Downes, 15, now in a New Hampshire camp, failed to keep an appointment with her father today to get the $15,000 which was demanded as the price for the girl's safety.

James R. Downes, chief of freight transportation of the Pennsylvania Railroad, was at the building designated by the letter writer, but the latter did not put in an appearance hours after 6:30 a. m., the appointed time.

Also at the building, about three-quarters of the way from City Hall to the city limits, was a detail of police, carefully concealed.

The camp where the girl is staying at North Sutton, N. H., has been under guard since last Saturday, when Downes received the threatening letter here.

Wealthy Man Routs Tear Gas Kidnapers

CHANDLER, Okla., Aug. 8.—(INS.)—Armed only with a shotgun, Arch Hopkins, 60-year-old wealthy oil man and farm owner today battled off two apparent kidnapers who attempted to subdue him with tear gas at his home near here.

A blood covered flashlight and a tear gas cartridge, also marked with fresh blood, which were apparently dropped by one of the intruders as he fled, testified to the accuracy of the elderly oil man's aim.

BROTHER AIDS WIDOW IN TRIAL FOR LIFE

Mrs. Costello to Be Recalled to Stand In Poison Case

SALEM, Mass., Aug. 8.—(INS.)—Andrew Fyfe, Jr., brother of Mrs. Jessie B. Costello, today delivered a telling blow to the state's case against his sister when he testified he saw Fire Capt. William J. Costello, for whose poison murder Jessie is on trial, mix two poisons.

Fyfe's testimony came as Jessie herself prepared to take the witness stand again in her battle to escape the electric chair.

Three or four times, in his presence, Fyfe testified, he saw Bill Costello mix the two poisons as a cleaning mixture for the boiler in the Costello home in Peabody.

His statement bolstered Jessie's claim that her husband mixed the cleaning paste for her, and did so on the morning he was found dead.

Fyfe also declared he noticed that Bill had been acting peculiarly for some time, and prayed constantly.

On one occasion, after the death of his son, William, Jr., Fyfe testified, Costello picked up the child's body and started pacing the room.

After the death of Mrs. Fyfe, the witness' mother, Fyfe said, he met Capt. Costello on the street, and Bill told him he wished he had gone with Mrs. Fyfe.

Fyfe followed to the witness stand Edward P. O'Brine, brother of one of the defense counsel, and a friend of the Costellos, who under cross examination, reiterated his direct testimony of yesterday that Bill Costello was broody and melancholy, and Albert H. Dow, Peabody theater manager, who testified as to what picture played at his theater two weeks before Costello died. After a bench conference, Dow was excused from further questioning.

3-FINGERED FLO HELD IN KILLING

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—(INS.)—Edward Kenny, ex-convict, and Flo Palmer Flynn, attractive red-headed widow known to police as "Three-Fingered Flo" (she lost two fingers from her left hand in an automobile accident), were arrested today in Brooklyn on charges of homicide in connection with murder of Lester Flynn, estranged husband of the woman.

The arrests followed a grilling of more than 15 hours during which the pair were questioned regarding the murders of Flynn; of Mrs. Alice Diamond, widow of Jack (Legs) Diamond, slain racketeer, and of James J. Dolan, Mrs. Diamond's friend and bodyguard.

Kenny and the woman, police said, denied knowledge of the murders.

"Silent Lester" Flynn was shot to death in a Brooklyn beer garden June 28. The killing of Mrs. Diamond, found dead in her apartment, followed. Dolan was shot a week ago. Police assert the murders were inter-related.

WIFE, SLAYER, SENTENCED

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Aug. 8.—An 18-year-old housewife today was under sentence of two to five years in prison for the slaying of her husband, less than two weeks ago.

Mrs. Anna Brumley Baker, of Monongahela Township, pleaded guilty to a voluntary manslaughter charge and was ordered to the Women's State Prison at Muncy.

She struck her husband, William Baker, 29, on the head with a piece of stove wood and he died three days later from a fractured skull. They had quarreled over Baker's failure to return early from picking blackberries. They had been married three years.

Mary Owens Sues Over Blackened Eyes

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 8.—(INS.)—Her husband, James Novel, automobile salesman, tried to blacken her eyes on numerous occasions and otherwise was cruel, pretty Mary Owens Novel, 21, film actress, charged today in filing suit for divorce.

MARKET BOMB HOLDS LAWYER

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—(INS.)—Eugene Sanger Daniell, Jr., young Boston lawyer, Harvard graduate and amateur agitator, was arraigned in Tombs Court today and held under $10,000 bail as evidence was presented to the grand jury naming him as the man who set off two gas bombs in the stock exchange last Friday.

Daniell, who has been held in the Tombs through inability to raise bail, made no statement, but his attorney, H. Bennett Salomon, vainly pleaded with Magistrate Goldstein to fix a lower bail.

In refusing to do so the magistrate said:

"This is a very serious crime. It is but a short step from gas to explosive bombs."

DRIVER ROBBED, 4 ARRESTED

A short time after William Thomas, 37, of 222 South Winebiddle avenue, reported to Center Avenue police that he had been held up, slugged and robbed of his automobile and watch, four suspects were arrested in the West End. Thomas was treated at Passavant Hospital.

Police said the suspects were arrested in an automobile answering the description of one Thomas said had been taken from him. The four arrested were Philip Henderson, 37, of 2906 Wylie avenue; Earl Washington, 22, of 1200 Hazel street; Inez Carson, 22, 1707 Webster avenue, and Aurelia Johnson, 22, of 1314 Whitcomb street. All are Negroes.

Thomas also was arrested.

Amy Going to Fair, Jim Sailing Home

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—(INS.)—Capt. James Mollison will return to London without Amy, Friday. Mollison is anxious to get home and supervise the building of a new plane, already under construction.

Amy Mollison will leave for Chicago and the fair immediately on her husband's departure. The blonde, British flier is planning an air tour of the United States. Capt. Mollison refused to say whether he plans a return flight to this coultry in his new plane.

MRS. HARRY W. BEST WITH HER TRIPLET DAUGHTERS . . . MARILYN, EVELYN AND CAROLYN

WILDA JEAN WAMPLER

Two-year-old Wilda Jean, daughter of Mrs. Thelma Wampler, of Homestead Park, the prettiest baby prize winner.

'Dude Ranch Monopoly' Of Rockefeller Aired

JACKSON, Wyo., Aug. 8.—(AP.)—The motive of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., in distributing more than $1,000,000 to gain control of the Jackson Hole "200,000 acre paradise" adjoining Yellowstone National Park was sought from his agents today by a Senate Public Lands Subcommittee.

The financier's interest in the wilderness area has been pictured variously as a great philanthropic gesture and as an attempt to gain valuable national park concessions.

Summoned as the first witness from the Rockefeller group was Harold F. Fabian, of the Snake River Land Company, a firm created to purchase the lands.

Senator Robert D. Carey, of Wyoming, at whose request the hearings is being held, claimed the company burned homes and by other violent and threatening means sought to intimidate the old settlers of the Jackson Hole to relinquish their property.

Struthers Burt, author who has operated a dude ranch for 25 years in Jackson Hole, told the Senators yesterday he had never heard of a plan described by opponents of the Rockefeller proposal as 'a scheme to set up a dude ranch monopoly."

Jack Enyon of Anchor, evoked smiles with the statement that the only pressure exerted so far as he knew was "the pressure brought by me to sell."

Hitch Delays Wedding Of 'Miss America'

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—(INS.)—Complications interrupted the wedding plans today of Mary Katherine Campbell, of Columbus, O., twice crowned "Miss America," and Frederick Staunton Townley, young insurance company executive, of Newark, N. J.

Miss Campbell, who was motoring to New York for the wedding here this afternoon, had not arrived at the time Townley made the following statement:

"Complications, which, because of their personal nature I do not care to reveal—have made it necessary to change our wedding plans.

"Miss Campbell, who is motoring here from Harrisburg, Pa., is due in New York this afternoon and then I will discuss the complications with her.

"I am unable to say whether we will be married today."

The romance of Miss Campbell and Young Townley began when he went to the boat to meet her at a request from his brother, Raymond Townley, who had met Miss Campbell in India when she was on an around-the-world cruise.

SANBORN DEATH QUIZ TURNS TO NUDISTS

man, provided little information of value to police. Miss Almskaar, a stenographer, was to have married Sanborn in June, but they had agreed to postpone the wedding until September, she said. Sanborn was 44 years old.

There was no objections to the marriage from Sanborn's family because of their difference in social status, Miss Almskaar said.

What happened to the remainder of $2,000 which Sanborn drew from the bank schortly before he disappeared on July 17 was another question to which police sought the answer.

In the pockets of the bullet-ridden victim was found more than $500. He had told a friend he was going to see somebody on Long Island.

SLAIN BY MEN

The fact that Sanborn, who weighed 200 pounds, was carried 200 feet into the woods off the motor highway before he was buried, indicated to police that his slayers were men. However, detectives pointed out a woman might have supervised the grim operation.

Police continued to await word from Europe for the location of Bancroft Mitchell, son of Former U. S. Attorney General William D. Mitchell. The younger Mitchell was a friend of Sanborn when they both lived in St. Paul, Minn., and recently sold Sanborn some stock in a new brewery for manufacturing legal beer in Connecticut.

MITCHELL MISSING

PARIS, Aug. 8.—(INS.)—The French police have failed to find a trace of Bancroft Mitchell, young New York broker sought by American authorities for a clue to the murder of Henry F. Sanborn, railway official, the press was told today.

Mitchell, Sanborn's personal broker, was sought for information regarding the slain New Yorker's business accounts, which it was believed might lead to a cause for his murder.

Dog, Cat Man's Only Pals on Year's Cruise

CHICAGO, Aug. 8.—(AP.)—Completing a 10,000 mile voyage, his only companions a dog and a cat, Capt. Alfon Hansen and his 36-foot sail boat were docked today in the Chicago River.

Capt. Hansen, 29, officer of the Norwegian Merchant Marine, sailed from Oslo, Norway slightly more than a year ago.

Saves Paint Shop, But Burns Himself

Albert Cook, 53, saved his two-story paint shop at 57 South Tenth street from catching fire today, but suffered serious burns of his left arm and leg in doing it.

Cook was using a blow torch in his shop, police said, when a gallon can of gasoline caught fire. He picked up the can and tossed it out of the building.

'76 War Payroll Proves Woman Real D. A. R.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Aug. 8.—(AP.)—Revolutionary War payroll records here enabled a 97-year-old Georgia woman to prove her claim to being one of the few "real daughters" of the American Revolution still living.

The records were found by A. S. Salley, secretary of the State Historical Commission, who was advised by the historian of the Georgia D. A. R. that a daughter of a South Carolina soldier in the War for Independence was living in that state.

The name of the father was given as Loami Brown, from Dooley County, Ga. Searching old documents in his files, Salley found where Brown was paid £5 15 shillings for duty with the South Carolina militia in 1782.

The woman, whose given name is Martha, had documents to prove Loami Brown was her father. She was born in 1836.

GUARD KILLERS AT BABY'S RITES

JEFFERSON, O., Aug. 8.—(INS.)—Special precautions were taken by authorities today to guard Ashtabula County's alleged baby killers this afternoon when they attend the funeral of their infant son, Mertis Fleming, Jr., whom they are accused of having slain.

The body of the boy, 4 months old, will be laid to rest in the cemetery at Simons where the parents, Metris Fleming, 55, and his wife, Aleeta, 28, were tenant farmers.

It will occupy a grave beside the burial spot of another son of the Flemings, Willis, 4 months, whom the parents also are alleged to have killed.

Sheriff C. H. Blanche reported that feeling against the Flemings was running high, but expressed a belief that a show of force by authorities would prevent any untoward incident.

Assessors to Sit In Twentieth Ward

Places where special assessors will sit in the Twentieth Ward, omitted in a previous schedule, to enroll voters missed in the canvass by the County Board for Assessment and Revision of Taxes, were announced today. They are: Thursday, No. 10 Engine House, 312 South Main street; Friday, No. 39 Engine House, Steuben street and Lorenz avenue; Saturday, No. 40 Engine House, Chartiers avenue. The hours are from 4 p. m. to 10 p. m.

Mt. Lebanon Moves To Save Tax Fee

Limitation of the township treasurer's annual maximum fee for collection of taxes to $3,000 was suggested in legislation initiated last night by the Mt. Lebanon Township Commissioners.

Under the present arrangement, the treasurer, who also serves as tax collector, receives 2 per cent for collection at face and 5 per cent for collection of delinquent taxes. Approximately $90,000 has been collected so far this year from an estimated tax revenue of $250,000.

SOCIETY WOMEN DELIGHTED WITH ABSOLUTELY HARMLESS TREATMENT....NO THYROID, NO LAXATIVE SALTS..NO DIET

A NATIONALLY known writer has lost 53 pounds of fat in three months, a prominent doctor's wife lost 14 pounds in 30 days. Many prominent society women are reducing easily and safely by the scientific Vannay treatment.

Vannay is an absolutely harmless tablet that contains no Thyroid extract, Iodine or laxative drugs of any kind. It was developed by a great physician who has specialized in research with the Pasteur Institute of Paris and famous clinics of America.

Now it is absurd for anyone to take dangerous drugs, or a daily dose of laxative salts that rushes food through the body half digested, and leads to chronic constipation. Vannay is a safe, natural regulator of the digestive ferments (Lipases) which control the production of fat in all human bodies.

You don't have to starve yourself or go through painful exercises. You simply take the tablets each day and continue to eat three hearty meals. The fat disappears at just the places where you want to lose it.

Start the treatment at once and all your fondest dreams of health and slim loveliness should come true.

LYNN FRANCIS

Famous for her acting in "Passing Present" writes:

"I want to acknowledge my gratitude to you for the help I have received from Vannay reducing tablets. I have taken them daily for three months, and I have lost in weight and especially in measurements. I only needed to lose ten pounds, which I did within the first nine weeks. But where Vannay helped me most was in losing several inches off my thighs—and an inch and a half off my hips.

"I have tried thyroid, exercise, and heavy massages unsuccessfully—as well as strenuous dieting. So I can recommend Vannay tablets wholeheartedly. They are the only means of reducing that I have found successful as well as harmless; in fact, since I have been taking Vannay, I have felt infinitely more alive."

ORDER BEGGARS OUT OF PARKS, OFF STREETS

Homeless men must vacate the city parks and cease begging on the streets and at homes, Police Supt. Franklin T. McQuaide ordered today.

McQuaide instructed police throughout the city to arrest all homeless men found sleeping in the parks beginning Thursday, and open a drive on panhandlers. He said:

"Homeless men have taken possession of our parks. Beginning August 10 they must vacate or go to jail."

Scores of complaints have been received from residents of Pittsburgh, according to McQuaide, that they cannot find a place to sit in the parks as vagrant soccupy all the benches.

FARM WORK SCORNED

When the Helping Hand closed recently, McQuaide was informed, the 2,000 men receiving aid were given the opportunity of procuring food and clothing in return for working on the Helping Hand Farm. Only 400 men accepted the proffer. Most of the others have resorted to begging.

Thomas Baker, head of Central Bureau for Homeless Men, 211 Wood street, said his organization would provide one meal a day, and tries to obtain work for men.

The Helping Hand, according to the committee's chairman, Joseph C. Trees, offers assistance to al worthy unemployed workmen at its 563-acre Harmarville farm.

'REFUSE PANHANDLERS'

At a committee meeting yesterday, Trees said:

"If the people really want the streets cleaned up of these undesirable men, this is their opportunity. We are asking people to aid us by refusing to contribute to panhandlers."

Produce raised on the farm not alone feeds the men, but provides for a winter surplus for use at the Water street headquarters. Excess crops are given to the Emergency Association for distribution to the poor.

YOUNG CHRISTY BACK IN U.S.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 8.—(AP.)—Crippled for life by an airplane accident in which his bride of a few days was killed, Christy Mathewson, Jr., son of the late famous baseball pitcher, arrived here yesterday from China.

A year ago Mathewson went to China as an instructor in the Chinese Government Flying School. A few months later he was joined by his mother and his fiancee, Miss Margaret Phillips, of Philadelphia. The couple was married and it was while they were on an aerial honeymoon the tragedy occurred.

Mathewson, arriving with his mother, said he plans to go to New York to consult specialists. He lost a leg in the accident and one arm has remained useless.

NRA MEMBER U.S. WE DO OUR PART

RISING WAGES and higher commodity prices are no longer "things devoutly to be hoped for." President Roosevelt's recovery program has made them a fact, and the whole nation is going back to work and buying once more the things they need to make them comfortable and happy. This is not another sale, but an event of far-reaching proportions.

Even a large national organization as ours cannot duplicate these prices when this sale is over. We urge you to plan your need for months ahead and buy all you can afford now at these "old deal" prices!

GROUP BACKS MRS. M'BRIDE FOR BENCH

The platform upon which Mrs. Lois McBride seeks nomination for judgeship of the new Juvenile Court was made public today by a committee of men and women interested in civic affairs, with Mrs. Ralph Harbison as chairman.

Mrs. McBride, according to Mrs. Harbison, would administer the court through "humanitarian, correctional methods," rather than as a court of criminal proceedings. Supervision of foster homes, the appointment of a volunteer committee interested in child welfare to advise on administration, the employment of trained workers and adequate health service through the court are pledged by Mrs. McBride.

Mrs. Harbison said:

"We have chosen Mrs. McBride as the outstanding candidate for the tremendous task ahead of the newly organized court, because of her experience and ability demonstrated for the past 21 years in social welfare work in Allegheny County."

Mrs. McBride graduated from Grove City and Vassar, studied law at the University of Pittsburgh, and was admitted to the bar in 1928.

M'NAIR BACKER HITS HENRY

John J. Kane, chairman of the committee backing William N. McNair for the Democratic nomination for mayor, today described John M. Henry, seeking the same nomination as an "Independent Democrat" as a "Republican payroller," compensated for his efforts in the "Stop Roosevelt" movement.

In a statement, Kane declared Henry received $250 a month from a Republican County administration as well as "thousand of dollars" from another Republican payroll as an appraiser of assets of closed state banks. He styled Henry a "political mountebank" trying to capitalize Roosevelt sentiment, although bitterly opposed to Roosevelt's nomination.

9TH WARD RALLY TO HEAR M'NAIR

William N. McNair, candidate for the Democratic mayoralty nomination; Representative John J. Kane and A. G. Smith will speak at a Ninth Ward Democratic meeting tonight in Arsenal School, Fortieth and Butler streets.

In the Clairton High School auditorium tonight Democrats will listen to judicial candidates. Some of the scheduled speakers are Gustav L. Schramm, candidate for Juvenile Court; James F. O'Toole and Judge Frank A. Piekarski, candidates for County Court, and John Kennedy, Alexander P. Lindsay and Judge M. A. Musmanno, candidates for Common Pleas Court.

The County Committee of the United American Veterans' Association has arranged a series of meetings to which all candidates who are ex-service men are invited. Each candidate will be permitted to speak for five minutes, and can procure an invitation by applying to the association headquarters.

Racing to Death Bed, Auto Kills Woman

ERIE, Pa., Aug 8.—(INS.)—A man who was speeding to his father's deathbed was revealed today as the driver who fatally injured Mrs. Nellie Hesselink, 77, Saturday night.

Norman W. Cook, 40, surrendered to police yesterday, reporting he rendered first aid to the injured woman, and then continued toward Kane, where his father lay near death. His father died an hour before his arrival. Lawrence Warren, owner of the car, is said to have fled the scene when Cook stopped.

WAR VETERAN ENTERS RACE

Harry Manion, for eight years an inspector in the County Department of Weights and Measures, has announced for Jury Commissioner. He was born in the First Ward and now lives in the Eighth. A World War veteran, he was affiliated with the Armstrong organization in politics.

K. William Schuchman is to be chairman of the campaign committee for Bernard L. Flynn, candidate for Poor Director, with headquarters in the Chamber of Commerce Building. Dr. Frank C. Farrante will be chairman of the speakers' committee.

J. Leonard Cook has announced as a candidate for Burgess of Wilkinsburg, adding a new name to a long list. He is past president of the Business Men's Association, and his supporters say he has the backing of the Third Ward Republican organization.

Herbert Cook, former County Assessor, is a candidate for alderman in the Nineteenth Ward. He resides in Brookline, and was employed by the Tax Board 14 years.

De Luxe Sea Cruises Await Contestants

2 Will Go to Florida, Two to Boston, All Costs Paid

All ashore! All ashore! All ashore that's going ashore!

This is going to be the welcome order that will delight the ears of four readers of the Sun-Telegraph. Two of them will be bound for a 10-day ocean trip to Florida; two for a 7-day ocean trip to Boston.

Yes, these will be ocean cruises de luxe on the palatial steamships of the Merchants and Miners Line sailing out of Baltimore late this month or early in September.

These will be all expense paid trips, including railroad transportation and Pullmans from Pittsburgh to Baltimore and return, first-class staterooms on the boats and all meals. The Florida trip will include two days at Miami, then a sight-seeing tour through the Indian River country up to Daytona Beach, St. Augustine and Jacksonville. The Boston trip includes two days on the ocean each way, with three days in and around Boston, including historic Concord and Lexington.

What a snap this is going to be for four readers of the Sun-Telegraph—four delightful ocean cruises. This new contest will be open to everyone over 16 years of age, and will be known as "Contest Cruises." It will be short, easy and fascinating, and will begin in Thursday's Sun-Telegraph.

Watch tomorrow's Sun-Telegraph for final details.

PLEA FOR HOME BONDS MADE BY PRESIDENT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—(AP.)—Realty banks and financing associations were urged today by President Roosevelt to join the administration's campaign "to enable unfortunate home owners to save their homes" from foreclosures.

The executive's appeal, contained in a message to William Stevenson, chairman of the Home Loan Bank board, said private agencies could help by exchanging mortgages for bonds of the Home Owners Loan Corporation.

COOPERATION SOUGHT

His letter said:

"I desire through you to urge the building and loan associations and homestead associations, and savings banks of the country to render aid in the campaign the administration is waging to enable unfortunate home owners to save their homes.

"They can do this, first, by showing a sympathetic attitude toward the plan for exchanging bonds of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation for mortgages on homes, and accepting them in cases where they can do so.

"Second, by joining the home loan banks and procuring funds from them to loan to distressed home owners whose loans are eligible to be discounted in the home loan bank, and thus build up a permanent reserve of long time credit in these institutions and relieve the Home Owners' Loan Corporation from the pressure of that class of loans, enabling that corporation to concentrate its resources on relief of those owners whose loans are not eligible.

TWO WORK TOGETHER

"These two institutions work hand in hand—the corporation being transient and designed to relive pressing and unusual needs, and the bank being permanent and designed to make provisions for current and continuing needs.

"Third, they can aid in developing the federal savings and loan association now about to be organized by the board, and thereby increase the available capital and lessen the load to be carried by the corporation as membership in one of those associations gives access to the rediscount facilities of the home loan banks."

The Home Owners Loan Corporation has $2,000,000,000 in 18-year 4 per cent bonds, the interest guaranteed by the government, which it will trade to mortgage holders for their mortgages on small homes.

The corporation has been pushing the issuance of the bonds.

Loan Corporation District Reduced

The Pittsburgh district of the Federal Home Owners' Loan Corporation has been reduced by four counties as the result of formation of a new district at Erie.

Jacob H. Mays, state manager of the corporation, announced the creation of the Erie branch during a visit to Pittsburgh yesterday. There are now 21 counties in the Pittsburgh territory. Erie, Warren, Crawford and McKean counties will be administered from Erie.

Mays declared he is highly pleased with the progress being made by the corporation in the state and particularly in Pittsburgh. He said:

"Pennsylvania is the only state where the corporation is now in full swing."

At Erie, the corporation has leased space in the Federal Building. Mays announced appointment of Charles H. Schloss, of Erie, as district manager; G. B. Munroe, of Warren, district appraiser, and Jess Jiuliante, of Erie, counsel.

U. S. Launches Racket War On Radio

Dick, who left Pittsburgh a year ago to become a crooning star of the films, gives an account of his Hollywood activities when Eleanor Barnes interviews him on the California Melodies program, heard over CBS-WJAS at 10.

Plans for Uncle Sam's war against kidnapers and racketeers in general are revealed tonight when Joseph B. Keenan, leader of the government's intensive campaign against crime, speaks to the nation over an NBC-WCAE network at 10:30.

'Trial by Jury'

Gilbert and Sullivan are very much on the air tonight. An NBC-KDKA program at 8 presents a tabloid version of their "Trial by Jury," with musical judge, jury, plaintiff and defendant.

And the rollicking nautical opera "Pinafore" is the CBS-WJAS feature at 10:45.

Mary Dickinson, lyric soprano, and Ralph Maser, basso, both Pittsburghers, sing on KDKA's Spotlight program at 6:30.

Heroine of '76

The story of heroic little Betty Zane, who saved Fort Henry in a combined Indian-British attack during the American Revolution, is dramatized in the Lives at Stake broadcast, over WCAE at 10.

When the patriots in the fort ran out of powder, the child ran to a nearby shed amid a hail of bullets and carried the needed ammuntion back in her apron.

Baseball Thriller

Baseball's "most sensational" inning is dramatized tonight when Ted Husing re-enacts the famous seventh stanza of the fourth game in the 1929 World Series.

Fans will remember that the Athletics scored 10 in the seventh to overcome the Cubs' eight-run lead.

Gilda Gray Here

Gilda Gray, originator of the "Shimmy," visits the WCAE studios tonight at 6, for a 15-minute program of her favorite songs.

Gangster Foe

Joseph B. Keenan, head of the government's anti-crime campaign, reveals his plans to rid America of gang terrorism in an address tonight over WCAE at 10:30.

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen:

Dwight Myer, KDKA plant manager explains for Marie Klemens that the captive balloon antenna is used only between one and six in the morning. The reason why KDKA signals are weaker some places in Pittsburgh is due to the distance from the city of the broadcasting equipment. KDKA uses a standard transmitter without any experimental gadgets for its regularly scheduled programs.

THAT'S THE BRIGHTEST, CLEANEST WASH I'VE EVER SEEN, MRS. CURTIS. THOSE SHEETS ARE 4 OR 5 SHADES WHITER THAN MINE
IT'S NICE OF YOU TO SAY SO
NEXT WASHDAY
I'M GLAD YOU TOLD ME, MRS. CURTIS! RINSO GETS CLOTHES SO WHITE THEY DON'T EVEN NEED TO BE BOILED

IT'S WONDERFUL FOR DISHES, TOO!

In tubs, Rinso soaks out dirt—clothes don't need to be scrubbed or boiled. The clothes last at least 2 or 3 times longer—women save $100 and more!

In washers—well, there never was a soap such as Rinso in any kind of washing machine! The makers of 40 famous washers recommend it. Economical; gives twice as much suds, cup for cup, as lightweight, puffed-up soaps. Try Rinso now!

Rinso

The biggest selling package soap in America

Bidding Valuation

Bidding valuation in Contract Bridge is the process of counting the probable and sure winners and losers in a player's own hand as well as in the combined hands of himself and partner. An accurate knowledge of the principles underlying bidding valuations is a primary requisite to reaching safely and surely a contract which may be made. As in Contract Bridge the trick is the unit upon which all bids are based, it is essential, in order that makable games or Slams may be undertaken, and unmakable games and Slams not bid, that the player thoroughly understands the stuff that tricks are made of.

There are two distinct methods in general use by which hands are valued in the bidding: First, to give fixed, mathematically determined trick-taking value to various honor combinations, trumps, long suits and short suits; and, second, an inferential process based on the elimination of losers as the bidding proceeds around the table.

The first method is known as the Distributional Count, and the second is known as Plastic Valuation. Using the Distributional Count, the process consists of counting winners in the player's hand and then, through a bid or series of bids, conveying the information as to the total winners held. The second method consists of a picturization or count of losers as partner's responses and opponents' Overcalls disclose the probable distribution of honor strength in the various hands as well as the length of suits. Either method, thoroughly mastered, will bring good results, and, in fact, the second is based on the first. Thus, in order to properly use the Plastic Valuation method of determining the value of a hand, the student must first master certain features of the Distributional Count. The most important of these features is the honor-trick table, which is the cornerstone of all bidding valuation.

The Distributional Count is the mathematical manner of solving the problem of valuation. Hence, like all other mathematical formulas, it requires for its success great precision in its application. By reason of the close following of a mathematical formula in the application of the Distributional Count, this method is not as elastic as the Plastic Valuation method, through which losers are eliminated as the bidding proceeds. Expert players, almost without exception, subconsciously use Plastic Valuation in making their bids, and some of the contracts which they reach and make are striking examples of the precision of the workings of the expert mind.

The expert player, of course, first masters the honor-trick table, and uses it, perhaps subconsciously, as the basis of all his bids and responses, though he also applies the principles of Plastic Valuation, which is based upon partnership inferences. Thus the Culbertson Standard Table of Honor-Tricks is indispensable, whether the Distributional Count or Plastic Valuation is used.

The table below gives the defensive value of honors—that is, the value of high cards or combinations of cards against the opponents' contract. The total of these honor-tricks is the minimum defensive value of a hand.

Today's Question

Both sides vulnerable. The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1♣	Pass	2 NT	Pass
5♣	Pass	?

You, South, hold:

♠ A 9 8 4 ♡ A 10 ◇ Q J 6 3 ♣ Q 5 4

What do you bid?

Answer: Six clubs. Although South hasn't much more than a minimum two-notrump response, his partner's bidding has been very strong. Over two notrump North not only declined to bid three clubs, which bid would have been an inferential Force, but he even considered his hand too strong to bid only four clubs, which would have forced South to bid five. Since North is strong enough to bid five all by himself, only encouraged by South's two-no-trump bid, South, in view of the fact that his two-notrump bid is predicated on two Aces and the Queen of trumps, must bid six. The five-club bid is a Slam try, and South has three very important cards which should enable North to successfully play the hand at six clubs.

BOARD TO SCAN MINE OFFER

Offer of the United States Coal and Supply Company to limit operation of its mine in Wenzel avenue at West Liberty avenue to five years was being considered today by residents of the district.

More than 50 homeowners signed a petition opposing resumption of the mine, a subsidiary of the Pittsburgh Coal Company. A hearing is scheduled Friday before the Zoning Board of Appeals.

The mine company seeks to build a new trestle, fanhouse and power station. Attorney Robert N. Grier, representing the company, agreed before the board yesterday that other unsightly buildings would be eliminated, weeds cut down and a stagnant stream cleaned and kept open.

Louis Beinhauer and Attorney George W. Richards, representing the homeowners, were to confer with opponents of the plan as to whether the company's offer would be accepted. The company reported 300,000 tons of coal remained to be mined.

Tire King Divorced, Actresses Blamed

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 8.—(AP.)—Mrs. Sylvia Dunlap won a divorce yesterday from William C. Dunlap, tire company president, on her Superior Court testimony that he has asociated with other women, two of whom she identified as Helene Chadwick and Nancy Torres, actresses.

BURGESS FIGHTS WAGE CUTS

A court battle loomed today between Aspinwall Council and Burgess L. W. Hagmaier over Council's proposed wage slash for borough employes.

Charging the Council with violation of municipal law and the spirit of the National Industrial Recovery Act in slashing wages of all borough employes 12½ to 27 per cent, Burgess Hagmaier declared he would take court action to prevent the cuts.

Members of Council said working hours of the employes had all been reduced in connection with the proposed cut. They also declared the NRA provides no code for borough employes.

BANDITS BIND YOUTH IN SHOP

Two holdup men entered the Majestic Cleaning and Tailoring Company, 125 Collins avenue, East Liberty, late yesterday, bound and gagged V. DeCarlo, 19, of 6041 Stanton avenue, and ransacked the office, according to a report to police.

Morris Snyder, manager, reported he found DeCarlo bound and locked in a rear room, and that the latter said two men had entered the shop, one threatening him with a gun. Snyder said no large amount of money was taken.

TURN TO AUTOMATIC GAS HEAT

The big reduction in the cost of Gas Heat—made possible by the low Natural Gas rates now in effect—wipes out completely the only reason anyone ever had for denying himself the comfort and convenience of Automatic Gas Heat.

Everyone wants Gas Heat. Everyone wants the comfort, convenience and cleanliness of Gas Heat. Everyone wants freedom from dust, ashes, running up and down stairs and all the other disagreeable chores that always go along with older-fashioned bulky fuels.

And now, with current gas rates cutting the cost of Gas Heat so substantially, thousands who have never before gotten beyond the wanting and wishing stage, find that they can have Gas Heat at a cost that is surprisingly low—little if any higher than they have been accustomed to with less satisfactory, less modern fuels.

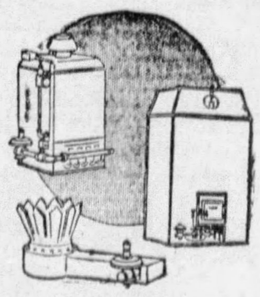
No wonder, then, that the trend this year is toward Gas Heat!

You'll want Gas Heat, too, when you know how little it actually costs.

So why not find out—NOW. Simply get in touch with your Gas Company, or heating contractor, and ask for an accurate estimate of the cost of heating your home this clean modern way. Such an estimate can be made quickly—and very accurately—and it won't cost a cent. Send in the coupon below.

You'll be surprised at the low cost—and once you use Natural Gas you'll never go back to other fuels again.

FREE
Your Gas Company will give you, free of charge, an accurate estimate of the cost of Automatic Gas Heat for your home. Send in the coupon today.



You can enjoy Automatic Gas Heat with a Gas Boiler or Furnace, or by changing your present heating plant over to Gas with a Conversion Burner.

Your Gas Company will be glad to supply you or your heating contractor—without cost—with reliable engineering data on your present or contemplated gas heating installation.

Is It Cheap and Vulgar for An Engaged Girl to Flirt?

Is flirting "just innocent fun"—or is it cheap and vulgar? Would you marry a girl who went in for it in a Big Way? Bert would like to know; for his Juliet is like that. Should he trust her? Or get out, while the getting's good?

Dear Elsie Robinson:

I have a problem that I would like your opinion on. It certainly has me going around in circles.

I am engaged to a very attractive girl, and we have planned to be married before long, I being fortunate enough to have a job, even in these times.

But here is where the trouble comes in. She seems to think that it is all right for her to flirt with other men, and even to accept invitations to go out riding with very casual acquaintances.

There are certain evenings in the week when I don't see her. She is supposed, on those evenings, to go to a girl friend's home to sew or play cards. But I have found out that what they really do is go out to some dance hall, where they spend more than the evening with boys they meet there—said boys finally driving them home in the small hours of the morning.

BECAME ANGRY

Now I don't like this. Maybe I am just jealous. That is what she says. Anyway, I have told her many times that a nice girl, or even a really sensible one, wouldn't want to do that sort of thing. I have told her that I didn't think she would do it if she really loved me. But all to no avail.

Finally things came to a showdown, and I told her that if she persisted in doing it, I would break our engagement and call it quits.

She became very peeved, and said she saw nothing wrong in going out with other men, or in flirting with them. Just because this girl she chums with runs around with any Tom, Dick or Harry, she seems to think it is perfectly okay for her to—and she says that I'm being a crab if I object.

She insists she is in love with me, and I certainly am in love with her. But I am sure hurt by the way she acts, and by having my friends ridicule me, and call her a "good-for-nothing."

It doesn't seem to me that she is doing right, for a girl engaged to be married. I would like to know what you think of her. Maybe, if she sees this in your column, she will realize she is doing wrong. Or—maybe I am the one who is wrong! She seems to think I am, and that she is just having an innocent good time.

Please help me. Shall I marry her, or break with her?

BERT.

Are you wrong?

Wotta chance, son! You're absolutely right!

What do I think of her? Do you really want me to tell you? Then you'll have to take it on the chin. I think she is a silly, disloyal little tramp, and mighty poor wife-material for any man.

Would she stand for it, if you started whooping it up, giving other gals the Glad-Eye, and packing them home in time to meet the milk man? Are you asking me? She'd be the maddest Mamma in seven states—and she would lose no time telling you where to get off! Yet it's jake for her. Does that show a willingness to play fair—or does it? I'm asking.

SOUND ADVICE

Then I wouldn't advise you to marry her. I would not! Not unless she is willing to change both her ideas and her ways.

In the first place, no girl with a grain of good taste or real regard for herself would do as you say she is doing, even if she weren't engaged. And no girl with an ounce of real love or loyalty to you would "see nothing wrong" in flirting with every other man who crossed her path.

So—I'd advise you to get going while the going is good. She doesn't love you. The only human being on earth that she loves is herself.

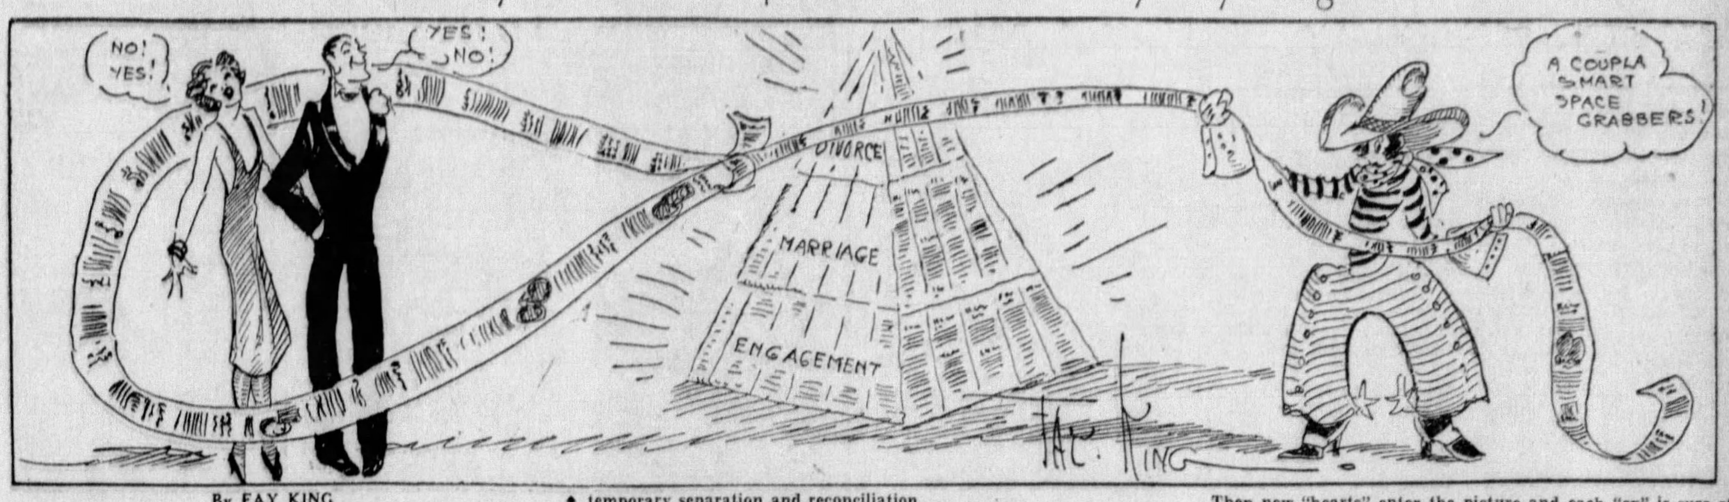
Publicity's Three Trump Cards Disclosed by Fay King



By FAY KING

The engagement is good for denial, admission, a break, and surprise marriage.

The marriage is good for happiness stories, rumors of discord, temporary separation and reconciliation.

The divorce should be good for denials, admissions, to start it, to stop it; and when it is obtained, going about together should reap a series of remarriage rumors.

Then new "hearts" enter the picture and each "ex" is sure of another good bit by offering "congrats" to the successor.

It's a great game if you can stand the gaff and those who play it seem to love it!

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Hemophilia Is Easy to Detect

A short time ago I received many requests for information about a disease known as "hemophilia." It was not until I attended a movie and saw the picture "Rasputin" that I understood why so many of these inquiries were appearing in my mail. The story of Rasputin is based on the fact that the czar's only son was a sufferer from hemophilia.

Dr. Copeland

Among the letters was one from a young girl who said she was a "bleeder." This is the name given to an individual afflicted with hemophilia. Sufferers from this disease bleed upon the slightest provocation.

I am confident that this girl is not afflicted with this disease. I say this without hesitancy because hemophilia rarely occurs in females. It is a hereditary disease transmitted by the female, but found only in the male offspring.

A daughter may inherit the tendency but show no sign of the disease. She is not a bleeder, but if she marries and has a male child he is likely to be afflicted with hemophilia. He is a bleeder. Unfortunately, once the disease is implanted in a family it will continue being handed down until that family becomes extinct. The victim of this disease is susceptible to bleeding, even to severe hemorrhage. One attack may prove fatal.

The bleeding may begin with a simple blow or injury, such as a scratch, a fall or a push. The disease may be present for many years and accidentally be discovered by the bleeding after a slight abrasion, cut, extraction of a tooth, or the removal of tonsils. In these cases the bleeding is sudden, unexpected and severe.

When the tendency is unsuspected and the subject has a minor operation such as the removal of tonsils and adenoids, the sufferer may bleed to death. Within recent years this danger has been minimized by the routine use of a special examination called the "bleeding and coagulation time test." This is used in suspected cases of hemophilia and on all children admitted to a hospital for operation.

The cause of hemophilia has never been discovered. Much research work has been conducted all over the world in an effort to solve this problem. Within recent years the disease has assumed less dangerous significance, because of its early recognition.

Household Hints

Sprinkle cloves 'round parts infested with ants, and the insects will disappear.

When rubbers or overshoes have become hard from the rain, rub them with castor oil as hot as the hands can bear it. Work well into the material with fingers and let stand for a short time.

A Sequel to Heart Of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge's Attention Diverted to an Old Jealousy

My first furtive glance at Dicky when he had come into the room showed me that not anger, not contrition, nor yet indifference—the three reactions I had feared from his hearing of the message from "Floss"—was swaying him. To my astonishment and, I was sure, to Lillian's also, he looked distinctly embarrassed, almost shame-faced; and those expressions are so foreign to the face of my imperious and careless husband that I wondered what had befallen him. It was no ordinary happening, I was sure, that would bring him back to the hotel so soon after leaving it in a rage.

"Has Ede been here?"

This was his salutation to both of us, and by it I measured the importance to him of his query, for Dicky is usually most punctilious in his courtesy. And an old pain, a jealous pang that I had not felt for months, leaped within me at my husband's tense utterance of that name.

"Ede!" How often had I secretly writhed at hearing upon my husband's lips the familiar nickname of the woman who, I knew, had loved him so long—and so hopelessly.

REMEMBERS INCIDENT

My mind soared back to the first time I had seen Edith, years ago, when she and her sister, Leila, had seen Dicky across a crowded hall, and recognized him. They were like delicate flowers in their exquisite beauty, with their air of having been sheltered from birth from every ungentle wind, and their presence in that milling crowd was something incongruous.

Dicky had explained, a little hesitantly, that they were two Virginia girls of old and distinguished family, who, with the slenderest of means, had come north to study "Art with a big A," as he expressed it. But I had seen in his words, as well as in his later actions, that while his brain gibed at Edith's limitations, and her absurd ambitions, her artistic instincts went out to her undeniable beauty, while his chivalry was aroused by the sweet, clinging-vine helplessness of the two sisters.

It was chivalry shared by other members of the artist colony in an old historic building to which the girls had drifted. Lillian, I knew, had rendered them both many signal services, and she had rejoiced with the others when Leila turned her back upon her futile ambitions and married Alfred Durkee, youthful art editor and old friend of Dicky.

But Edith had struggled on, rejecting several offers of marriage.

However, Edith's greatest wish was no secret, either. Whether she ever had told Dicky about it in so many words I did not know, did not wish to know. But "he who ran might read" her adoration of Dicky, and once, in a time of great danger to Dicky, she had flamed out at me that she loved him with a greater, far less selfish love than mine.

GOOD BUSINESS WOMAN

She had asked my forgiveness for that outburst later, and we had patched up a friendship that had been welded still more firmly by her signal service in helping Hugh Grantland to rescue Junior after Grace Draper had kidnaped him.

But the last three years preceding this query of Dicky's as to her whereabouts had worn that friendship thin. The fate that had thrown Dicky and Edith together in the ownership of a struggling art magazine had developed unsuspected business ability in her. As an artist, she was what Dicky calls "a washout," but as a business woman she had saved the struggling magazine from bankruptcy and put it on a paying basis for herself and for Dicky.

It was the height of absurdity, I knew, for me to be jealous at Dicky's apparently anxious query, but I could not control the nervous fear of something unknown which swept over me, although—I offered incense before my own special little joss for the boon—I was able to conceal my tremors and to say coolly:

"No, she hasn't been here. Did you expect to find her here?"

That my husband found something irritating in my apparently innocent query was apparent, as he looked at me sharply, and then said snarlingly:

"No, I didn't expect to find her here. I don't hope to find her here. I shall be ready for Bellevue if she does heave in sight. But there was a distinct possibility that she would show up here, and I had to know about it."

"What's the matter, Dicky bird?" Lillian cooed sweetly. "Is our Edith getting temperamental again?"

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

The Man's Responsibility

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—The girls of my club have planned a roller skating party, and each girl is to invite a young man friend. I have already asked a friend to escort me, and now a discussion comes up when I want Mother to give me the fare. She believes that I am making myself cheap by paying for this young man, whom I also asked to our Prom.

If it is right to pay for this young man, shall I give him the money to pay for us both? This seems rather an embarrassing situation and I would certainly like to do what is correct.

2—Is my letter-paper correct, and is it permissible to write on the opposite side of the page like this?

I am 16 years of age, if this will help you in your decision.

W.

1—I agree with your mother that it would be less embarrassing if you leave it as the young man's responsibility to pay the fare to the party.

2—Your long, one-sheeted letter paper is more appropriate for a young man to use than for a young lady. This sort of paper is apt to take on a masculine look or a professional look. If you want your paper to register being a social paper, I suggest that you get yourself the conventional white or light gray double-sheeted paper.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

During Walter Winchell's two weeks' holiday, his column will be written by celebrated friends.

Portrait of a "Ham" Talking to Himself

By Eddie Cantor

Where does this guy Winchell get off asking me to write his column . . . It will help him take a vacation . . . A much needed rest . . . He says . . . Does he think I've been sitting in the park all these months . . . HE needs a rest . . . What about my vacation? . . . And if he thinks I'm going to fill his column with gags he's nerts . . . Plain scar-rew-ey . . . Say, if I had two good gags my first radio program for the fall would be set . . . I know what I'll do . . . I'll keep rambling along like this . . . rest a while . . . put in some more of these . . . rest periods I call 'em . . . and the first thing you know I'll be down to the bottom of the column.

You've got to hand it to that guy Winchell, at that . . . Up until last year he was just a peddler of gossip . . . True, he created a style . . . Coined a lot of new words and expressions . . . But he must have realized that a line like "L. G. has phffft with that banker's son" only covered a radius of 17 blocks . . . Broadway, bounded on the south by 42nd St. and on the north by 59th St. . . . He woke up one morning and found out that there were millions of people from New York to California who didn't know "L. G." or the "banker's son" and what's more, didn't give a damn . . . He started writing about things that were national in scope . . . Problems that those millions of human beings were interested in . . . Unemployment . . . Charity . . . President's Day . . . Hitler . . . Banks . . . No gags . . . Constructive thoughts that brought results . . . And with it the realization that he was not just a Broadway columnist with a night club complexion and an eye to the keyhole . . . But a newspaperman with his ear to the ground . . . And his finger on the pulse of the nation . . . My six and seven-eighths is off for the first time to a columnist who, while digging dirt, discovered gold . . . And as far as I'm concerned he can change the title of his column from "Your Broadway and Mine" to "Your Country and Mine" . . . By the way, Walter, that beautiful blonde you saw me with in Reuben's the other night is my sister-in-law!

Every actor I've met in the past two months plans to appear in Chicago during the World's Fair . . . Looks like there's going to be more actors than visitors in the Windy City this summer . . . A good slogan might be "One Actor to Every Visitor" . . . I can see now the trains coming in at the depots and the actors rushing up to the people . . . "I sing and dance and work in blackface" . . . "I carry six stooges and play a clarinet" . . . "Don't take him, support the legit" . . . I've played every role from Hamlet to Ingomar and can shave you in the morning" . . . I can even see the actors giving auditions on the Twentieth Century and the Broadway Limited en route to Chicago . . . And speaking of auditions . . . If we radio "hams" insist on having audiences at our broadcasts next season the sponsors may have to hold auditions to pick the best laughers . . . Can you picture this scene: "So you want a pass for the broadcast . . . "You're a good laugher, eh?" . . . Well, lets see . . . Listen to this gag . . . My father's a great engineer . . . He makes locomotives . . . That's nothing . . . My father is a commuter and makes two trains a day . . . Hee-Hee! . . . No, we can't pass you . . . We don't want snickerers . . . No gigglers . . . We're looking for belly-laughers . . . Practice laughing and come back next week."

Here's one thing I'll bet that Winchell never knew till now. . . . That one of the most influential generals in the Chinese army is Morris Cohen . . . Better known as "Two-Gun Cohen" . . . One of my people. . . Get that, Walter . . . GENERAL MORRIS COHEN . . . There's a story for you. . . A former dry-goods clerk in his father's store in Manchester, England. . . Ran away from home. . . To Canada. . . Carried a pack on his back. . . Peddling "Jewish Hardware" . . . Clothing, to you, you dope. . . Joined the Canadian army when the World War broke out . . . The champ marksman of his division . . Could hit the mark with a gun in either hand . . . That's why they called him "Two-Gun Cohen" . . . In No Man's Land he was put in charge of Chinese laborers . . . The almond-eyed guys called him "Cohen Moisha" . . . They got him interested in their national land. Well, it's really hard to explain how it was done. . . We have process shots and. . . Yes, you can send me a picture of your little boy. . . Yes, of course. . . He must be clever. . . Well, he won't get that kind of money right away. . . Thanks. . . I'll see you later. . . Walter, you must make this trip sometime. . . No, Miss, I don't mind posing with your sister. . . How do you do. . . Here? . . No, but I never smile. . . Alright, I'll try. . . Sure I'll put my arm around you. . . No, Ida isn't jealous. . . No, we haven't got six girls. . . It's only five. . . You're welcome. . . You see, Walter, I've got eleven more days to answer these questions and my vacation is over. . . I'll bet right now you wish yours was, too. . . Guys like you and I will get a good rest when we are no longer useful. . . And the public insists that we take a long vacation. . . Without pay. . . And without any regrets we should answer: "O. K. Mr. and Mrs. America, it was nice being with you."

Muses Moved But Mirth Remains

By GEORGE SEIBEL

That Summer Playhouse which invited the Muses to Fox Chapel, having been driven by some fire ordinance to seek other quarters, loaded all nine of the Pierian ladies upon the cart of Thespis and moved to the Arnold School Auditorium, somewhere in the pastoral solitude between Homewood and Wilkinsburg. There a new comedy, "Goodby Again," was presented last night and proved that Allan Scott and George Haight have the right recipe for cream puffs and gin fizzes.

Mr. Seibel

The farce is in the vein Noel Coward has opened, but somewhat more heroic. There's a literary gentleman who is on a lecture tour for some theatrical combination, and he carries his secretary with him—and that young lady, played with wonderful reserve by Helen Wayne, is working at her typewriter while he, presented with effusive effervescence by Robert Gill, is still asleep in the other bed.

It all happens in a Cleveland hotel, where the lecturer's old flame, married six years since her romance, finds him again and starts a new romance. She has a husband of the genial idiot type, who comes to the hotel to see the literary lion his wife always casts up to him. The wife's sister and her adorer, learned in the law, also come to the hotel, and then all sorts of emotional and legal complications result.

Through the sublimely stupid portrayal of George Rowland, Jr., a rare bit of comedy, and the admirably officious characterization by Raymond Neyhart, these complications are made to yield plenty of laughter. Not a point was missed—not a line was lost. James W. Macfarlane also has a brief scene carried through with sure touch. Eloise Campbell was a model maid, the wife was well portrayed by Jean Barnes Wolfe, and the sister by Margaret Bertram.

It was a well-selected cast, and had been directed in masterly fashion by Theodore Viehman. Once again this aggregation of players showed that good acting is not confined to Broadway and Hollywood, and that spicy comedy will fizz even in the purlieus of Wilkinsburg. One of the best things this Summer Playhouse has done, it ought to draw goodly audiences to the new and more accessible theater.

Dance Benefit for Ninth Ward Needy

A dance and floor show for the benefit of needy families of the Ninth Ward will be held at Paris Lake, off Washington road, tomorrow evening. V. J. Rodgers is general chairman.

Harris—Beechview To Open Aug. 18

The Olympic Theater, Beechview, recently acquired by the Harris Amusement Company, is undergoing extensive renovations that will put it in the class of the finest of neighborhood theaters in Pittsburgh. Senator Frank J. Harris, president of the company, announces today the theater will be rechristened the Harris-Beechview and that a "grand opening" will take place Friday, August 13. New type sound apparatus, said to give a wider range of tones, is being installed. Also, a new type screen, which insures against eye-strain, and will give a clearer, more life-like picture. There also will be new furnishings, including modern seats.

Ruth Etting's Voice Once Was Squeaky

Ruth Etting, now with RKO Radio Pictures, says her parents made her stop singing around the old homestead near David City, Neb., because her voice was high and squeaky. She sang in a cafe in Chicago, without pr except tips. She wore three pairs of stockings to make her legs look good while she was a chorine in a night club revue. Months later she was the star of the show when it was discovered that the squeaky-voiced girl could croon baritone.

Old Rug for Vamping Is Hauled Out

The same bear rug that witnessed many of the old Theda Bara vamping scenes was hauled out of moth-ball storage for scenes of "The Worst Woman in Paris?", the Jesse L. Lasky production for Fox. The rug is a relic of the days when no vamp was inspired unless bear and tiger skins covered the floors. Monta Bell is directing.

Raft to Be Dancer In 'All of Me'

Carole Lombard will be George Raft's leading woman in "All of Me," in which Raft will portray an internationally famous dancer. Carey Wilson is now at work on the story.

Captain

South Hills Prepares

The South Hills Community Players is preparing plans for the coming season. Edward Blaine of Dormont will continue in the capacity of director. He has had theatrical experience in New York and Hollywood, and directed the society's two productions of last winter, "Let Us Be Gay" and "Just Married."

A musical comedy, "College Sweethearts," of which Mr. Blaine is the author, will be given in October. Music for this presentation has been written by Kenneth Wrigley, also of Dormont.

Five productions will be given by the South Hills Community Players this season. Besides the musical comedy mentioned there will be "The Queen's Husband," by Robert Sherwood, and "Berkley Square" by John Balderson, as well as two others. All presentations will be given in the Washington School, Mt. Lebanon.

Jean Harlow To Be Good In Film

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 8.—Prepare for a surprise—they are planning to let Jean Harlow play a virtuous heroine for a change.

The platinum-haired star, who has been the girl of experience in "Red-Headed Woman," "Hold Your Man" and currently in "Bomb Shell," learns to say no in "Age of Larceny," a new story that Anita Loos and John Emerson are writing for her.

In the coming vehicle, Jean is seen as a working girl who knows all the answers but keeps the men at arm's length, even the rich and handsome hero.

But for Metro-Goldwn-Mayer's desire not to type her, Jean might have gone on playing the other type of roles indefinitely. The fans are simply fighting to pay their quarters and half dollars into the box office.

For quick answers, none surpasses Alice Brady. The other day, rehearsing a scene, a Frenchman was supposed to grab her shoulders and prevent her from rushing into a crowd. In doing so, he got a whiff of exotic perfume.

Over his shoulder, he said to Maureen O'Sullivan in French:

"What marvelous perfume Miss Brady is wearing!"

Right back came Alice:

"Good heavens, man! You're supposed to hold me, not smell me!"

The dark glasses Richard Dix wears these days conceal an elegant shiner. As it happens, he came by it quite honestly. Every morning, Rich saddles his horse, Brownie, and lets her have her head. She usually runs hard to the end of Rich's quarter-section, then takes it easy on her way back to the corral. The other day she varied the return trip with a sudden bolt. Rich ducked but the corral pole caught him above the eye. Minutes later he came to on the ground and found the horse standing waiting for him. An inch lower and the blow might have been permanently disfiguring.

Dining at Joan Crawford's house, Laurence Olivier, Greta Garbo's leading man, made this interesting revelation: A London actor's registry still carries an entry in faded ink: "Ronald Colman—not good for motion pictures" . . . Incidentally, Herbert Marshall is occupying Colman's house during his absence in Europe. He also has Ronnie's valet.

Clark Gable is sufficiently recovered to talk on a bedside telephone. He will not be leaving the hospital, however, for another 10 days . . . House guest of Marie Dressler is Mrs. Robert Morris Phillips, New York socialite. They'll see the Santa Barbara fiesta together . . . Ed Wynn, of all people, is collecting autographs. He says they are for his niece in the East.

To the delight of a large crowd on the Ocean Park Pier, Mae Murray and Maj. Ernst Udet, German flying ace, staged a marksmanship contest at a shooting gallery the other evening. What is more, Mae leveled 11 tin ducks to the major's 10.

Some 2-year-old youngster in the World's Fair baby show may get a part in a motion picture. Al Rogell, Columbia director, seeks such a child for an important role in Jack Holt's new picture which will have a World's Fair background.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

May 'Beegle, who conducts a concert series of her own booking as well as looking after those of the Art Society and visiting orchestras, last year added the Clare Tree Major Children's Theater, of New York, to her activities, and has decided to manage the local appearances of the same theater again. There will be a series of six plays for children at 10:30 o'clock Saturday morning, about once a month after the series begins. Miss Major's company, all professional actors, has been coming to Pittsburgh for several seasons giving plays appropriate for youngsters. Well, that much is assured the theater in the new season, anyway.

Louis O. Macloon, Los Angeles producer, here for a visit with his parents, has offered to let the Summer Playhouse present a new play by an English author, the rights to which he holds. The work is dramatic, "The Winding Journey," by Philip Leaver, and it is to be produced in England with Gertrude Lawrence heading the cast. Mr. Macloon, who is en route to New York, had intended to permit one of the summer theaters of the east to try out the play now thinks he would like to see it done here. The matter is being considered by the Summer Playhouse, which already has one new play on its list, "Two to Make Ready," by Helen Mason, to be presented the week of August 21. Mr. Macloon's desire in the matter is to bring in a California actress, Ann Ryman, to play the feminine lead, and Luther Reed, motion picture director, to direct.

Walter Hampden, who is spending the summer on his farm among the hills of Connecticut, will let the folks of New York see his new version of Victor Hugo's "Ruy Blas" October 16, the engagement there to be followed by a coast-to-coast tour.

The production of "She Loves Men Not" will require that the stage be divided into six sections and two playing levels. The play, just completed by Howard Lindsay, spending the summer in the Tyrol, of Austria, will be presented in September by Dwight Deere Wiman and Tom Watherely. It is 16 scenes and has 18 speaking characters as well as supernumaries. It is a farce with music, adapted from Edward Hope's novel of the same title.

Connelly Stays On To Write 'Alice'

Marc Connelly, author of the Pulitzer prize play, "Green Pastures," has renewed his contract with Paramount, and, at his own request, will work on the screen play of "Alice in Wonderland," with Joseph Mankiewicz and Director Norman McLeod. The studio announces that it has closed its search to find an Alice.

By Mark Hellinger

The Prize

THE MEMBERS of the Parole Board sat around the highly polished hardwood table. The members numbered five. The white-haired old man at the head of the table was the chairman, He was Judge Engle, one of the most respected jurists of the past decade.

At his right sat Joshua Newton, traction magnate. At his left was Dominick Paretto, eminent attorney. Besides those three, there were Mrs. Henry Billings, of the Welfare Society, and William Denton, who owned a chain of grocery stores.

The five were all old. They shortened the time of convicts, while the clock shortened their time . . .

Newton and Denton were discussing golf scores when Judge Engle arose to speak. They stopped and turned toward him.

"What I have to say," he began in a ponderous, deep voice, "is of the utmost importance. Throughout the years during which we have labored together in the exercise of mercy, I have found each of you to be of impeccable character.

"Yet, during the past three weeks, most of the newspapers have called you—and me, too!—some very bad names. One, I recall, was dunderheads."

The board laughed.

"This," added the Judge, "is no laughing matter. If this board is to continue to fuction properly it must do as the newspapers demand: Curb the jail breaks! No less than 14 hardened criminals have made their way to freedom during the past three months.

"Needless to say, that is far above the average. I've given the matter considerable thought, and I have no compunction about confessing that I have no really constructive suggestions to make."

The Judge sat down. The other members of the board glanced at each other in silence. A few minutes passed. No one spoke. Suddenly Mrs. Billings cleared her throat and stood.

"Judge," she said quietly, "I have an idea. It may not be a sound one, and it is probably not new by any means. But I think we should consider it, along with any others which may be offered.

"My idea is this: Why not send a letter to each prisoner in the penitentiary, asking him how he would manage the prison if he were a member of this board? We could offer a prize for the best answer, and may find a gem or two in the replies."

The Judge stared at Mrs. Billings for a moment. Suddenly, he clapped his hands together noisily.

"Mrs. Billings," he said enthusiastically, "you have hit upon something which is a credit to your intelligence and farsightedness. If the other members will give us their approval, we will put your idea into operation at once.

"If prisoners escape, why not go to the prisoners about it? If there is something wrong with our system, as the newspapers say, why not ask the prisoners what is wrong? It is an excellent idea. A fine idea."

The voting was unanimous. Within 24 hours, mimeograph machines were running off several thousand letters, which would later be addressed to each prisoner in the penitentiary.

Jimmy Caten was in the act of reading the Crime of the Month book when his letter arrived. He placed the book carefully under the mattress, and opened the letter. When he finished it, he smiled.

And when he finished writing his suggestions, he smiled again . . .

For Jimmy was a bad man. He was known to be the best—or worst, as you prefer—shakedown man in the state. His racket was to get a line on the weaknesses of wealthy, well-known men.

The next step was to go to these men and blackmail them for whatever sum it might be worth to keep quiet. In most cases Jimmy's clients paid. In a few cases they resisted. That's why he was in jail.

But Jimmy was by no means dumb. Had he chosen to direct his ideas along the so-called proper channels he might have become a congressman, or worse, a prohibition agent. But Jimmy, many years ago, thought the matter over, and decided to become a racket man.

Three weeks elapsed before the Parole Board could decide who had won the prize. Then, when the reporters and photographers had arrived, Judge Engle and his fellow members met in the Penitentiary auditorium, looked over their spectacles at the assembled prisoners, and announced their decision.

"Gentlemen," said the judge in his deepest voice, "my words will be both brief and direct. As regards the contest to submit ideas for better management of institutions such as this, the members of this board had a difficult time deciding the winner.

"We have finally, after great deliberation, hit upon a common choice. The name of the winner is James Caten, and the prize which I will award right now is $250."

When the guard signaled, Jimmie arose from his bench and climbed over the knees of his fellow prisoners. Judge Engle presented a check to him, which was promptly taken by the warden, who gave it to the property clerk for safe keeping.

Jimmie's idea of prison reform and management were simple. The first requisite, he stated, was to eliminate graft. The second was that favoritism for the wealthy prisoner should be abandoned so as not to discriminate against the penniless guy. The third was that prisoners, instead of spending 22 out of 24 hours in their cells, should be given work to do. The fourth was to use the honor system wherever advisable.

Three months later Jimmie left the penitentiary. The man who had won the prize for an essay on prison management was ready to say goodbye to the joint that had kept him within its walls for a year.

After saying goodbye to a few friends he started out. He walked down the long corridors with the well-wishes of his friends lingering in his ears. He was glad to leave, but there was the same cheerful sadness to it that comes to a voyager who bids adieux to fellow passengers when he reaches port.

"Goodbye," Jimmie yelled. "If I see you mugs again, it'll be on the outside."

A few moments later, he was in the warden's office. The warden was seated at his desk. Jimmie shook hands with him.

"S'long, Chief," Jimmie said. "Don't give my any advice. I've heard it all before. Thanks for being nice about everything."

Jimmie walked on to the custodian's office. He was given the customary $20, and the customary handshake.

"S'long, Jim," said the custodian. "Take care of yourself, and don't come back. That $250 you won in the prison management contest ought to keep you going until you get a job. Where is it, by the way? Inna bank?"

Jimmie smiled good-naturedly.

"Bank, the devil!" he said. "I used that $250 to beat another rap!" . . .

Will Rogers' Daughter Confesses Daze

Will Rogers' daughter Mary, who is using the name of Mary Howard in her film debut in Buddy De Sylva's musical production, "My Weakness," for Fox, confessed that her first few days before a camera were passed in more or less of a daze.

"It was all so new to me," she said. "I've scarcely ever been in a studio before in my life, and being the only newcomer in the company, it was pretty hard to catch onto all the angles right at the start."

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

In Mayfair —With— Patricia Pitt

Today I can tell you who's who in the bridal party for the wedding of Sallie Gibson and Franklin Farrel III, of New Haven, Conn., to take place Saturday, September 9, in Calvary Episcopal Church.

Sallie, who's the daughter of the junior John Gibsons, will have as her maid of honor, Virginia Pike, of Rochester, N. Y., who has been in Nova Scotia with the Gibsons.

List Aides

Mary Gordon and Marjorie Hillman will be bridesmaids, and so will Joan Lusk, of Ridgefield, Conn.; Gay Kurrus, of Mt. Pisgah, N. Y.; Susan Schriber, of Oshkosh, Wis.; and Helen Stevens, of Grenwich, Conn.

Little Marian Farrel, sister of the bridegroom-elect, will be flower girl.

Malcolm Farrel, of New Haven, will be his brother's best man, and John Gates, of New Haven;

Ushers Named

Stanford C. Mallory, of New York; John Cookman, of Englewood, N. J.; Frank Nelson, of Montclair, N. J.; Coleman Curtis, of Buffalo, N. Y.; and John Gibson, III, brother of the bride-to-be, will be ushers.

Still another addition to our debutante list for the approaching autumn! Young Annette Chester, daughter of the Roderick M. Chesters, will come out this fall, her parents have decided.

And the prospect is that she'll have two parties, one at Thanksgiving time and another at Christmas.

All of which shows that the debutantes have a new deal. During the past few years, many a girl didn't have a party given for her at all—her name just appeared on the list, and she was a guest at the few debutante entertainments that were given.

Annette went to Atlantic City this past week-end to join her mother.

It still isn't settled yet whether Antoinette Vilsack, home from abroad, will come out this winter or not. If she does make her debut, it will be in Pittsburgh and not in the South, although she expects to visit there this winter.

* * *

The J. Sidney Hammonds are coming back to town. They've been living, you know, in Phoenix, Ariz. They are planning to live in the Hotel Schenley Apartments instead of opening their Shady avenue house.

THEY'RE FOLLOWERS OF THE POLO PONIES

MARIE M'CAHILL CLIFTON BOCK STOCE MARGUERITE M'CAHILL

Three members of the Pittsburgh younger set who are among the most ardent of polo enthusiasts. The McCahill twins are leaving today with their parents to attend the Century of Progress Exposition and the East-West "World Series" polo matches to be played Sunday in Chicago. Alice W. Scanlon Nuptials Set For Today

At her marriage this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock in the Waverly Presbyterian Church to Edward Henry Wells, of Bloomfield, N. J., Miss Alice Walker Scanlon is to wear a peach colored lace dress with a matching small hat having a nose veil. She is to carry summer flowers.

Dr. David Howard Scanlon, of Durham, N. C., is to officiate, and Dr. Franklin T. Scanlon, of Morgantown, W. Va., is to give his niece in marriage.

The bride and bridegroom are to have no attendants. Serving as ushers are to be Ionel Gardescue, Purdum Snyder, Franklin T. Scanlon, Jr., and Raymond Parshall. A wedding supper in the Hotel Schenley will follow.

The bride is a daughter of the late Dr. and Mrs. Charles Scanlon, and a sister of Miss Mary B. Scanlon, Miss Ellen Scanlon and Mrs. Ionel Gardescue.

Schenley Amaranth To Hold Card Party

A card and bingo party will be held for the benefit of Schenley Court, No. 34, Order of the Amaranth on Monday evening, at 8:30 o'clock in Serbian Hall, Fifth avenue.

Hostesses will be Mrs. Vielta Johns, Mrs. Laura Allen, Mrs. Anna Ritchey and Mrs. Maisie Stanton.

Two Pittsburgh Girls Visit Adirondacks

Recent arrivals at Saranac Inn in the Adirondack were Miss Dorothy Hamilton and Miss Mary Harris, of Pittsburgh.

Important Club Events Arranged for Latter Part of Week

Two club events on Thursday and another Friday will engross a great number of Pittsburgh's clubwomen.

The Biography Club of the downtown division, University of Pittsburgh, will meet Thursday evening on the Heinz House veranda. The Pitt Women's Club is in charge of the program. Miss Katherine Shackelford is chairman, assisted by Miss Edith Walp, Miss Jessie Semple and Miss Madeline Frederick. Book reviews will be given by Miss Madeline Loughman, Miss Iona Morgenstern, Mrs. Bernie Nielander and Miss Helen Stalknecht.

The Business and Professional Women's Club is holding a dinner party on Thursday evening at the Westmoreland Country Club. Miss Aileen Clark, coloratura soprano, who is visiting in Pittsburgh, will sing.

Five members of the club who attended the Biennial International Convention and Century of Progress Exhibition will talk on their trip.

Friday will be women's guest day at the Edgewood Country Club. Members of the women's golf association of the club will be hostesses to the players at the luncheon following the match.

Gossipy Chat With Nancy Jane

Sailing is the hobby of one of the members of the smart set—Mrs. Bailey Balken. And she's good at it, too. She won several races on the Riviera this past winter. She's now in San Francisco visiting friends.

A little Scottie attending the opening Saturday of Longue Vue Country Club's new swimming and wading pools, went into a frenzy—not because of the new pools, but a chipmunk he couldn't chase, for his leash was too short.

* * *

Sunday at the informal game between the Iroquois polo team, of Lexington, Ky., and the Pittsburgh Polo and Riding Club, played out in Fox Chapel, there was the largest crowd in the history of the Pittsburgh team.

Clubwoman to Speak At Auxiliary Meet

Tomorrow evening at 7 o'clock there will be a meeting of the women's auxiliary of the Retail Master Bakers in the Fort Pitt Hotel. Mrs. John M. Phillips, prominent Pittsburgh clubwoman, will speak on "What Women Are Doing Today." There will be a buffet supper at 8 o'clock and a musical program featuring Miss Marie Vernon and Miss Marietta DeNardo.

Republican Committee Plans Grove Picnic

Miss Mildred Nordman Wed to Henry Tuggle

On Saturday evening at 6:30 o'clock Miss Mildred Nordman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Nordman, of Dormont, became the bride of Henry V. Tuggle, son of Mrs. James Ferguson, of Atlanta, Ga.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white satin and carried roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Helen Ayers, a cousin of the bride, as maid of honor, wore pink net and carried pink roses and blue delphium. G. Edward O'Donnell was best man and Miss Mae O'Donnell played the wedding music. Miss Sara Buchner sang preceding the ceremony.

FIRST COOL MORNINGS BRING OUT LITTLE WOOLEN DRESSES

TO PLUNGE again into the post-summer round of shopping luncheons in town and matiness, you'll thank your lucky stars if you own a neat little woolen dress. One you can slip into in a jiffy on a cool morning. One you'll cherish when you've been invited on a week-end in the country. You'll wear it back and forth on the train, and live in it all your daylight hours when you arrive there. And you'll feel infinitely chic in it.

LIKE THE tubular evening silhouette that floated out like a fine breeze this last month, the new woolens are slim and straight and sheath-like. Designers still accent shoulders, but take many ways of doing it. One will set frills on a shoulder, horizontally, another the same frills vertically. Some add ruchings, puffs, piping, cording, pleats, tucks, even mannish London padding, like both those in the sketch. There's a definite feeling of originality. You and you and I will all wear wool dresses this fall, but few of us will look alike.

TUNICS ARE one of the talked-of developments of day-time fashions. In a season liberally sprinkled with new ideas, that's saying a lot. For three long years, a certain group of creators, sticklers for an idea, promoted tunics; but unsuccessfully. Only this season, when it was definitely established just what the trend was to be, did tunics come into their own, for nothing better suits the purposes of the new silhouette.

LOOK AT the tunic dress in the sketch if you'd like a very tailored example of what some will be like. This one is a simple and youthful edition of the street costume. Next to it is another very stunning outfit, made of an incredible fabric that looks and feels like uncut velvet. It really is a sheer, sheer wool. Notice the zig-zag closing.

WITH WOOLENS like these, numbers of masculine fedoras are being worn in felt, panama, crochet, knit, tweeds and woolens. You even see some wider-brimmed fedoras with dressy clothes at garden parties, at the races, in fact everywhere.

FOR CITY streets, you'll need spectator-type shoes. Those with medium high built-in leather heels, and modified round toes are good. The same last is smart in high oxfords, brogues and filled-in sandals with T-straps.

WOMAN SPURNS FEDERAL POST

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—(AP.)—Another federal advisory council is being formed, this one intended to help the government work out its manifold employment problems without regard to politics.

The membership of the new group is expected by Labor Department officials to be ready for announcement this week, after which the department's employment service will begin organizing similar councils in every state.

One declination to serve on the federal body already has been received. Miss Mary Van Kleeck, of New York, notified the employment service she could not see eye to eye with the Roosevelt policy on collective bargaining and the recently-announced strike truce.

Miss Van Kleeck, director of industrial studies for the Russell Sage Foundation, first accepted the invitation to serve, but announced her resignation in New York last night, saying the administration's polcies were placing labor at a disadvantage with capital and "jeopardizing national recovery."

Myrtle M. Miller Married to Norman Bailey

At 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the Hotel Schenley, Miss Myrtle Mae Miller became the bride of Norman H. Bailey, of Pittsburgh. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gus Miller, of Forbes street, East End. Officiating was the Rev. Raymond W. Faus, of the Oakland Methodist Church.

The bride wore a suit of white gabardine having a white fox collar, with a hat of white organdie, and her shoulder corsage was of orchids. Miss Martha Laylander, as maid of honor, wore pink crepe with a matching hat and carried roses. Paul Schaffer was best man.

After a dinner and reception Mr. and Mrs. Bailey motored to St. Louis and upon their return will be at home in Brentwood.

Miss Irene Pechersky Weds Charles Spiro

Miss Irene Pechersky, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Pechersky and Charles Spiro, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Spiro, of Oakmont, were married on Sunday. Miss Gladys Weinberg sang accompanied by R. Spector. After an eastern trip Mr. and Mrs. Spiro will be at home in Oakland.

Lost Her Double Chin
AND HER PROMINENT HIPS

This woman writes: "I have a hearty appetite and always stay at 156 lbs. Read her letter. She is one of the thousands of women who have Kruschen Salts to thank for the loss of a load of unhealthy fat.

"I am 49 years old, 5 ft. 5½ in. in height, and was 190 lbs. when I started taking a level teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts every morning. I went slowly down in weight—some weeks 2 lbs., others just 1 lb., until I got down to 156 lbs. I have never felt better in my life than I do now and I feel so much lighter and feel years younger. There's always somebody saying to me that I look about 35 or thereabouts. My measurements are below:

Before		After
Bust	43 ins.	Bust	38 ins.
Hips	44 ins.	Hips	39½ ins.
Waist	33 ins.	Waist	28 ins.

"Also I had a double chin before taking Kruschen but not now. I have never dieted except once during the time I was taking Kruschen and I tried eating brown bread, boiled eggs, no potatoes or fat meat for a week or two. I got myself down to 151 lbs. but as I have a healthy appetite and like to eat everything that's going, I stopped dieting and always stay at 156 lbs. Even better than all this is the fact that Kruschen Salts have brought me through the difficult period of life without even so much as a headache."—(Mrs.) W. I.

Try one-half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water every morning—in 3 weeks get on the scales, and note how many pounds of fat have vanished. Kruschen will give any fat person a joyous surprise.

If one inexpensive jar (lasts 4 weeks) doesn't joyfully satisfy, money back from any drugstore. Make sure you get Kruschen—prescribed by many physicians and recognized the world over as the SAFE way to reduce and at the same time gain in health and physical charm.

Only by Seeing These Coats Can You Realize What Values They Are!

Here's a sale rare as diamonds at cut-glass prices, for black diamonds are what these coats are! In June we advanced a leading maker money to meet a bank note—provided he would give us the finest Hudson Seals* on the market for August to sell at $185. A fur strike delayed the making. In the meantime, fur prices soared.

The maker, in fairness, abided by his original agreement to sacrifice these coats, and completed them. Here they are—just arrived. Though they cannot be bought for less than 50% more in the market, we offer them to you at the originally planned price — not a penny over. Here is the only opportunity to buy such coats—unless you want to pay $100 more!

These are Quality Coats!

Hudson Seal* at $185 is not ordinarily phenomenal — but these coats at $185 are! They are quality formerly sold at $435—the finest to be had. All with small seams — rich deep pile—softest skins—fine dyes—4 perfect styles. Compare with coats at higher prices and see their superior values!

NOTE THE NEW SLEEVES on this coat—full to the elbow—then cut and carefully seamed to be tight below. The shawl, too, flares over the neck in a soft roll, held by shirrings. More intricate detail, rare at $185! Another style at extreme left.

Century Plant Late For 'Date' to Bloom

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—(AP.)—The century plant's blossom was late for a date. The date was with hundreds of men, women and children who had been informed the plant, the pride of the Bronx Botanical Gardens, was due to bloom. All day a big crowd stood around agape and wating for the blooming. Nothing happened. Attendants said:

"Maybe it'll bloom in a week or 10 days."

Takes Johns Hopkins Secret to His Grave

BALTIMORE, Aug. 8.—(AP.)—There is a secret about Johns Hopkins Hospital and it will go to the grave with William L. Woods.

The hospital has no cornerstone so Woods, a carpenter there during its erection, built a small box, placed in it all the usual mementos and sealed it. Woods died yesterday. For the past week he tried to tell a director where the box is hidden, but he was too weak to speak.

POLITICS

Denny's Job Safe If Herron Wins

By MARK SHIELDS

Mayor John S. Herron today declared if he is nominated and elected Mayor this fall for a four-year term, Safety Director Harmar D. Denny could continue in that post as long as he desired. The statement was made in the presence of Director Denny, and was aimed at rumors which have been current ever since the new director was appointed, when Herron succeeded the late Charles H. Kline as Mayor and as one of his first official acts removed James M. Clark as safety director and Peter P. Walsh as superintendent of police.

Mr. Shields.

It was widely gossiped when the change was made that Mr. Denny, scion of an old Pittsburgh family, descendant of the city's first Mayor, was being employed as "window dressing"—as was Director Clark. In the club circles with which Mr. Denny is familiar, and in the realm of practical politics, where he is a complete stranger, the story was the same:

That after election this fall, should Mr. Herron win, Mr. Denny would "resign," and that Senator James J. Coyne would dictate his successor.

That is the rumor which Mayor Herron has spiked.

Mayor's Statement Not Surprising

The Mayor's statement is not surprising. Under every rule of police department practice as the game is played by organized politics in Pittsburgh a director of Mr. Denny's type is desired. He is the "front" for the department, the theoretical head of both police and fire divisions.

Actually this is not the case. The line between mayor and chief of police must remain unbroken. Just as during the Clark regime Chief Walsh took his orders direct from the mayor, with Mr. Clark more often than not being unaware of what was happening until after it had happened, so is the situation somewhat similar now.

True, Mr. Denny is being consulted more than was Director Clark. He is frequently in the Mayor's office, and the shepherding of the international police chiefs on their recent visit was turned over to him.

But Police Supt. Franklin T. McQuaide also is a frequent visitor, seeing the mayor certainly more often than does a subordinate of any other department of the city government. Things will be always operated in that fashion so long as organized politics handles the police department as it has been handled—and as it probably will be handled so long as organized politics maintains sway.

Organization May Slate Two for Bench

Before the end of the present primary campaign it is probable the regular organization will slate two men for the three places to be filled on Common Pleas Court bench. One will be Judge Harry H. Rowand. The other will be Republican County Chairman William H. Coleman. Judge Rowand will be preferred because he is a veteran of 10 years' service, in addition to which he has many friends in the organization. Mr. Coleman will be adopted through the influence of Senator Coyne, who made him county chairman in succession to County Commissioner William D. Mansfield.

This procedure will leave one place open, and that one place will be used as workers in different sections of the city and county desire. For example, the Fifth Ward organization last week indorsed Judge Ralph H. Smith. In other sections Raymond D. Evans will be favored, in some Judge M. A. Musmanno, and in yet others Attorney Alexander P. Lindsay, an independent who has some strong friends along certain elements of the organization.

It is a plan sometimes followed in the past in councilmanic contests, and leaves the party workers free to use their own preference to an at least limited extent.

Judge Benjamin Lencher will be supported for County Court. Judge Frank Piekarski may be. There is no decision yet on the second of the two positions to be decided.

Says Coyne Pledge Is To City Children

The presence of the name of Attorney Charles G. Lane on the Herron campaign committee, made public today, leads to speculation as to whether he will be the organization selection for Juvenile Court. Certainly some organization workers will back him. He participated in the "town meeting" a short time ago which ratified the Herron slate.

But Mrs. John M. Phillips, yesterday told a gathering of women in the William Penn Hotel that she had in Harrisburg, at the time the Juvenile Court bill was passed, a pledge from Coyne that if the majority of social agencies and civic bodies supported one candidate he and the politicians he directs would keep hands off.

Those organizations have indorsed Gustav Schramm, and yesterday's meeting was designed to stimulate his campaign, which Mrs. Phillips said was non-factional, though she hoped for support from all factions. She asserted that the pledge of Coyne was not to her but to the children of Pittsburgh.

Headquarters for Schramm were opened today in the Jenkins Arcade, with Robert Gaw, president of the Pennsylvania Druggist Association as chairman, and Mrs. Charles Longenecker of the Twentieth Century Club as chairman of the women's division.

Juvenile Court would be a rich prize for politicians, as the Judge will have 250 jobs to award.

E. PITTSBURGH COUNCILMAN OUSTER FAILS

Crowd Hoots Attempt To Impeach Member Of Minority Group

East Pittsburgh Borough Council, by a close count, voted down a motion asking the resignation of C. J. Flasher, one of the body's minority members, at a long and stormy meeting last night.

Flasher's resignation within 10 days with the alternative of having the borough solicitor begin impeachment proceedings against him was put before council in form of a motion by Councilman Gus Katsilas, a majority member.

Katsilas charged, and produced records which he said were proof that Flasher had acted as an agent and had received a commission in the sale of a motor to the borough in 1929. According to Katsilas, the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company received only $75 of the $103 paid out for the motor.

HOOTS BY CROWD

Katsilas was hooted by the large crowd in attendance when he made the charge against Flasher.

Flasher took the floor in defense and said he had purchased the motor in an emergency, and had saved the borough more than $100 through a discount which he was able to get as an employe of the company.

The difference between the $75 and $103, Flasher said after the meeting, was paid out in incidental expense to which he said he was put to have the motor installed immediately. The borough fire alarm system, he said, depended upon the motor.

ANOTHER CLASH

Another clash between the Council's two factions occurred when the motion of Emil Stritmatter, minority councilman, to have the sidewalk steps of an East Pittsburgh merchant removed in compliance with a borough ordinance, was voted down.

Stritmatter drew applause from the audience when he accused Council of deliberately breaking the laws which they made.

Councilman Albert Elgert took the floor to explain why he had voted against the motion, and when he finished Stritmatter leaped to his feet and declared:

"You break the laws, too. You came in here one time bundled up in bandages, and said you were in an automobile accident. I know what you were in—you were up in——"

Before Stritmatter could finish, Elgert appealed to the chair on the grounds that the minority Councilman was engaging in personalities.

BRACKENRIDGE SEEKS U. S. AID

Federal aid to release borough funds tied up in the First National Bank and Trust Company at Tarentum will be sought by Brackenridge Borough, it was indicated today.

Council, voting last night to appear directly to the Comptroller of Currency to free funds, stated that unless Brackenridge's $8,500 sinking fund was released the municipality's resources would be exhausted and it would be forced to default a $5,000 bond issue falling due.

Adoption of the NRA blanket code was voted by Council making the Borough one of the first municipalities in Western Pennsylvania to adopt the code.

STORE WORKERS HOLD BOATRIDE

Dressed gaily in holiday attire and with the cares of the day forgotten for the moment, more than 1,000 employes of Kaufmann's Department Store turned out last night for a boat ride down the Ohio river, aboard the Steamer Washington.

Clerks and salesgirls danced happily to the lilting tunes of the orchestra as the boat backed from the Wood street wharf and swung down the river. For those who did not care to dance, the committee had provided cards and several bridge games were in progress before the boat had dropped below the Golden Triangle.

The committee in charge included Joseph M. Meyers, store manager and his assistant, J. C. Kelley, Marie Snyder, Colletta Henkel, Agnes Simpson, Mabel Penrod, Howard McPeak and Flora Leuman, general chairman.

JURIST LABORS WITH PICK IN COAL MINE

Musmanno Gets Real Experience Before Code Hearings

Fortified by a personal tour of the troubled coal fields and by the experience of an entire day spent working as a miner, County Court Judge M. A. Musmanno will leave tomorrow morning by airplane to attend hearings in Washington on adoption of a national code for the coal industry. Several other members of the local committee working with Judge Musmanno left this morning by automobile.

The Pittsburgh jurist and other members of the committee represent more than a score of civic, social and religious groups which met last week in the interests of coal miners. Their main aim is to have written into the coal code provisions eliminating company towns.

WORKS UNDERGROUND

Following some days spent in the Fayette County strike zone, Judge Musmanno worked underground for several hours yesterday. The mine he visited is not involved in the existing labor controversy.

Judge Musmanno used the pick and shovel, planted the necessary explosive and blasted loose the wall of the entry in which he was working. Then under the dim light of his miner's lamp he loaded the old-fashioned cars and watched the mine mule slowly haul the coal to the mouth of the slope.

The Judge wore a safety helmet with miner's light attached. He was clad in overalls and at his belt he carried a small first aid kit.

VISITS HOMES

Judge Musmanno in the last 10 days has visited miners in the "patch." Interviewing them in their homes, he has gained first hand information on the company store, forms of credit and working conditions.

Of the miner, he said today:

"The miner is a real good fellow. He is cheerful during off hours and at lunch, but once back at his task in the mine, he is serious, ever alert and ever watching and waiting for disaster."

"The miner is very unfortunate. Even at good times the company has little to offer for social recreation and enjoyment. During strife these towns offer even less. Private police and special deputies often restrain the miner from going out on the street—because the streets are private property—the property of the coal company."

"These deputies are supposed to be agents of the commonwealth. But they are really just the opposite. They are there to . . . nce the interests of the coal companies that pay them.

"From my experience in the mine I can more readily appreciate the dangers and hardships which face the miner. Our committee intends to put forth every effort to see that a real 'new deal' is handed out to these men who spend the greater part of their lives in the darkness of the mines."

'Down in the Coal Mine'

Johnson's hearing this week on the coal code. The Judge, fully attired in a miner's outfit, including lamp, swung a pick, wielded a shovel, planted explosive, drove a mule, rode a mine car, got smeared with coal dust, ate his lunch underground. 2nd Coroner's Jury Revises Verdict

A second Coroner's jury today found that Julius A. Siorski, 45, Oakdale feed merchant, who fell from a third floor doorway of his place of business July 28 and died soon afterward, came to his death from causes undetermined.

Coroner W. J. McGregor ordered a rehearing of the evidence after members of the family and counsel had protested a verdict of suicide while temporarily insane by the first jury.

REJECTS TERMS OF COMPANY CONTRACT

Borough Expects New System to Save $2,000 To $6,000 Yearly

The Borough of Coraopolis has decided to do its own street lighting.

Burgess F. C. Gangloff has signed an ordinance passed unanimously by Council authorizing the placing of poles and overhead wires and the use of a generator at the Coraopolis water plant to furnish the current.

In making the new arrangement, the borough turned a cold shoulder to the Duquesne Light Company, which had held the street lighting contract in the borough up until September, 1932, and had been furnishing it since that time on a short-term basis.

REJECT CONTRACT

A new contract had been drawn up with the light company and had been sent to the Public Service Commission for approval, before council found how cheaply the borough could do its own street lighting.

The borough had not signed the contract, and through its solicitor, Herman C. A. Hofacker, it asked the commission to disapprove it. The commission agreed to the borough's request.

According to Hofacker, the new system will cost about $70,000 and will pay for itself in 15 years. He said:

"We believe it will save the borough from $2,000 to $6,000 per year and provide 60 per more light."

TO TAKE BIDS

Bids for the new equipment will be taken within the next 10 days after plans have been drawn by Peter Loftus, Pittsburgh engineer. No additional generating machinery will be required, it was stated.

The borough in 1927 sold a light plant to the Duquesne Light Company. This was used entirely for supplying domestic consumers.

The cost of street lighting to the borough early in 1932 was at the rate of $12,000 per year. This was reduced to approximately $8,500 after the contract expired, largely through economy measures which eliminated and reduced the power of lights.

TABLELANDERS ELECT MILLER

The Allegheny Tableland Council of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce met in the chamber yesterday for reorganization, and, by unanimous vote, Joseph T. Miller was named as the council's vice president in the joint governing board of the council and of the Allegheny Tableland Association.

W. P. Benson, of Dilworth Company, was elected chairman of the Allegheny Tableland Council, with Fred C. Haller, of the Haller Baking Company, as vice chairman. Others elected were: Pressley H. Bailey, of Westinghouse Air Brake Company, treasurer; H. W. Correll, of the Chamber of Commerce, secretary; and for directors: Messrs. George R. Aufderheide, of Arbuthnot Stephenson Company; P. A. Boyd, of KDKA; H. W. Leonard, of Joseph Horne Company; Joseph T. Miller, of Pennsylvania Water Company, and W. H. Newmyer, of Boggs & Buhl.

Businessmen Are Listed Among Herron Backers

Dr. Frederick Draws 'Committee of 100' Spotlight

Membership in the "Committee of 100" supporting Mayor John S. Herron for the Republican mayoralty nomination was made public today and contained little or nothing that was startling. It comprises a group of emininetly respectable business and professional men and the names are designed to emphasize that the Mayor has some support outside of practical organized politics.

Despite this, chief attention centers on the presence of Dr. F. H. Frederick, at odds with Mayor Charles H. Kline during the closing months of the late Mayor's term. There have been reports that Dr. Frederick, once known as "chairmen of ward chairmen" on the North Side, might not be keen for Mr. Herron. His membership on the committee dissipates that rumor.

A. K. Oliver, extremely active in civic and social work, is a member of the committee. He was a member of the original Citizens' Committee. His brother, George S. Oliver, is a candidate for councilman on the Herron ticket. Taylor Allderdice, school board member, and N. R. Criss, solicitor for the board, are also listed.

The influence of Senator James J. Coyne, sought by Mr. Allderdice and Mr. Criss, was responsible for legislation last winter which permitted Mr. Criss to resign from the board and become its attorney. The bill was passed at a time when some members of the board and Coyne were in a bitter feud.

Col. A. B. Berger, vice president of the Potter Title and Trust Company, is listed as chairman of the Herron finance committee. A. H. Burchfield, Sr., and Edgar J. Kaufmann, merchants, are on the committee, as is Col. Samuel Harden Church.

Edward Crump, Jr., of the American Legion, also is listed. He has been enrolled as a member of the Citizens' League, supporting Councilman P. J. McArdle against Herron. His league membership antedates the withdrawal of William P. Witherow as the league candidate in favor of McArdle. Col. Samuel D. Foster and Sheriff Robert Cain are the only elected county officials on the Herron committee.

Labor is represented by John J. McCaig, president of the Bricklayers' Union; Joseph Duty of the Lathers and James McIlvain of the plasterers.

John F. Casey, Frank J. Lanahan, F. A. Keating, Dr. J. C. Mahan, W. L. Monro, Rabbi B. A. Lichter, Leo Lehman and H. H. McClintic, Jr., were other names on the list.

The committee is well distributed geographically, with utilities and Mellon interests represented, though there is no Mellon name in the roster.

Mute Boy, Missing, From Home, Found

Found wandering in the North Side Market House district early today, Edward Baranski, 12, a mute, was restored to his parents at 2916 Harcum way after his description had been broadcast by the police radio. Radio police of the South Side station recognized him from the broadcast and communicated with North Side police.

Wall St. Bomb Might Have Done Good 4 Years Ago

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 8.—The fellow who tossed that tear bomb into the stock exchange was four years too late.

If he throws two more he is entitled to a blue eagle.

Another suspect is an investor who bought shares, put them away and couldn't forget 'em.

Anyway, the general opinion is that he went to Harvard. So wear your gas mask to the next Yale game.

No harm was done. The Wall Street broker is still raking in his profits and singing, "You made me cry, but you didn't break my heart."

PIRATE FARMHAND GIVES UP BASEBALL

DISGUSTED OVER BASEBALL misfortunes which have plagued him since the days of his noteworthy Pirate achievements in 1931, Howard (Howdie) Grosskloss, native son and Yale medical student, today informed the Sun-Telegraph of his intention to retire, at least temporarily, from the diamond sport. Howdie has only one year more of study to complete before he receives a degree in medicine. He says he loves baseball and would like to stay in the professional sport over a period of years, but he has been buffeted about this season in a manner to discourage him. Since his junior-year examinations in June, Grosskloss has been with the Jersey City, Toledo, Tulsa and Williamsport clubs as a Pirate farmhand. He expects soon to take up practical work in medicine for the remainder of the summer.

Howdie Grosskloss

"I have just sent a letter to the Pittsburgh club officials announcing my voluntary retirement from baseball, at least for the present," Grosskloss said. "After careful analysis of my progress this season and last, and after suffering several unpleasant experiences during that time, allowing myself to worry beyond reason, I can see no major league prospects. The wisest plan for me to follow is to throw myself heart and soul into pursuit of a profession that holds more promise for me."

IN THE HOMESTRETCH of the 1931 campaign, Howdie played sensational ball at second base for the Pirates, and his bat helped in the winning of many games. He broke in under auspicious circumstances in the East. Without benefit of minor league experience, the lad jumped into the breach and behaved like a confirmed major leaguer.

The fact that the clever Tommy Thevnow was on his right side may have accelerated the youngster's movements. In any event, Grosskloss looked the part of a potential star. Howdie is a boy of perfect habits who worked his way through Amherst College, where he won signal scholastic honors. He was unable to go with the Pirates to spring training camp this year, and no doubt that harmed his baseball career.

WITH STRIKEOUT RECORDS still being discussed, following the whiffing of 17 Cubs by Dizzy Dean recently for a new modern mark, Bill Dooly points out that the Bruins appear to have been cast in the hapless role of goats for performances of that kind.

Dazzy Vance used to make a habit of fanning 10 or more Chicago batters almost every time he faced them. Ray Benge, though not given to that sort of thing, once struck out 14 of them. Howard Ehmke set 14 Cubs down on strikes in the first game of the 1929 world series, and the following day Lefty Grove and George Earnshaw breezed 14 more.

ANOTHER PITTSBURGH BOY who is practically certain to come up to the majors next year is Julius Solters, hard-hitting outfielder for Baltimore in the International League. Solters was held back by a month of enforced idleness early in the season because Manager McGowan could not decide whether or not he was ripe for Class AA, but since he was given a chance to play regularly Julius has been one of the sensations of the circuit, passing Ihe Boone and Tommy Thompson for the leadership in batting and being second in driving in runs. He was hitting .369 in the latest averages. Scouts for the Yankees, Giants, Cubs, Senators, Red Sox and other big league clubs are trailing him, and there is said to be no doubt that he will be purchased by one of them for 1934.

Julius Solters

SOLTERS, WHO LED the New York-Pennsylvania League in batting last year with a mark of .393, has a style at the plate that fools the pitchers. He is bearing down all the time, but appears relaxed as he goes to bat, and the opposing hurlers are deceived by his plate poise and by the swing that seems to be that of a batter off balance.

Instead, Solters is perfect in his timing, and he hits the ball with vigor and assurance. Scouts who have watched him say he appears so indifferent with men on the sacks when he comes to bat that the pitchers constantly are being crossed up. Cool and collected in the tightest pinches, Solters is best at getting hits when they mean runs. Baltimore will get a fancy price for him.

THE TRIPLE STEAL has been outdone. The Peoria club pulled a quadruple one against Keokuk in the Mississippi Valley League. With Murphy on third, Esrey on second and Mizeur on first, Pitcher McGee took a long windup, whereupon Murphy made a dash for the plate and reached it before the catcher had a chance to put the ball on him.

At the same time, Esrey darted for third and Mizeur for second, and Esrey, seeing Catcher Becker was throwing to second in an endeavor to get Mizeur, continued on home to pilfer another base while Mizeur arrived safely at second, making it four steals.

BY REASON OF their feat of wresting the Davis Cup from France, Fred Perry and Bunny Austin, British tennis stars, will command more attention than ever before when they take part in the coming United States major championship competition. Some American net veterans say they cannot visualize Perry and Austin as world champion players, though admitting that they played wisely and well to win the Davis Cup, concentrating on their opponents' weaknesses rather than their own strength, and content to play safely and wait for their foemen to break down. On previous visits to this country, the two Englishmen, though flashing much color, proved none too formidable. It may be different this time, however, and final opinion as to their merits must be deferred until they have shown their latest wares here within the next few weeks.

A FAIR EXCHANGE is no robbery, so while American football continues to develop lateral passing taken from rugby, the rugby people up in Canada have designed a type of game on a professional basis in which they are borrowing the American interference.

Canada's new pro football, which is a combination of the Dominion's rugby pastime and this country's college game, will make its debut on Labor Day at Ottawa. The promoter is Lionel Conacher, one-time Pittsburgh hockey figure, and several other former lights of the ice game are among the players.

THE SUCCESS OF Lenore Kight, of Homestead, in stepping right into the place of Helene Madison as the undisputed queen of women swimmers, when the dope had been that the vacancy would remain unfilled for a long time, prompts a veteran natation critic to observe that for a few decades swimming always has had a top woman champion.

That is, there always was one to stand out so far beyond the rest as to leave no room for doubt as to where the title belonged. There never has been a question as to who was the greatest woman swimmer in free-style competition.

Lenore Kight

FIRST, IT IS recalled, there was Claire Galligan, who reigned in the distance events, while Olga Dorfner, of the same era, ruled the sprint race. Ethelda Bleibtrey followed Miss Galligan, and after Miss Bleibtrey came the unbeaten Helen Wainwright, Charlotte Boyle and Gertrude Ederle, heading the diving, sprint and distance divisions, respectively. Miss Ederle turned professional, and Martha Norelius became her successor as reigning queen. Miss Norelius was succeeded by Helene Madison, who retired after the Olympic Games last summer, and now Miss Kight is established in a class of her own, the lightest of all the female aquatic greats, weighing only 124 pounds. The Homestead lass is a standout in the long line of great women champions, and with four outdoor and three indoor national crowns, and two world records in addition, she is sport's most titled girl.

ONLY A SPRAIN . . . GOOD NEWS FOR ADAM COMOROSKY ABOUT HIS INJURED RIGHT ANKLE . . . TRAINER JORGENSEN SAYS PIRATE OUTFIELD STAR WILL BE PLAYING AGAIN SOON

GIBSON SEEKS TO PEP UP SLAB STAFF

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Adam Comorosky is on crutches and the Pirate pitching staff is in the same fix, in a non-literal sense. There is a big difference, however, between Commy's trouble and the woes of Gibson's sharpshooting staff. The doctors think they can have the Polish Flyer ready for duty in the course of 10 days, but nobody seems to have the cure for a slab staff that cannot fool the enemy batters.

Pilot Gibson today was making a strong effort to rehabilitate his mound staff. On top of their rest period the first-string hurlers were called together at the Oakland Orchard where they were run through a course of sprints. But unless the pitchers can start getting "something" on the ball, the team's chances for winning the flag will not be so hot.

PLAY STOGIES TODAY

Gibby will lead his club to Wheeling this afternoon, the Buccos being slated to take on the Mid-Atlantic League club of that town in an exhibition game tonight. Returning late, the Pirates will spend part of tomorrow at New Castle, where they are scheduled for another exhibition contest.

The Cubs will be in town Thursday to engage the Pirates in the last three days of the week. Friday originally was an open date on the Pittsburgh playing chart, but a rain postponement caused the date to be utilized.

The Pirates and Cubs will hurry to Chicago Saturday night for the purpose of staging a Sunday game at the home of the Cubs. Monday will bring an unusual attraction to Forbes Field. The World Champion Yankees, with Babe Ruth up, will be with us.

Ball Park Official's Daughter Married

Miss Myrtle Mae Miller, daughter of Gus Miller, for years in charge of the ushers at Forbes Field, and well known to the baseball fans, was married in the French Room of the Schenley Hotel yesterday afternoon to Norman W. Bailey.

The Rev. Raymond W. Faus, of the Oakland Methodist Episcopal Church, performed the ceremony.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: THE GRAND OLD LADY OF GOLF—Mrs. Caleb F. Fox, who died in 1928, at the age of 67, defeated Glenna Collett, National champion, at Belleaire Heights, Fla., in 1923. She made a medal score of 77 for the match and won over the champion, 2 and 1. THE ONE-ARMED PAPERHANGER—Our old axiom "busier than a one-armed paperhanger" proved to be a truism in Albert J. Smith, of Dedham, Mass., when I made a moving picture of him at work in 1931. Though paper-hanging is a tricky occupation even when one is working with both arms, Smith dextrously unrolled paper, applied his paste and hung it on walls and ceilings without trouble. And, Believe It or Not, he once had the hives and continued to ply his trade as paperhanger!

MANY OFFERS TO TURN PRO STIR ACTION

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—(AP.)—The amateur status of Ellsworth Vines, national tennis champion, is under investigation as a result of widespread published reports linking his name with professional offers, Louis J. Carruthers, chairman of the Amateur Rule Committee of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, told the Associated Press today.

Carruthers made it plain that no action had yet been taken by his committee and that none would be taken until he ascertained "all the facts" in connection with the much-discussed intention of Vines to forsake the amateur ranks after the close of the 1933 season.

STATEMENT ISSUED

He explained the situation as follows:

"We have the situation with respect to Vines under very serious consideration. I have read all the newspaper comment about professional proposals and so-called offers. I also have obtained other information on the subject and the amateur rule committee will make a thorough investigation.

"So far as I know, Vines is the only American player whose name has been associated with these stories and offers. Naturally we are not concerned with what Henri Cochet or any other foreign players do. Until we have all the facts and a clear picture of just what the situation is, I cannot venture any statement to what action, if any, may be justified."

'GOOD IDEA'—VINES

Informed of Carruthers' statement, Vines declared:

"I think it is a good idea. It will save me denying rumors every day."

The national champion said the only definite professional offer made to him so far involved a proposition to manage a chain of sporting goods stores, with headquarters in New York.

"I didn't follow up and I haven't any intention of doing so. Since I returned from Europe, I have not talked with anybody about turning professional. All I know is what I have seen in the papers."

Vines said he had not yet heard from Carruthers or the U. S. L. T. A., but would welcome a hearing to clear up the entire matter.

MANY STARS INVOLVED

Vines' name has been frequently mentioned in connection with a reputed offer to join Big Bill Tilden's touring professional troupe. While he was in England, before losing the Wimbledon championship, newspapers published reports of an offer of $100,000 from supposed Tilden backers. Nothing more has been heard about this fantastic proposition.

Since returning to this country,

Canuck Sprinter Beaten in Upset

FORT WILLIAM, Ontario, Aug. 8.—(AP.)—Bert Pearson, Canada's crack Olympic sprinter, took a surprising beating in the 100-yard dash final of the Canadian championships yesterday, but came back to hold his 220-yard title.

Nipped at the tape a step by Harris Coleman, of Winnipeg, in 9.8 seconds in the 100, two-tenths of a second slower than the Canadian record, Pearson returned to win the 220 in 22.4 seconds from the veteran Jimmy Ball, of Winnipeg.

Tony Siano Signs With Local Pros

Tony Siano, former Fordham University All-America center star, has signed a contract with the Pittsburgh Pirates, of the National Football League, according to word from President Art Rooney.

With the addition of Siano, the locals now have three centers on the roster, Siano, Erickson, former Northwestern star, and Herb Eschbach, former Penn State snapperback.

Local Woman Archer Wins Championship

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 8.—(INS.)—Mrs. J. M. Roberts, of Pittsburgh, won the 50-pound pull regular flight shooting event with 270 yards and the all-weight championship with 300 yards in the Fifty-third National Archery Tournament here yesterday.

Curtis Hill, Dayton, O., broke his own world record of 503 yards by loosing the arrow for a distance of 518 yards in the free style shooting. Homer Prouty, Portland, Ore., sent an arrow 478 yards in the regular style event in the 80-pound class to break his own world record of 436 yards.

YANKS SLASH LEAD OF SENATORS IN RACE

CHAMPS, BACKS TO WALL, TOP NATS TWICE

Associated Press.

Every time the Yankees skid, swerve and knock off a wheel or two in a tangle with some routine opponent, chuckles sweep the baseball lands and the boys nod wisely at the indisputable signs of an aged, hard-to-inspire machine about to fly apart all at once like the fabled one-horse shay.

Everyone chuckles but the baseball men who have to tackle the Yankees next. It has long been their adage, and it stood forth truer than ever today, that when the checks are down and the issue is man to man with the title at stake, Babe Ruth and his "doddering" brethren are the grimmest, toughest foes in all baseball.

BACKS TO WALL

Perfect as to detail in every point, this very scene was pictured in the Yankee Stadium yesterday, with 45,000 roosting in the great horseshoe stands, the high riding Senators, three games in the lead, opening a four-game series with a double header. The Athletics had left town only Saturday with three straight victories and the Red Sox might have made it four Sunday but for a jittery infield defense.

So the Yankees climbed right up out of the resin like a hurt Dempsey, Babe Ruth belted one, Lou Gehrig hit another. The pitchers pitched as they're capable of pitching, Red Ruffing, Herb Pennock, Russell Van Atta and old Wilcy Moore, the defense was tight, the Yanks swept both games, 6 to 5 and 5 to 4, and the Senators' lead was shaved to a single game.

With two more games left in this series, one today and another tomorrow, it is possible for the Yanks to swing into the final third of the season this week with a one game lead. If they don't, and the odds are all against even so opportune a club as the world champions, there's still a chance for one of the most dramatic of modern finales in the closing days of the season.

Both the Yanks and the Senators have played 102 of the 154 games on the schedule with 52 to go apiece. After two more here they travel their separate ways until August 13, when they meet again in a single game in Washington. Then they are apart again until September 28, 29 and 30, when they collide on the stadium turf in a final three-game series. The season ends October 1.

RAJAH'S CLUB WINS

The battle of the Yanks and the Senators overshadowed the major league battlefronts yesterday with action totally suspended along the National League front.

Ruth and Gehrig hit their homers, twenty-sixth and twentieth respectively in the second. Gehrig now has played in 1,300 consecutive games, within seven of Everett Scott's record.

The Browns won their first series for Manager Rogers Hornsby as Lena Stiles shut out the White Sox, 6 to 0, for a 3-1 edge. A five-run assault in the fourth gave the Tigers enough runs to beat Cleveland, 6 to 3, despite six errors. The home folks gave Bucky Walters, Red Sox third baseman, a chest of silver and a loving cup at Philadelphia, and he in turn gave the Athletics a headache by driving in five runs with a homer and triple as Boston won, 8 to 5.

GIRL GOLFER WINNER

Barbara Warmcastle, young Field Club star, flashed some of the form that carried her to the final round of the Western Pennsylvania Women's Golf Association championship last year when she shot an 87 to lead home a field of women golfers at the South Hills Country Club invitation tourney yesterday. She won the low gross prize with her sister, Gretchen, and tied for low net honors with Miss Lucille Babbitt, of the Greene Country Club with a 75.

Joe Connors, of Chartiers Heights, paid a successful visit to the Uniontown Country Club, winning top honors in the semi-monthly tourney of the Assistant Professionals' and Caddiemasters' Association yesterday. Connors scored a 75, six shots ahead of Frank Bruno, of Nemacolin, and Joe Bepeskey, of Uniontown, who tied for second place with 81s.

At the Butler Country Club, F. A. W. Green won the president's trophy, defeating William Rockenstein, 3 and 1, in an 18-hole playoff match and John McClung took the vice-president's cup by downing Roger Patrizio, the club champion.

Bullets Removed From Ace Hudkins

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 8.—(AP.)—Two bullets were removed last night from the body of Ace Hudkins, the former "Nebraska Wildcat" of the ring, and his surgeon said he would live unless complications develop.

Greenlee Field Races Carded Tomorrow

Automobile racing will be resumed at Greenlee Field tomorrow evening after a shutdown of a week. Preliminary heats will begin at 7:30 o'clock. Henry F. Miller will act as starter.

It is planned to continue the weekly programs until the weather gets too cold. A one-third mile track has been built inside the baseball park.

BASEBALL COMEDY

—By NICK ALTROCK—

Nick Altrock

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—Storm warning to the Middle West: Sweep out your cyclone cellars and stock 'em up with pemmican and canned goods. Because in a couple days there'll be clouds of trouble heading for your territory. Our Seaboard clubs make another road trip, and this time you've not only got to look out for Washington, A's, but also—and don't laugh, now—the Red Sox.

The Bostonese now are full of vim, vigor, baked beans and codfish. Just check that up with your Midwest clubs. They grabbed five straight from the lusty White Sox and clipped about 70 years off Chicago's century of progress.

They aren't exactly doormats for their eastern playmates any more, either. At bat they wave a stick of dynamite, and on defense they're a dose of nitroglycerine. In fact, the Bostons are just a bunch of Little Lord Fauntleroys changed into Peck's Bad Boys. So look out for 'em.

Hit 'em often enough and it seems hard.

That was the working idea of our late Harry Greb, and Harry Dublinsky, lengthy Polish lad from Chicago, operated along the same lines in technically knocking out Charley Baxter, local lightweight, in the fourth round of the scheduled 10-round main bout before a surprisingly large crowd at Hickey Park, Millvale, last night.

There wasn't much to the thing. Baxter was outclassed from the start and rarely landed a punch. The long-armed and shifty Dublinsky started off by poking his left into the face repeatedly and then pumping rights to the body to carry the first round easily. In the second, he jabbed and beat a tattoo to the body with both fists. At the start of the third, he was struck low with a left and took a rest, and then resumed the lacing of his foe.

FLOORED TWICE

Baxter was all at sea by the time the fourth round came up, and Dublinsky continued the two-handed leather massaging until he suddenly dropped in a short right to the chin and Baxter went down to take a count of eight. Charley tried to fight his man off when he arose, but could not stop the storm of seemingly light blows from both fists before he ran into another short right which spilled him. This time he got up at nine, but reeled back to the floor, gathered himself and tried to resume. Referee Al Grayber saw he was in no condition to do so, and halted the uneven affair with more than a minute of the round still remaining.

The bout shaped up as little more than a workout for Dublinsky, who meets Frankie Bojarski in a return bout in Erie Friday night of next week on a card which will feature Primo Carnera, the heavyweight champion, in a three-round exhibition. Apples Meyers, formerly of the Meyers Bowl, will stage the show in the Academy High School Stadium. Bojarski lost to Dublinsky by a technical knockout in Motor Square Garden in the latter's local debut.

Charley Burns, of Johnstown, making his first start in a 10-round bout, finished strong in the last two rounds to get a referee's draw with Jimmy Thomas, local Negro featherweight, in the semi-final, after Thomas had piled up a big lead with Burns breaking ground in the early stages. One of the judges voted for Burns and the other for Thomas.

BUTCH SCORES KAYO

Mose Butch, local southpaw featherweight, won by a technical knockout over Eddie Pucci, of Canton, O., when Referee Grayber halted their bout in the sixth round, with Pucci getting up from a knockdown for a count of nine from a right to the body. Pucci started off well, but Mose was too rugged for him and had him wilting before the final blow.

Fritzie Zivic, local lightweight, also got his first 10-rounder under his belt in winning from Joey Greb, a tough punch absorber from Wilkes-Barre, in the opener.

Joe Orsini alternated with Grayber as referee, and the judges were Frank Brown and Mike Moran. It was announced there will be no show in the Millvale arena next Monday.

ANSWER TO QUERIES

J. S., Wilkinsburg—Charley Wood lost the first game he pitched as a Pirate. He pitched the day he landed in town in 1930.

E. C. E.—It is a home run. The final score would be 7-3.

YAROSZ EASILY BEATS ROSSI AT NEWARK

NEWARK, N. J., Aug. 8.—(AP.)—Ted Yarosz, Pittsburgh middleweight title contender, last night gave Al Rossi, Belleville puncher, a sound beating and won the referee's decision in their 10-round main bout at Dreamland Park.

Yarosz, who has scored a long list of victories in his own district, made his second appearance in the Newark ring. He weighed 157 to Rossi's 161. The decision was popular with the crowd of about 5,000 fans.

Rossi claimed a foul on a body blow in the eighth round, but was ordered to continue. Yarosz was credited with winning every round.

Between Rounds

Ted Yarosz having come through two tuneup fights, against Freddie Polo and Al Rossi, in fine shape, Vince Dundee will work out a contract for a postponed fight when he takes on Danny Devlin, of Allentown, at Paterson, N. J., Thursday night, and then both will point to their clash at Forbes Field one week from next Monday.

Art Rooney says he will stage his Primo Carnera exhibition show for the benefit of the needy of the North Side in the St. Peter's A. A. Stadium, which will seat 3,500 persons, and will go through with it on Thursday, August 24, despite the fact that this brings it into the same week as the Yarosz-Dundee battle. Rooney thought for a time of holding his show at Forbes Field, but figures the Stadium will be plenty big enough to take care of the turnout under present conditions.

An amateur boxing show for the benefit of St. Colman's School will be held at the school grounds, Turtle Creek, tomorrow night. Matchmaker Anthony Caruso has arranged the following card: Matt Marks vs. Tony Kulia, Ervin Lowsletter vs. Bert Sheets, Teddy Movan vs. Billy DeLuca, Sammy Crovatta vs. Ray Hatton, Johnny Mathews vs. George Martzo, Tony Marino vs. Chippy Chanoi and William Schimonsky vs. Tom Greene. There also will be several wrestling bouts.

DRIVERS WIN GAME

The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph drivers had little trouble walloping the Pressmen in their inter-department baseball tray, 22 to 4, at Ammon Field last evening. V. Schaub, coach of the drivers, has issued a challenge to the Doc Statti club.

LOCAL TYPOS REMAIN IN TOURNEY

DETROIT, Aug. 8.—(AP.)—With the field reduced by three eliminations, Washington, New York and Chicago were out in front today with two victories apiece in the Union Printers Baseball League tournament.

Buffalo, Indianapolis and Baltimore were the teams eliminated, having been defeated in their first and second round games.

Washington, defending champion, shut off a ninth-inning rally with two runs scored to defeat Cincinnati, 4 to 2 yesterday. New York nosed out Detroit, 7-6, and Chicago won a free hitting game from Pittsburgh, 13 to 11.

Minneapolis-St. Paul eliminated Baltimore, 9 to 8; Cleveland ended Indianapolis' hopes by winning, 10 to 5, and St. Louis overwhelmed Buffalo to win 20 to 1.

Detroit, Cincinnati, Cleveland, St. Louis, Twin Cities and Pittsburgh have won one and lost one game.

Semi-finals will be played Thursday and the championship decided Friday.

Clifford Inman, of Pontiac, Mich., led a field of 50 contestants in the first round of the annual golf tournament, for the Walter Hagen trophy. Inman's 80 was two strokes better than the score of Jerry Cochran, St. Louis, the defending champion. E. R. Gableman, Cincinnati, 85, and William Begg, Detroit, 86, were the only other scores under 90.

The other out-of-town scores included: Albert Donger, Pittsburgh, 97; Joe Corry, St. Paul, 98; M. Deams, Toronto, 91; E. B. Hartman, Toledo, 96; E. Englebretson, St. Paul, 110; H. S. Sharpe, St. Louis, 124; Stanley Pauley, Buffalo, 104; A. L. Phillip, Windsor, Ont., 112; Bill Clark, Pittsburgh, 119; W. Faulnaber, Pittsburgh, 140; George Brenner, Pittsburgh, 117; E. J. Paquet, Pittsburgh, 113; J. A. Klass, Buffalo, 111, and Phil Georing, Cleveland, 122.

Hammer in Final Of Tennis Tourney

GREENSBURG, Pa., Aug. 8.—Edgar T. Hammer, Greensburg, defending singles champion, advanced to the final round in the annual Westmoreland County tennis tournament here yesterday by defeating Roger West, Jeannette, 6-0, 6-3.

Hammer, who has been singles champion for eight consecutive years, will meet the winner of the match between Thomas Fairfull, Jeannette, and Ira Fox, of Greensburg.

P. G. A. FIELD REDUCED

ELDRED AMONG LEADERS WITH 36 AT TURN

BLUE MOUND COUNTRY CLUB, MILWAUKEE, Aug. 8.—(AP.)—Under a setting of perfect weather and over one of the shortest campaign grounds in the tournament's history, 98 golfers opened the drive for the national professional championship here today.

Never was there a better day for golf as the first starters, Len Mathew, of St. Paul, and Ben Pautke, of Detroit, banged long tee shots to open the drive for 31 qualifying positions in the 36-hole test. It was cool, and a mild breeze stroked the course.

STARS IN FIELD

Despite the great verbal barrage that preceded the tournament and threat of an open revolt against the Professional Golfers' Association, a first-class field was on the scene for the struggle to depose Olin Dutra, of Los Angeles, as champion of American professional golf.

There were seven Ryder Cup players shooting for the title with only Walter Hagen, Denny Shute and Craig Wood missing from the all-star ranks. Most of the Ryder Cup players, led by Gene Sarazen, were among the late starters.

Several withdrawals trimmed the starting field to 98 at tee time. The missing were George Pulver, Saratoga Springs, N. Y., John Kinder, Caldwell, N. J., Pat Circelli, and Tom Kerrigan, both of New York.

HANCOCK WITHDRAWS

Roland Hancock, of Stoneham, Mass., who blewup in the stretch in the National Open championship at Olympia Fields in 1928, and Ted Longworth, of Portland, Ore., lone representative of the north west coast, also withdrew.

The first par wrecker to make the turn of the morning round was Rod Munday, of Santa Rosa, Cal., who shot a 34, one under par. He skidded one over par but got birdies on the fifth and eighth.

Alex Gerlach, of Catskill, N. Y., tied Munday with another 34 on the front nine, dropping two birdies, one with a 40-foot putt on the eighth. Other low scores were 36s by James Hines, New York; James Gullane, Bartlesville, Okla.; Harry Hampton, Chicago, and Vincent Eldred, of Pittsburgh.

Pautke, the first to finish the initial 18-hole test came in with a 72, two over par, to start the parade. Mattson, his playing partner from St. Paul, took a 77.

Four Pittsburgh district stars are competing in the tournamept. They are Paul (Toots) Erath, of Edgewood; Perry Del Vecchio, of Greensburg; Vincent Eldred, of Highland, and Ted Luther, of Valley Heights.

LOCALS BEATEN AT CULVER

CULVER, Ind., Aug. 8.—(AP.)—Victory in both boys' and juniors' national tennis championships was harder to gain as players went into advanced competition on Culver Military Academy courts here today.

Outstanding stars from two divisions had little difficulty in winning matches yesterday. In the juniors, Fred Renker, of Topeka, Kan., got the greatest scare, barely nosing out John Dietz, of Summit, N. J., 11-9, 5-7, 6-4.

In junior play today Gene Mako, California flash, had as his opponent, Paschall Walthall, of Culver. Donald Budge, of Oakland, Cal., ranked as Mako's most dangerous competitor for the title met Jack Behr, of Bayside, L. I., and Jay Cohn, Chicago star opposed George Dalling, of San Antonio.

Pittsburgh's contingent of seven netters was reduced by six in yesterday's competition. Bill Fay, seeded eighth in the boys' competition, drew a bye and will see action for the first time today.

Ralph Bald, Dickey Dickson, Cecil Dougherty and Paul DeJohn, in the junior division, and Laurent Blatt and Oliver Hurst, in the boys' class, were eliminated.

[illegible] won a first round match from Arnold Berns, of River Forest, Ill., 6-1, 6-2, but succumbed in the second round before Ralph Burns, of Indianapolis, 6-2, 6-1.

BRAND LEADER IN GOLF TEST

By TOM BIRKS

Fred Brand, Jr., of Shannopin, paced the field at the end of the first round in the 36-hole qualifying test for the National Amateur golf championship, to be staged in Cincinnati next month when he turned in a 76 over the rugged Oakmont Country Club course today.

Wilson F. Marks, of the Oakmont Country Club, was runner-up to Brand at the conclusion of the morning round with a 79.

A field of 22 amateur stars were battling for the five places allotted this district in the National tournament. The second round of 18 holes will be played this afternoon.

Brand turned in a 38 for his first nine holes and another 38 for his inward jaunt. Marks required 39 going out and a 40 coming in. The cards of the leaders:

VINES' STATUS UNDER PROBE

Vines again has been linked with professional proposals, along with Cochet and even Fred Perry, of England, and Jack Crawford, of Australia, in speculation as to a wholesale jump of amateur stars into the professional ranks. All of these players are entered in the National singles championship to be held at Forest Hills next month.

SUTTER 'REBELS'

Meanwhile, Clifford Sutter today was quoted by a New York newspaper as adding a critical note to the situation by saying he might spend most of his time abroad next year because "tennis players in Europe aren't treated like hired help," and adding:

"The whole attitude of European clubs is much more satisfactory. A number of American clubs make it extremely difficult for the contestants, and it's no fun to feel like a hired hand. Of course, I don't include all the clubs over here."

FEDERAL MOVES FACING TRADE EFFECT TEST

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—The past week has been marked by events attending the transition of the nation's business to a basis of government control.

One feature has been the ending of the speculative buying and production which had developed in anticipation of higher costs and prices.

For example, orders declined in many lines. This was the case in lumber. Wholesale buying of cotton goods had declined temporarily, and the soaring forwardings of raw cotton to the mills showed a marked slump. Orders for various kinds of steel appear to have been reduced.

MAY BE TEMPORARY

This is but natural, and may prove to be temporary. It has long been clear that much of the spurt in activity of recent months represented hurried buying to get goods before the new regulations were adopted and enforced.

Naturally, too, signs of a temporary condition of overproduction appeared, and industrial activity was curtailed in several lines. Shoes, textiles and lumber are cases in point.

It now remains to be seen how effective the efforts to create new purchasing power by working fewer hours and raising hourly wage rates will be. The hope is that increased consumer buying will develop, despite higher prices. If so, this will check the slump.

Confusion and uncertainty in prices have of course put in an appearance, and also some resistance to price advances.

Wholesalers and large retail buyers allege that some manufacturers are "profiteering." Their resistance to price markups has slowed up buying.

URGE PRICE-FIXING

In the oil and tobacco trades there has arisen a strong demand for government price-fixing as a part of the "code," the claim being that this is necessary to protect weaker producers or dealers.

Another transitional condition is found in strikes and labor difficulties. The threatening coal strike has been ended by a sort of truce. But the whole great problem of the power and rights of organized labor remains unsettled. Some employers still fancy that they are running their own businesses. Labor leaders are pressing to spread unionism, and to get as much out of the new deal as possible.

As a business "partner," the government is now in a difficult position. Laborers have many votes and much political power, while a business partner must also consider the returns to the capital and enterprise in business.

LETDOWN SHOWN

With a few notable exceptions, such as the automobile industry, business statistics showed some letdown last week. The production of steel, lumber and cotton textiles was a little lower.

The gist of the matter is that we have just passed from speculative anticipation to the realities. NRA is about to be tried. A little decline in activity and prices at this point was to be expected. It will take at least two months more to appraise our experiment.

Fight Results

At Hickey Park, Millvale—Harry Dublinsky won by technical knockout over Charley Baxter, 4 rounds; Jimmy Thomas and Charley Burns drew (referee's decision), 10 rounds; Mose Butch won by technical knockout over Eddie Pucci, 6 rounds; Fritzie Zivic defeated Joey Greb, 10 rounds.

'Big Stick' of T. R. Was Only A Toothpick

By B. C. FORBES

TEDDY ROOSEVELT'S "big Stick" was as a toothpick contrasted with NRA's "big stick."

He could not do exactly as he wished. His namesake, Franklin Roosevelt, virtually can. Congress surrendered complete power to him.

Mr. Forbes

There is this difference, however. T. R. was avowedly against big business and high finance. F. D. R., although his main concern is also for the masses, seeks to achieve his objectives through the co-operation of big business, high finance and everybody else. And, so far, he apparently is getting it.

A master stroke is the appointment of a board of umpires, headed by Senator Wagner, and embracing three representatives of industry and three of labor. Conciliators, settlers of disputes, preservers of peace, are likely to be needed. The decisions of the well-known umpires chosen should command respect—and, in view of the authority invested in dictators, obedience.

"Things are stirring at Washington in a big way. In some respects this administration has a larger problem as regards the reorganization of business than that which faced President Wilson.

"Then we made what we thought were stop-gap changes, realizing that time was all-essential and cost of little moment against the lives of our boys. Today's situation lacks the drama but involves structural and fundamental changes that are to be with us for a long time and perhaps forever. Naturally the machinery for solving the country's problems is woefully inadequate."

Judging by the number of eminent citizens constantly enrolled for whole time or part-time public service, the various dictators, especially Gen. Johnson, are letting no grass grow under their feet.

SINCE THEIR speculative spree—and the subsequent headache—the security and commodity exchanges have been behaving. The floor of the New York Stock Exchange has lost its zip and zoom. Yesterday was as deadly dull as in pre-boom days when dabbling in stocks was confined to relatively few, not indulged in by every Tom, Dick, Harry and Harriet.

A spell of speculative calm won't hurt.

THE RECENT "pay your bills" column has evoked approving response.

One reader suggests that chambers of commerce, merchants' associations and such like business organizations all over the country stage "pay your bills" campaigns, each naming a specific week.

Other readers emphasize that the payment of one bill makes possible the payment of a chain of other bills, that one $4 or $10 or $100 or $1,000 settlement can do and usually does the work of half-a-score or more similar sums.

One business man writes that 25 per cent of his accounts and notes receivable are past due, yet he knows "for an actual fact that many of them could pay if they would."

Wouldn't the week starting Labor Day (September 4) be an ideal "Pay Your Bills Week?"

Why shouldn't everybody, who possibly can, begin the fall by wiping their debt slate clean?

Few feelings are more comfortable than that of being free from debt after things have been going badly.

(Copyright, 1933, B. C. Forbes.)

STOCK MARKET MOVEMENT IRREGULAR

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—(AP.)—The stock market showed signs of arousing from its lethargy today, but irregularities in grains and cotton were conducive to further slumber.

In early trading a number of shares, particularly those of the distilling and gold mining groups, were pushed to higher levels. Transactions generally were small, however, and the activity again dwindled when the government's cotton report brought liquidation in that staple and selling came into wheat, corn and oats at Chicago. Bonds were irregular. The dollar eased moderately in foreign exchange transactions.

While there was little pessimism to be found in most brokerage circles, the enthusiasm of past weeks apparently had evaporated to a considerable extent. There were many advocates of the "long pull," but near-term predictions were extremely cautious. There was also a scarcity of the usual "tips" which accompany sharply rising prices and customers' men, their hands tied by the New York Stock Exchange restrictions, were generally content to fill orders rather than offer advice.

The alcohol stocks drew some nourishment from the prospects of a prohibition amendment vote in Arizona and gold mining issues showed improvement on reports that one American company might shortly take advantage of the government's permission to ship concentrates abroad. Despite the heavy expense attached to the export of concentrates, it was figured in some quarters that this particular company might realize a premium of around $5 an ounce on the metal contained in the shipment.

Utilities lagged behind other groups, largely because of the fear of rate reductions and the possibility that costs, under the administration's recovery program, may tend to reduce profits of a number of the larger corporations.

COTTON PRICES TURN UP

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—Cotton futures opened steady, unchanged to 4 higher with trading largely in the form of evening up for the government crop report. October, 10.03; December, 10.27; January, 10.33; March, 10.43; May, 10.60; July, 10.77.

December sold up to 10.30 before the end of the first half hour, with active months generally showing net advances of about 7 to 11 points, but the bulges met slightly increased offerings and fluctuations were more or less irregular.

The market continued irregular later in the morning. Trading was not active and appeared to be mostly in small lots, but there were alternating spurts of covering or liquidation.

December contracts after easing off from 10.30 to 10.16 rallied to 10.29 and just before the market recessed to receive the government report, was ruling around 10.18, with active months generally showing net declines of 3 or 4 points.

LITTLE FELLOW SCANS STOCK REFORMS

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—The little fellow, in whom the politicians profess so great an interest, doubtless wonders whether the new laws and new rules will lead to a loss-less investment world.

Mr. Rukeyser

In spite of the new regulations of the New York Stock Exchange and the inhibitions in the Federal Security Act, a fool and his money are still likely to be parted.

Yet both moves are a deliberate effort to develop stable financial markets and to remove the lunatic fringe and the racketeering element from stock dealings.

Even if both types of protective effort fully achieve the hopes of their sponsors, there would still remain losses resulting from erring judgment concerning legitimate economic risks.

For example, investors of an earlier period, who looked at the past performances of ferry companies, found their ferry bonds weakened, if not rendered valueless, by new competition in the form of bridges and tunnels.

SHOULDERS BURDEN

Economic change and shifts in the quality of management would make for more or less unpredictable losses (and profits) even if financial puritanism prevailed in Wall street. This conclusion is obvious enough, yet it should be shouted from the house tops lest the inexperienced be lulled into a false sense of security by the propaganda of the reformers.

The 50 per cent margin requirement on small accounts—which about doubles the previous requirement—will not mean that the careless speculator will not lose his funds, but it may signify that when such accounts are closed out in reactions, the customer will retire with part of his original stake, rather than with nothing or, even worse, with a debt.

The ruling regarding pools places a tremendous responsibility on the management of the New York Stock Exchange, which should be congratulated for its willingness to shoulder it. Hereafter, the public will assume that organized manipulation has taken place with the knowledge and at least tacit approval of the board. Accordingly, the management of the exchange will be wise in exposing uneconomic and anti-social manipulation as soon as it is brought to its attention. Unless it does this, the new rule may prove a boomerang.

TAX LAW CITED

If the effort is to succeed, the federal government has a vastly important contribution to make. Through the provision in the income tax law which regards capital gains as income, the government deters the normal impulse to sell after a substantial market rise. Accordingly, it interferes with the free working of supply and demand, distorting price movements.

The first effect is to carry upturns much farther than they otherwise would go, ultimately building up an unsound inflated position which brings on a much more violent decline than would have otherwise taken place.

England has never confused capital gains with income (or permitted deductions of capital losses). Accordingly, in the years when J. P. Morgan was paying no income taxes in the United States on account of capital losses, he was paying income taxes in England. If the government distinguished between capital appreciation and income and placed a moderate tax on such non-recurring profits, it would doubtless collect more revenue. The effect of the uneconomic tax which should be repealed, has been to prevent transactions in securities and real estate which otherwise would have taken place.

CORPORATE EARNINGS

Duquesne Light Company net income for 12 months ended June 30 this year was $10,974,671, while total dividend payments, consisting of $10,275,000 on the preferred and $9,687,726 on common, amounted to $11,962,726. In the 12 months ended June 30, 1932, net income was $12,962,669 and total dividend payments $10,996,276. In the early part of June the company's output of electric power showed its first increase over the previous year.

The report of the Philadelphia Company, the parent concern, shows net income of $7,154,599 for the year ended June 30, compared with $11,179,864 in the preceding 12 months' period.

North American Trust Shares, reporting for the year ended June 30, shows combined market value of underlying stocks amounting to $67,416,608. This compares with a market value of $23,253,045 on June 30, 1932. Of this increase, explained Dean Langmuir, vice president in charge of research, $31,056,828 represents appreciation in the market value of the securities held on June 30 last year. The market value of North American Trust Shares as of last June 30 stood at $2.90 per share, compared with $1.30 on June 30, 1932. Market value of securities held on June 30, last, exceeded the cost by $11,804,795.

Commercial Investment Trust Corporation for the six months ended June 30, last, shows net profits amounting to $2,799,582. After allowing for dividends on the first preferred and participating preference stock, earnings were equivalent to $1.12 per share on the outstanding common stock. This compares with net profits of $2,947,280 for the first six months of 1932, or $1.03 per share on the outstanding common shares.

American Safety Razor Corporation and subsidiaries report for six months ended June 30, last, net profit of $317,712, after depreciation, federal taxes, etc., equal to $1.56 a share, compared with profit of $304,862, or $1.52 a share, in the first half of 1932. June quarter net profit was $171,729, equal to 86 cents a share, against 73 cents a share in the preceding quarter and 90 cents a share in the June quarter of 1932.

Washington Expresses Satisfaction with NRA Progress

— WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—(AP.)—Satisfaction is being voiced in Washington's official circles over the progress of the National Recovery Administration.

The initial air of doubt in some quarters as to whether industry and business would cooperate with the government in carrying out the intent of the National Industrial Recovery Act has been dissipated. These doubts, officials say now, vanished at the outset during public hearings preceding adoption of the cotton code.

Purchasing Power Main Objective

Throughout all the code hearings so far, the government has stressed that the immediate objective is increased purchasing power through higher wages in the lower brackets. When this matter of wages and working hours has been agreed on, the government takes up wages and hours with another industry, deferring for the time being the matter of what price levels and quotas shall be in each industry.

Any admitted partisanship has been lacking in hearings to date.

Hearings Disclose Varying Opinions

Industry and business, officials say, have recognized that this is a national emergency and that partisanship must not interfere with efforts to increase purchasing power.

The hearings have not been free of differences of opinion. These differences have come up in virtually all hearings to date, but have been accompanied by desires to adjust them. The government, on the other hand, is giving assurances that the program is subject to modification as experience dictates.

RETAIL STORES CODE TERMS OUTLINED

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—(AP.)—Grocers and retailers, under fair practice codes submitted to the NRA, have agreed to regulations for their industries for the purpose of industrial recovery.

Maximum hours of labor and minimum rates of pay for employes are definitely fixed.

Maximum hours of labor shall be 48 hours per week. No one shall be employed more than eight hours in any 24-hour period, excepting on the day preceding a legal holiday and on an additional 12 days (when the maximum hours in any one day shall not exceed 10 hours) in any six-moth period.

STORE HOURS

In the Presidential agreement, the minimum hours of any store which customarily operated more than 52 hours were set at 52 hours. The average number of hours in which retail grocers were open was said by their national committee to be 73.

Contending that to shorten hours might lose busines, the grocers were allowed a 48-hour week for employes.

NRA officials, however, have explained that if store hours are reduced by agreement to below 63, the re-employment which is anticipated through the allowance of the 48-hour work week will not be obtained, and the understanding upon which the food and grocery distributors and the retail codes were based will not have been carried out.

Where store or service operations were less than 52 hours per week before July 1, 1933, however, the minimum requirement does not apply, but the previous hours shall not be reduced.

EXEMPT LIST

These maximum hours do not apply to employes in establishments employing not more than two persons in towns of less than 2,500 population, nor to employes in executive or managerial jobs who now receive more than $35 a week.

Outside salesmen or delivery men, employes on emergency maintenance and repair work, and special cases where restriction of hours would unavoidable reduce production are also excepted. But in such cases at least time and one-third shall be paid for hours worked in excess of the maximum.

Not less than $15 perweek in any city of over 500,000 population.

Not less than $14.50 per week in any city of between 250,000 and 500,000 population.

Not less than $14 per week in any city between 2,500 and 250,000 population.

Employes with less than six months' experience in the grocery trade may be paid $1 per week less than wages prescribed above.

N In towns of less than 2,500 population all wages shall be increased by not less than 20 per cent provided that this shall not require wages in excess of $12 per week.

GROCERS WARNED

The NRA officials have warned retail grocers against making joint agreements to shorten store hours. In a telegram to the Indiana Retail Grocers Association, A. D. Whiteside, deputy administrator, called attention to the fact that in several local communities retailers are making such agreements. The telegram said:

"This is not in keeping with either the spirit of the act as expressed in the President's re-employment agreement or in the President's statements regarding re-employment, of which the essence is to effect an increase both in re-employment and in wages to those employed.

"The proposal to shorten store hours is in violation of Section 8 of the President's re-employment agreement. Reconsideration of the provisions of the retail codes and possible withdrawal of insignia will be necessary immediately if community or concerted action to shorten store operating hours is takne."

No individual or organization shall work any employe for more than 40 hours a week, excepting at Christmas, inventory, and other peak periods when employes may work 48 hours a week for a maximum of not to exceed three weeks in each six months.

Exceptions, however, are made for executives whose salaries exceed $35 per wek, registerd pharmacists or other professional persons employed in their provision, outside salesmen, and except outside deliverymen and maintenance employes, who may be employed 48 hours weekly or more, if paid time and one-third for all hours over 48 hours weekly.

HOURS OF OPERATION

Retailers are not to reduce the hours of any store or service operation to below 52 hours in any one week unless such hours were less than 52 a week before July 1, 1933, and in the latter case not to reduce such hours at all.

The maximum hours shall not apply to employes in establishments employing not more than two persons in town of lass than 2,500 population.

Within cities of over 500,000 population at the rate of $14 per week.

Within cities of from 100,000 to 500,000 population at the rate of $13.50 per week.

Within villages, towns or cities with a population of 2,500 to 100,000 at the rate of $13 per week.

The minimum wages paid by employers in the retail trade to any of their employes shall be at the rate of one dollar per week Junior employes between the less in the southern section of the country.

ages of 16 and 18 years inclusive, with less than six months' experience in any retail store shall be paid at the rate of two dollars less for a work week except that apprentice employes more than 18 years of age with less than six months' experience shall be paid one dollar less per work week, provided that the minimum shall not be less than at the rate of $11 per week.

CHAPTER XXIII.

Ned Wingate, the studio manager was an old friend without the aura of prestige surrounding Gerstenfield. Even though Leni knew that from now on she was utterly independent there was still enough of the child in her to feel excited and fearful in the presence of the Napoleonic wisp of a man with the best brain in the whole industry.

Tradition and public acclaim had enshrined Gerstenfield as a demigod. He made and unmade careers. He had directed her last two pictures—had moulded her as a sculptor moulds clay.

What she could not know, of course, was that Herman Gerstenfield was more of a slave than she—or anyone else—could possibly be.

And now it was going to be her unpleasant duty to tell him that she was through with him, the movies, with ambition, career and fame. In a way, she was going to let him down.

Leni was active with imagination. She knew she was going to pit her brain and will against a stronger mental force than any she had ever contracted in her life.

Herman Gerstenfield was not a flesh and blood body—he was a mental force vibrating, shattering, building, winning!

Both men, when Leni came into the room, rose to their feet at once. Gerstenfield as though it were a physical effort came up slowly—a medium-sized man with narrow shoulders and a face utterly unimpressive, except for the eyes.

"Good morning, darling," said Wingate with light affection. "Just out of bed, eh? Well, it was a great night!"

LENI COMPLIMENTED

He laughed with an ease of manner and took hold of her hand. Leni had always liked Wingate. She had the pleasant feeling of knowing that he admired her work and this always stimulated her. Wingate . . . sparse and middle-aged and with the wide, loose mouth of a clown, led her up to Gerstenfield.

"The best bet in pictures today, Herman!" he said.

Herman Gerstenfield's face expressed an indifference, which he was very far from feeling. With his aloof and cold manner he usually got what he wanted in a business discussion. He had brought Wingate along as a softening influence upon Leni.

"Time will tell how good Miss Luneska is," said Gerstenfield, without enthusiasm.

He sank back into his chair and Wingate took a fountain pen from his pocket and put it on a table beside a legal-looking document with a blue cover which he had, apparently, been reading before Leni came in. He started to speak and then checked himself. After all, Wingate was the figurehead, Gerstenfield the real power.

ATTRACTIVE PICTURE

In the vast mechanism of studio organization, Wingate was merely a competent and useful instrument. The insignificant looking Gerstenfield could control him by pushing a button.

"I feel very flattered that both you gentlemen called," said Leni. "Would you like to stay for luncheon with me?"

Wingate watched her with admiration, his eyes keenly appreciative of the attractive picture she presented.

Her small feet were in green silk mules. Above these were pajama trousers of thick and heavy yellow silk. Her jacket was cloth of gold wrapped across the perfection of her breast and tied on one slender hip with two green ribbons. Her golden hair was loosely dressed, an auriate shimmer of light.

She looked fragile yet elastic and full of the kind of energy that the celluloid could pick up and reproduce as gorgeous vitality. Gerstenfield decided mentally that he would photograph her in the next picture in the identical costume she was now wearing.

"We've had lunch, thank you," said Gerstenfield. "Let's get down to business. How do you feel we've treated you on the matter of your contract in the past?"

"I've no complaint whatever," said Leni agreeably.

IS SATISFIED

Gerstenfield grunted. "I should think so. We're already paying you more money than you ever dreamed of."

"Leni's been lucky," added Wingate softly.

Leni sat down and crossed the silken folds of her pajama clad leg. This Leni, with her charm capable of dazzling millions from the screen, was to these men apparently nothing more than a business opponent. They were here, she knew, to have her sign a new contract. Yet Hollywood does not do business in a forth-right manner—it has to be a game of chess.

"The studio has treated me marvelously well," said Leni. Her voice was smooth, sweet like honey "I've been lucky, indeed, and it's quite true that I am making more money now than I ever dreamed of. But we've all done well together, haven't we? I understand that my pictures have been very profitable for the studio. I mean if I should quit now, we'd all be ahead of the game, wouldn't we?"

"Until your last picture you had other stars of proven drawing powers with you, darling, and we gave you a great story for your last picture, too. If I may say so, the direction counted for a great deal."

"Indeed yes—the direction was superb, Ned," said Leni quickly. "Mr. Gerstenfield was inspired."

This kind of talk made Gerstenfield uncomfortable. His eyes were burning like smoky torches and for the fourth time in the last 15 minutes he looked at the watch strapped to his wrist.

OFFERED DOUBLE SALARY

"Let's cut out tossing the flowers and come back to earth," he said flatly. "The box office will tell how good or bad either of you are. Under your old contract, Miss Luneska, you have still a year to run with us at your present salary. In this business we've got to gamble on our stars. Your last picture looks fair, but we can't tell much about its earning power for some months yet. It may make money all over the country and it may flop. Outside of one or two favorites, you foreign stars are about the worst gamble in picture business."

"That's true," said Wingate. "The public likes its American girls."

And then the great Gerstenfield pontficated: "There has been some sentiment in our company to let your contract expire. On the other hand, a few of us thought there was an outside chance of putting you over. Frankly, you're the biggest gamble we have among our stars, but we're willing to take a chance on you. We've prepared a five-year contract with the customary options. You're getting a healthy salary now, but we're going to double it. To speak plainly, I think the company is far too generous. Nevertheless, I've brought the contract with me and we're here to sign it."

"The luckiest girl in pictures!" he said entranced.

"I'll say so!" retorted Gerstenfield.

GIVES DECISION

Gerstenfield's eyes were fixed upon her with what amounted almost to hypnotic intensity. There was a persuasiveness about the man, a crude dynamic force that beat against her as definitely yet as invisibly as a steady wind.

He got up out of his chair suddenly as though he loathed the softness of its cushions.

Leni neither liked nor disliked him, but her intelligence told her that the motion picture industry had not produced another man of equal strength. After a few minutes under his spell, one ceased to regard him as a physical man and sensed him only as some mysterious electrical concentration of willpower.

He was neither honest nor dishonest—merely, he got what he wanted.

It was not easy for her to cross purposes with him. Yet out of her heart flowed a protective force that gathered around her like a delightful cloud.

"I'm so terribly sorry for your sake, Mr. Gerstenfield," said Leni. "No one could help wanting to do whatever you say. Still, I'm not going to sign your contract. I'm through with pictures forever."

"Are you insane or are you bluffing?" asked Gerstenfield, cold as ice.

"Neither," said Leni. "I happen to be in love"

"I knew it was one or the other," Gerstenfield said, a shade of relief in his voice. "You're insane!"

The singing sensation in Leni's heart became acutely pleasant.

What did it matter if Gerstenfield called her insane? Poor man—what could he, with his contracted heart and his frigid will-power, know of love?

Wingate was all for making a joke of Leni's desertion of the pictures. He picked up her hand and planted a lingering kiss upon it.

"Love is necessary to a career," he said gaily. "I've been in love myself 14 times in the last two years—but I've never wanted to quit my job on account of it."

"Nevertheless, gentlemen, I am leaving the pictures," affirmed Leni with a quiet smile more convincing than if she had pounded the table.

At this there was a moment of silence. Gerstenfield, all eyes, tried to capture her gaze but Leni was looking at Ned Wingate who reluctantly released her hand.

Synopsis

At the premiere of her latest picture, Leni Luneska, beautiful star, is stunned by the appearance of her criminal husband, Karl Kruger. Lucky Cavanaugh, gambler, who has just seen Leni for the first time, tries to make Kruger leave. Later Cavanaugh goes to see Kruger, waiting in a small office. Kruger rushes away from Cavanaugh and surprises burglars in the next office. One of them shoot him to death. Detective Mulrooney, well acquainted with Cavanaugh, gives him four days to find the killer or be arrested himself. Lucky takes Leni home. Lucky is warned that the killer is after him to prevent him from "squealing." Kruger's murderer lies in wait to kill Lucky. Lucky, arriving home, finds a jealous woman, named Annette, waiting for him. Steve Poletzki, the killer, aims at Lucky through a window and kills Annette by mistake. Next morning, Leni is swamped with congratulatory messages on the premiere.

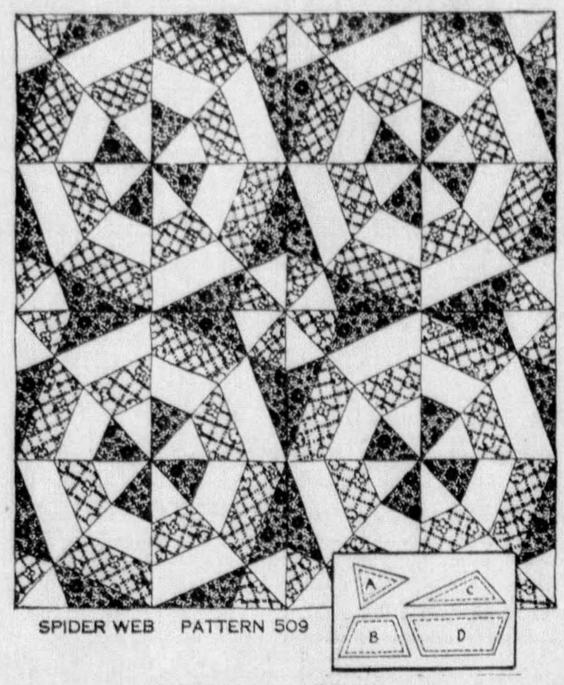
PATCHWORK QUILT PATTERN



SPIDER WEB PATTERN 509

By LAURA WHEELER

We all have admired the beauty of a spider-web in the garden but probably never thought it would be possible to combine lots of them into a quilt. The ingenious quiltmaker of old, realizing their beauty, made them of patches of gay material and joined them into this Spider Web quilt. Aside from its pictorial quality, it is unusually easy to make. Like the Pineapple design, it can be done by starting at the center and joining on the patches, around and around till the block is complete, or those who prefer, can make it by forming the patches into four squares and joining these to make the block. The small illustration above shows how few and simple the pattern pieces are.

Pattern 509 comes to you with complete simple, instructions for cutting, sewing and finishing, together with yardage chart diagram of quilt to help arrange the blocks for single and double bed size, and a diagram of block which serves as a guide for placing the patches and suggests contrasting materials.

Send 10c for this pattern to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

The Junior Patrol Mail Box

We're making progress all the time, fellows!

The picnic at West View was a week ago today, but we are still getting letters about it.

Here's one from Robert Hogg, of 2011 Metropolitan street, North Side. He writes:

"My members and I went to National Kiddies' Day picnic and we had loads of fun. I never saw so many Junior Patrols yet. I have been working lately getting new members. I am going to test these members. My chapter name will soon be decided upon. We also have a mushball team."

Capt. Mary Hayes, who lives at 409 Seventh avenue, Carnegie, Pa., writes:

"I am sending 10 more pledges. Please send buttons and cards. I was at the picnic and had a swell time. But I thought there was going to be races and there weren't. So I was disappointed in that. The street car fare was so dear not many of my patrol could go. I went with my brother. The program was swell."

You are quite right, Mary, it would have been a better picnic if we had had some races, but somehow we didn't get around to them. But it's a fine suggestion to keep in mind for next year, and I'm pretty sure that there will be races then. We're glad you liked the program. As for the street car fare, it isn't so much if you save up your pennies for just a little while. And maybe we can arrange for lower fares next year.

And now look at this dandy letter: It's from Elfreda Pawell, of 1106 Grandview avenue, Mt. Washington, Pittsburgh:

"I want to thank you for your kindness in sending me and my twin brothers the amusement tickets for the Junior Patrol picnic. Mother said she would take me and my brothers. Also one of the new members mother took along with us. I am inclosing five new pledges."

You were very welcome, Elfreda!

Here's a letter now we got before the picnic, but we haven't had a chance to print it until just now. It's from Peggy Coulter, of 635 School street, Indiana, Pa. She writes:

"Dear Quin Hall, Spike, Junior and Snuggins:

"I read the Mail Box every day and think it is very interesting. I also read the comic strip. I've been wanting to start a club ever since I read about it, I'm sure the kids in our neighborhood would be willing. I also want to come to the picnic, but since Pittsburgh is 52 miles away I'm not sure if I can get there. I know if I could get there I would have a lot of fun. I'm anxious to see some of the Junior Patrol members. Could you suggest a place for a clubroom or a clubhouse? I wish some of the members would write to me."

We hope you got to the picnic, Peggy. Write and tell us more news. A good place for a club house is always one's own home if your mother can spare you a room for the meeting now and then. Some clubs take turns meeting in the different homes of the members. Some of the boys have built Junior Patrol shacks.

NEWS, NEWS, NEWS, NEWS

Charles Shomecker, of Parker's Landing, Pa., is thinking of starting a Junior Patrol—he follows the adventures of Spike and Snuggins down the river every day.

Jean Kirk is captain of a new North Side patrol on Atkins street.

Margaret Hucko has organized a club of 10 girls. She lives at 355 Noyloi street, and she promises to have her club stick to the Junior Patrol pledges.

Retail druggists have drawn up their industrial code to submit to the President for correction.

It would be a fine thing if they would also submit their mayonnaise formula for correction.

And will the President have the courage to say something about the granite cubes drug stores substitute for sugar?

And will he stir the nation with a ringing assurance that hereafter the druggists will put more and better chocolate in chocolate ice cream sodas?

Mrs. Frisby's Pomeranian, which Mr. Frisby refuses to support.

WASHINGTON — Congressman Frisby blew three blasts on his police whistle last night, which was the prearranged signal to the press that he would discuss progress made in his marital rift with Mrs. Frisby.

"At this time," declared Frisby, "I can only thank the public for its sympathy in this case, and say once again that Mrs. Frisby is not the sort of a woman I wish to have hanging to my coattails. Our twenty-three years of married life have convinced me that we are of different temperament. Some difficulties have arisen concerning custody of Mrs. Frisby's Pomeranian, she holding that I should contribute to its support, or take the creature off her hands. This I refuse to do. The Pomeranian can scratch for itself. I have, however, agreed to give Mrs. Frisby one of the shoes I wore as a child, to remember me by —with the understanding, of course, that if she remarries the shoe be presented to some national shrine, so that posterity can have and hold it. Thus I hope my shoe will belong to the ages."

Conceding The Match

So far as the advance golfer is concerned, the fairway is always under repair.

Therefore, we will prescribe an honor list of rules for the boys below timber line:

Make every stroke count. But don't count every stroke.

You have had a fair round if you replace 80 per cent of all divots.

Always refer to sand traps as the beach.

When a pro uses a closed face he means the club. But it ain't a bad idea for human beings. Remind us of this one.

Don't forget the ancient Romans learned to be great orators hollering "fore" on public courses on Saturday afternoons.

There is no rule against playing out of six feet of pond water. Provided you keep your head down. The longer the better.

There is no time limit on looking for hooks lost in the rough. That's why two-weeks cards are issued to guests.

In dropping a ball you are supposed to toss it carelessly over your shoulder. However, you can use a little speed if you see a man trying to steal third base.

When a foursome waves you through always thank their caddies. They're the ones who suggested it.

Never tee off for a 300-yard hole until the foursome ahead is off the green. You might not get distance but you will get respect.

Read these suggestions over carefully the first time you are by yourself. Which should be somewhere between a greenhouse and a ploughed field on the right.

Reds in the Mines

Communists May Cause Disturbances, But Are Hardly Likely to Gain Control.

The reluctance of the striking coal miners of Western Pennsylvania to accept a truce and return to work, as urged by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, and other leaders, is attributed in part to the agitation of Communists.

Red agitators may delay the return of industrial peace. They may cause disturbances which will lead to the shedding of more blood. But it is scarcely credible that they will gain control.

Communists have been fomenting rebellion against the conservative United Mine Workers for six years without making appreciable headway. They had their chance a year ago when conditions were at their worst. Yet they not only failed to overthrow the United Mine Workers, but did not even make an impressive showing in the Presidential election last November.

Now that conditions are improving, and the miners have an excellent opportunity to regain some of the things they lost when the Pittsburgh Coal Company and other operators severed relations with the union, the Communists have scant chance to do more than carry on an annoying but ineffective guerrilla warfare.

Hurrah for These Girls!

All Decent Persons Will Approve One of the Demands of the Striking Shirt Makers.

One of the demands of the 400 girl shirt makers on strike in Uniontown will commend itself to everyone with a sense of decency.

The girls ask that the foremen be required to abstain from the use of foul language while in their presence.

All honor to the girls for this just demand for cleanness of speech!

There may be persons who will think this a paltry complaint, unworthy of being so dignified; but we believe, notwithstanding the prevalence of obscenity and profanity in many popular novels and plays, that the majority of people disapprove of it. It is greatly to the credit of the operators of the radio broadcasting stations that they will not tolerate the use of coarse expressions.

Foul language, by the way, is just as unfit for gentlemen as for ladies.

Policemen's Revolvers

Speed the Day When There Never Will Be Occasion to Use Them.

Franklin T. McQuaide, superintendent of police, says he is tired of seeing policemen whose revolvers serve none but an ornamental use. Some officers, he complains, have not used their revolvers in years. And so he is going to give them instruction in pistol marksmanship.

It is to be hoped that McQuaide's suggestion that revolvers should not be mere ornaments will not be construed by thoughtless young officers as a hint to use them on the slightest pretext.

We understand that the London police do not carry pistols in the ordinary course of their duties, and it is to be hoped that the day may soon come when Pittsburgh police will be able to dispense with them.

If there have been instances when Pittsburgh police failed to shoot when they should have shot, they have not attracted much attention; but the records are full of cases in which policemen were too quick to shoot, and sent to their deaths men and boys guilty of little or nothing.

There is no denying the fact that in coping with present-day bandits and desperadoes the police must be quick on the draw and able to shoot straight, and McQuaides' "ballistic school" will serve a useful service in teaching these things.

But too much emphasis cannot be laid on the necessity of making sure that the suspects ARE desperadoes before shooting.

Proposed Bridges

It Is Gratifying to Learn the Ruling on Toll Spans Will Not Affect the Plans.

It is gratifying to learn that the Public Service Commission's ban on toll bridges does not apply, in Assistant County Solicitor Churchill B. Mehard's opinion, to the three toll spans that the County Commissioners plan to build, but only to privately owned bridges. Preparations to erect the bridges—one at Homestead, one at Aspinwall, and one at Dravosburg—are being rushed.

It is true that toll bridges, like toll roads, are frowned upon by the public, and when the last toll bridge in Allegheny County was freed we hoped and expected never to have another. But the depression has made it difficult to finance public improvements, and if there is no alternative, in erecting the proposed new bridges, except to increase the taxes or charge a small fee for the use of the bridges, there is little doubt that the public will agree to the latter.

All the proposed bridges are needed, but especially the one at Homestead. In crossing the Monongahela at Homestead now, Brown's Bridge is used, a narrow, obsolete structure built in 1895 for the use of the horse-drawn and light street cars of that time. To use this bridge, now taxed with the metropolitan traffic of over 13,000 automobiles and 407 heavy modern streets cars daily, it is necessary to cross six tracks of heavily traveled main line railroad at grade, and many fatal accidents have resulted from this necessity.

A new bridge obviating these hazards is imperative. By all means let us have a toll bridge if we cannot obtain the improvement in any other way. But let the toll be low, and let the bridge be freed as soon as the county's finances permit.

Screeching Street Cars

A Little Grease on the Trolley Tracks at Curves Probably Would Eliminate the Nuisance.

Did you ever hear a trolley car let out a screech as it rounded a curve?

Of course you have, and if you are normally sensitive to strident noises you didn't like it.

If you are especially sensitive, or if you have been ill or nervous, and had to remain in the vicinity of a curve around which street cars came screeching every few minutes, the sound was maddening.

Mayor J. Hampton Moore, of Philadelphia, is determined that the occupants of the city hall in that city shall be relieved of the nuisance. He has given orders that the rails at the corners of the building shall be greased twice daily to eliminate the screech.

There is a hint in this for Pittsburgh.

Ramshackle Structures Must Go

One tumbledown building
A menace has proved
And now by the wreckers
Is being removed.

The structure next to it,
Long since a disgrace,
Should go and a well built
One rise in its place.

Marry-Go-Round

These Modern Lovers

Nothing seems to relieve a man of a "hangover" so effectively as bawling out the family—or the office force.

Sometimes, a man MAY marry a woman he believes to be his intellectual superior—but he first takes every precaution to assure himself that she doesn't KNOW it.

A man has reached the "Dangerous Age," when he stops trying to dodge temptations—and women—and begins to wonder if he's missing any.

* * *

When two young moderns divorce, they usually remain perfectly good friends. The "ideally married" couple is rapidly giving place to the "ideally divorced" couple.

Of course, Man is the practical sex; but he is still inclined to pick out a new stenographer for the length of her eyelashes or the wave in her hair, rather than for her spelling and punctuation.

* * *

There is something to be said for alimony. If ANYBODY needs money, it is a poor, lonely grass-widow, who doesn't know where her next "Daddy" is coming from!

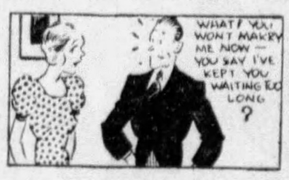
All that the modern woman asks of man is that he accept her as his economic equal—and then keep up the alimony payments.



The Younger Generation would have much more ease of mind, if there were some place where they could check their parents, evenings, so that they could find them and take them home at a respectable hour.

There is nothing more beautiful than a man's simple, childlike faith that no matter how long he may keep a woman waiting on the doorstep of his heart, she will always be right there, when he gets through playing around and decides to let her in.

Isn't It So?

In radio broadcasting, some people get the "air" who don't deserve it.

The trouble with the school of experience is that you can't bring an excuse when you're late.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—I never pass the south side of the Times Building without a thought of the old Forty-second Street Country Club. The fire plug, which was the headquarters, is still standing. Around it, particularly in the late afternoon, gathered leading figures of the Broadway of that day.

From there they usually moved cater-cornered across Broadway to rest a foot on the rail in the rainbowy splash of Maxfield Parrish's "Old King Cole" and what glittered behind the Knickerbocker bar. Merry gentlemen all! Collaborators in a bon homme that gave generous tingle to a then illustrious rue.

Best stories of the town originated there. No club anywhere was so magnificently grotesque or hilariously Elizabethan. One summer afternoon Jim Regan, proprietor of the fashionable inn, walked into the bar and said briskly: "I'm sorry, gentlemen, I do not want your business."

There was a stunned silence. Glasses were gravely set down, and in single file the Forty-second Street Country Club walked to the Albany bar at Forty-first. But in a few days Regan begged them to return. He had not realized their presence was the lodestone that filled his bar.

Many knight errants tried to attach themselves to the Forty-second Street Club but none succeeded. It remained with the original membership to the final drink when prohibition came. The roster was Frank Ward O'Malley, Irvin Cobb, Wilson Mizner, Hugh Chilvers, Della Fox's leading man, Paul Armstrong, Fred Thompson, Drury Underwood, Glenmore (Stuffy) Davis, Eddie Pidgeon, James Pooten, Tom Riley, Mason Peters and Morgan Robertson.

Morgan Robertson, whose salty sea stories are now classics, was the hardiest of that blithesome crew ploughing the Broadway seas. When his magazine checks came he spent them within the hour over the mahogany and when he borrowed an occasional tenner would say: "I shall be eternally indebted to you"—and always was! He is reputed in scientific circles to be the inventor of the periscope, for which he never received credit. He died, as genius so often does, neglected.

* * *

Irvin Cobb's one and only play, premiered during this era at the Casino, lasted one week. Cobb said afterward the only satisfied patron was Mrs. Cobb. He would never tackle the theater again, although he turned down hundreds of offers, not only to appear on the boards, but to write other plays.

* * *

Up the street from the Knickerbocker was another afternoon high light of men about town and exquisite fooling. The meeting place was the "cartoonists table" at Churchill's. It was at that period when cartoons of Macauley of the World, Rogers of the Herald, Homer Davenport of the Evening Mail, and T. E. Powers played such important parts in the political world. So far as I know Powers' pen is the only one still active—and very active it is, too.

In a sedate restaurant I sat a table away from Dr. John F. Erdmann, the great Ohio-born surgeon. I was especially interested in his hands as I am in the hands of all genius. I expected to see long, tapering, artistic fingers. Instead I saw Carnera-like hands with amazingly short, stubby fingers. Yet one only had to watch them in ordinary usages of eating utensils to see why they have been classified as the most dexterous in the world.

* * *

Visiting a portrait painter's studio, I became jerry to a trade trick. A distinguished gentleman called to see the completed canvas of himself. He was sincerely pleased, but after squinting from all angles was dubious about the fluff of shadow, like that of a pearl on a woman's throat, around his temple. The artist seemed at once to catch his idea and made a few professional flicks with his brush. The result instantly satisfied the sitter. After his departure I remarked how deftly the artist made the change. "There was no change," he said. "I merely used a dry brush. It always pleases them."

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

I have just been talking to a mother.

By all the standard tests, she is a very good mother. She is a fine housekeeper, a good cook, an economical manager. Her children are well dressed, well fed, well doctored. She works hard, asks little for herself, makes many sacrifices. She boasts that she "hasn't a thought outside her home and family."

Therefore, by those same tests, she should be a very happy mother, and her children—16, 19 and 21, respectively—should be proud, devoted and grateful.

But she isn't—and they aren't. Instead, they are indifferent to her, when not downright rude. They do not confide in her. To the contrary, they hide their affairs from her and fib when cornered.

They listen, when compelled, to her advice; but never follow it. They frankly say "We've got to fib to mother; she doesn't know what it's all about."

"After all I've done for them!" she says.

BUT JUST HOW MUCH HAS THAT MOTHER DONE FOR THOSE CHILDREN?

She has performed a tremendous amount of manual labor. She has served their physical needs magnificently. BUT WHAT SORT OF SERVICE HAS SHE GIVEN TO THEIR OTHER NEEDS?

For remember, human motherhood implies much more than services of physical needs. It isn't enough for a mother to know how to cook, sew, clean and dose, any more than it is enough for a writer to know how to type, spell, put pretty words together, read books. If, as a writer, I couldn't do more than that, I couldn't hold this job a week. A writer who serves humans must constantly study, keep abreast of the times, discard old notions, take on new ones—above all, know his readers' current needs and tastes.

And exactly the same service is required of anyone who undertakes the job of preparing a human being for the world in which he is to function. It isn't enough for a mother to feed and protect a child as a cow feeds and protects her calf. The mother must KNOW her child; must understand its particular need and nature. And she must KNOW also the world in which that child is living, and which is changing as rapidly as the child itself.

Unless a mother does know her child and its world—unless she "keeps current" with both of them, changes as they change, adapts herself as they adapt themselves—THEN THAT MOTHER ISN'T FILLING HER JOB.

But how much does this good, hard-working mother KNOW about her children and their world?

She believes that she knows what they think; what they like. Actually, she thinks they think what she wants them to think, and likes what she wants them to like. And what's that? What she thought, what she liked, in her own girlhood.

But, in terms of world change, her youth is a million miles away from her children's youth. She cannot possibly bring them up by the rule-o'-thumb which her mother used in that simpler, stupider world of the 80s and 90s. She must face the world as it is today; think the things which people are thinking today.

BUT THAT'S EXACTLY WHAT SHE WON'T DO!

She is willing to serve her children in every other way; willing to endure any other hardship, or make any other sacrifices; BUT SHE IS NOT WILLING TO TAKE THE RISKS AND ENDURE THE CHANGES AND DISCOMFORTS AND POSSIBLE HUMILIATIONS OF GIVING UP HER OLD NOTIONS AND "KEEPING CURRENT."

So—is she really a good mother or isn't she?

The Human Side of the News

By EDWIN C. HILL

BEHIND the news that Artist Walt Disney will hereafter do all his work and transact all his affairs in Hollywood, lies one of those human stories which make news live. For the announcement means that Mickey Mouse has gone to California—Mickey and his beloved Minnie and all the little mice.

Well, Mickey should have quite a few years to enjoy the golden sunshine of beautiful Southern California. He is only five years old, which, while fairly well along in years for an ordinary mouse, is nothing for the irrepressible, ageless Mickey. For Mickey Mouse, like Alice in Wonderland, will never grow up, and the chances are that the children of years to come—yes, and the grown-ups of years to come, will still be squealing with laughter or chuckling apologetically over the antics of that invincibly gay, gallant and resourceful little creature who makes kings and presidents laugh as well as humbler folk.

One thing is certain, Mickey will never "go Hollywood." He is too real for that—too genuine. His rise to world popularity is one of the most amazing stories of the times. This writer is certain that more people follow his doings and the doings of his little group than pay heed to the heavy sessions of economic conferences or the doings of legislatures.

A Native Of Kansas City

PERHAPS Mickey's celebrity is not so amazing, after all, when one remembers that he came to us at the time the country needed him most—at the beginning of the depression. He has helped us to laugh away our troubles, forget our creditors and keep our chin up. And now that good times are returning I think that Mickey Mouse, as well as Franklin D. Roosevelt, his good friend and ardent admirer, is entitled to take a bow.

Mickey was born in Kansas City. He was really a live mouse, playing unafraid over the drawing board of an ambitious, art-crazy lad of 17 who was working in a five-dollar-a-month room over a garage in the Missouri city. That was how and where Walt Disney, Mickey's creator, got his inspiration, his model and his start. Perhaps one should say, really, that there was actually a live Mickey and a live Minnie scampering over Walt Disney's drawing board as the young artist dreamed his dreams, for there were two live mice that played about in Walt's room, and which he tamed and taught to pose for him. It's really a fascinating story.

Walt Disney, who looks like a simple and unsophisticated Adolph Menjou, is 31 now, and one of the most celebrated persons in the world, with an income that millionaires might well envy, and a fame that reaches all around the curves of the world. You can see Mickey at his pranks if you wander up to the Arctic Circle and sit in a little movie house illuminated by whale oil lamps. And you can see him in some sizzling hot little cinema theater down under the Equator, in Borneo or Central America, or China or Japan. For Mickey, good American though he is, is an international character, who speaks all languages because he speaks the language of the heart.

When Walt Disney was a small boy his teachers had a great deal of trouble with him because he was dull with his lessons. Arithmetic and grammar simply could not be got into his head. All he could think about was drawing. He covered his school books, his writing pads and his examination papers with drawings of people and of animals. Before he was out of his teens he knew what he wanted to do and what he was sure he could do. When he was 17 years old he paid for his haircuts because a barber discovered that Walt's drawings of animals doing humanlike things pleased people, when he put the pictures in his window, and drew customers to the shop.

Live Models On Drawing Board

AND presently Walt was making a little money, just enough to live on, just enough to take a room over a garage in Kansas City, a room which he proudly called his "studio." And that was where fate stepped in, Fate in the persons of Mickey and Minnie.

Working away in the hot little room above the smelly garage, Walt caught sight of two mice, one night—two timid little creatures that had come out of the wall for coolness, perhaps, or to get the crumbs that even a hungry artist leaves around. Walt was amused by the tiny little creatures and began to make friends with them, finally luring them, by a trail of crumbs and cheese, to his drawing board. And it wasn't long until they could sit on the drawing board while he worked, combing their whiskers and licking their chops and telling each other, probably, what funny people these artists are.

Walt began to draw them, actually using them as live models, working them into human situations, making them tell human stories. And suddenly in the spring of 1928 the country awakened to the fact that there was a new character in films, a comedy character different from anything that had ever been seen before. Within a few weeks the whole country was rocking with laughter and it still is.

Today, Mickey Mouse's studio is in a large building just off Hollywood boulevard, in the outskirts of Los Angeles. In that studio Walt Disney and a large staff of carefully-trained assistants turn out 18 Mickey Mouse cartoons every year.

A COURAGEOUS GIRL

By Winifred Black

There they were at the church door the other night, the two middle-aged women and the two little girls.

Just as they stopped their neat little car at the curb, one of the women gasped:

"We can't go back and get them, we'd miss the best part of the show, what shall we do?"

"Take a little spin, get some fresh air and go home, that's all we can do," said the other woman.

But while they were talking, one of the little girls slipped from the car, and before they guessed what she was going to do, she stood at the door, where the man was taking tickets.

The man was talking to a well-dressed woman who seemed to be very much interested in the performance going on inside.

"Pardon me," said the little girl in a voice of honey., "But I'm here with two ladies who bought tickets for the entertainment, there are four of us, and we have left our tickets at home. The ladies' names are So and So and So and So, they have brought us two little girls with them. If we go back for the tickets we might miss the whole of the lovely pageant and that would be too terrible. Isn't there some way we can arrange things?"

"Let's see," he said, "yes, here are the names."

"Do arrange it, Mr. Smith," said the lady at the door, "this does seem to be such a nice child."

So the man arranged it and the first thing the other three members of the party knew, they were being ushered through the magic door by their own little girl.

"Well," said the man at the door. "That child will get whatever she wants in this world. I'm no prophet, but I'll prophesy that."

And everyone who witnessed the little drama agreed with the prophet.

We all wondered who the little girl was and where she learned that trick of the voice and who taught her how to speak to a stranger with just the right modicum of politeness, respect, dignity and childlike and ingratiating trust.

She might have sat in a car and pouted, she might even have cried, but she didn't, she seized the situation and turned defeat into victory.

Fate will never conquer you, and such light hearts and gallant souls as yours.
